

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

942.006

C52

LELAND • STANFORD JUNIOR • UNIVERSITY

James Heywood

26 Palace Gar.

London

V

2.006

2

LELAND • STANFORD • JUNIOR • UNIVERSITY

James Heywood

26 Palace Gardens

London

W.

Chetham

ESTABLISHED

Society,

M.DCCC.XLIII.

FOR THE PUBLICATION OF

HISTORICAL AND LITERARY REMAINS CONNECTED WITH THE PALATINE COUNTIES OF LANCASTER AND CHESTER.

Patrons.

The Right Hon. and Most Rev. The ARCHBISHOP of CANTERBURY.
His Grace The DUKE of DEVONSHIRE, K.G. The Rt. Rev. The Lord BISHOP of CHESTER.
The Most Noble The MARQUIS of WESTMINSTER, K.G. The Rt. Hon. LORD DELAMERE.
The Rt. Hon. The EARL of DERBY, K.G. The Rt. Hon. LORD DE TABLEY.
The Rt. Hon. The EARL of CRAWFORD AND BALCARRES. The Rt. Hon. LORD SKELMERSDALE.
The Rt. Hon. LORD STANLEY, M.P. The Rt. Hon. LORD STANLEY of Alderley.
The Rt. Hon. LORD STANLEY, M.P. SIR PHILIP DE MALPAS GREY EGERTON
The Rt. Rev. The Lord BISHOP of CHICHESTER. GEORGE CORNWALL LEGH, Esq., M.P.
The Rt. Rev. The Lord BISHOP of MANCHESTER. JOHN WILSON PATTEN, Esq., M.P.
MISS ATHERTON, Kersall Cell.

Council.

JAMES CROSSLEY, Esq., F.S.A., President.
REV. F. R. RAINES, M.A., F.S.A., Hon. Canon of Manchester, Vice-President.
WILLIAM BEAMONT. THOMAS HEYWOOD, F.S.A.
The Very REV. GEORGE HULL BOWERS, D.D., Dean of Manchester. W. A. HULTON.
REV. JOHN BOOKER, M.A., F.S.A. REV. JOHN HOWARD MARSDEN, B.D., Canon of Manchester, Disney Professor of Classical Antiquities, Cambridge.
REV. THOMAS CORSER, M.A., F.S.A. REV. JAMES RAINE, M.A.
JOHN HARLAND, F.S.A.
EDWARD HAWKINS, F.R.S., F.S.A., F.L.S. ARTHUR H. HEYWOOD, Treasurer. WILLIAM LANGTON, Hon. Secretary.

RULES OF THE CHETHAM SOCIETY.

1. That the Society shall be limited to three hundred and fifty members.
2. That the Society shall consist of members being subscribers of one pound annually, such subscription to be paid in advance, on or before the day of general meeting in each year. The first general meeting to be held on the 23rd day of March, 1843, and the general meeting in each year afterwards on the 1st day of March, unless it should fall on a Sunday, when some other day is to be named by the Council.
3. That the affairs of the Society be conducted by a Council, consisting of a permanent President and Vice-President, and twelve other members, including a Treasurer and Secretary, all of whom shall be elected, the first two at the general meeting next after a vacancy shall occur, and the twelve other members at the general meeting annually.
4. That any member may compound for his future subscriptions by the payment of ten pounds.
5. That the accounts of the receipts and expenditure of the Society be audited annually, by three auditors, to be elected at the general meeting; and that any member who shall be one year in arrear of his subscription, shall no longer be considered as belonging to the Society.
6. That every member not in arrear of his annual subscription, be entitled to a copy of each of the works published by the Society.
7. That twenty copies of each work shall be allowed to the editor of the same, in addition to the one to which he may be entitled as a member.

Applications and communications to be addressed to the President, 6, Booth Street, Piccadilly, Manchester, or to the Hon. Secretary, Manchester and Salford Bank, Mosley Street, Manchester.

Publications of the Chetham Society.

- FOR THE YEAR 1843-4.
- VOL.
- I. Travels in Holland, the United Provinces, England, Scotland, and Ireland, 1634-1635. By Sir William Brereton, Bart. Edited by EDWARD HAWKINS, Esq., F.R.S., F.S.A., F.L.S. pp. viii, 206.
- II. Tracts relating to Military Proceedings in Lancashire during the Great Civil War. Edited and Illustrated from Contemporary Documents by GEORGE ORMEROD, D.C.L., F.R.S., F.S.A., F.G.S., author of "The History of Cheshire." pp. xxxii, 372.
- III. Chester's Triumph in Honor of her Prince, as it was performed upon St. George's Day 1610, in the foresaid Citie. Reprinted from the original edition of 1610, with an Introduction and Notes. Edited by the Rev. THOMAS CORSER, M.A. pp. xviii, 36.
- 1844-5.
- IV. The Life of Adam Martindale, written by himself, and now first printed from the original manuscript in the British Museum. Edited by the Rev. RICHARD PARKINSON, B.D., Canon of Manchester. pp. xvi, 246.
- V. Lancashire Memorials of the Rebellion, 1715. By SAMUEL HIBBERT-WARE, M.D., F.R.S.E., &c. pp. x, 56, and xxviii, 292.
- VI. Potts's Discovery of Witches in the county of Lancaster. Reprinted from the original edition of 1613; with an Introduction and Notes by JAMES CROSSLEY, Esq. pp. lxxx, 184, 52.
- 1845-6.
- VII. Iter Lancastrense, a Poem written A.D. 1636, by the Rev. Richard James. Edited by the Rev. THOMAS CORSER, M.A. pp. cxii, 86. Folding Pedigree.
- VIII. Notitia Cestriensis, or Historical Notices of the Diocese of Chester, by Bishop Gastrell. Cheshire. Edited by the Rev. F. R. RAINES, M.A., F.S.A. Vol. I. pp. xvi, 396. Plate.
- IX. The Norris Papers. Edited by THOMAS HEYWOOD, Esq., F.S.A. pp. xxxiv, 190.
- 1846-7.
- X. The Coucher Book or Chartulary of Whalley Abbey. Edited by W. A. HULTON, Esq. Vol. I. pp. xl, 338. Plate.
- XI. The Coucher Book or Chartulary of Whalley Abbey. Vol. II. pp. 339-636.
- XII. The Moore Rental. Edited by THOMAS HEYWOOD, Esq., F.S.A. pp. lxx, 158.
- 1847-8.
- XIII. The Diary and Correspondence of Dr. John Worthington. Edited by JAS. CROSSLEY, Esq. Vol. I. pp. viii, 398.
- XIV. The Journal of Nicholas Assheton. Edited by the Rev. F. R. RAINES, M.A., F.S.A. pp. xxx, 164.
- XV. The Holy Lyfe and History of Saynt Werburge, very frutefull for all Christen People to rede. Edited by EDWARD HAWKINS, Esq. pp. xxviii, 10, 242.
- 1848-9.
- XVI. The Coucher Book or Chartulary of Whalley Abbey. Vol. III. pp. xli-liv, 637-936.
- XVII. Warrington in 1465. Edited by WILLIAM BEAMONT, Esq. pp. lxxviii, 152.
- XVIII. The Diary of the Rev. Henry Newcome, from September 30, 1661, to September 29, 1663. Edited by THOMAS HEYWOOD, Esq., F.S.A. pp. xl, 242.
- 1849-50.
- XIX. Notitia Cestriensis. Vol. II. Part I. Lancashire, Part I. pp. iv, 160, xxviii.
- XX. The Coucher Book or Chartulary of Whalley Abbey. Vol. IV. (Conclusion). pp. lv-lxiii, 937-1314.
- XXI. Notitia Cestriensis. Vol. II. Part II. Lancashire, Part II. pp. lxxvii, 161-352. Plate.
- 1850-1.
- XXII. Notitia Cestriensis. Vol. II. Part III. Lancashire, Part III. (Conclusion). pp. 353-621.
- XXIII. A Golden Mirrour; containinge certaine pithie and figurative visions prognosticating good fortune to England, &c. By Richard Robinson of Alton. Reprinted from the only known copy of the original edition of 1589 in the British Museum, with an Introduction and Notes by the Rev. THOMAS CORSER, M.A., F.S.A. pp. xxii, 10, 96.
- XXIV. Chetham Miscellanies. Vol. I. Edited by WILLIAM LANGTON, Esq.: containing Papers connected with the affairs of Milton and his Family. Edited by J. F. MARSH, Esq. pp. 46. Plate.
- Epistolary Reliques of Lancashire and Cheshire Antiquaries, 1653-73. Communicated by GEORGE ORMEROD, D.C.L., F.R.S., F.S.A., and F.G.S. pp. 16.
- Calendars of the Names of Families which entered their several Pedigrees in the successive Heraldic Visitations of the County Palatine of Lancaster. Communicated by GEORGE ORMEROD, D.C.L., F.R.S., F.S.A., and F.G.S. pp. 26.
- A Fragment, illustrative of Sir Wm. Dugdale's Visitation of Lancashire. From a MS. in the possession of the Rev. F. R. RAINES, M.A., F.S.A. pp. 8.

vol.

Autobiographical Tracts of Dr. John Dee, Warden of the College of Manchester. Edited by JAMES CROSSLEY, Esq. pp. iv, 84.

Visitation temp. Hen. VIII. The Abbaye of Whawley (for insertion in Whalley Coucher Book).

1851-2.

XXV. Cardinal Allen's Defence of Sir William Stanley's Surrender of Deventer. Edited by THOMAS HEYWOOD, Esq., F.S.A. pp. c, 38.

XXVI. The Autobiography of Henry Newcome, M.A. Edited by RD. PARKINSON, D.D., F.S.A. Vol. I. pp. xxv, 184.

XXVII. The Autobiography of Henry Newcome, M.A. Vol. II. (Conclusion). pp. 185-390.

1852-3.

XXVIII. The Jacobite Trials at Manchester in 1694. Edited by WILLIAM BRAMONT, Esq. pp. xc, 132.

XXIX. The Stanley Papers, Part I. The Earls of Derby and the Verse Writers and Poets of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. By THOMAS HEYWOOD, Esq., F.S.A. pp. 64.

XXX. Documents relating to the Priory of Penwortham, and other Possessions in Lancashire of the Abbey of Evesham. Edited by W. A. HULTON, Esq. pp. lxxviii, 136.

1853-4.

XXXI. The Stanley Papers, Part II. The Derby Household Books, comprising an account of the Household Regulations and Expenses of Edward and Henry, third and fourth Earls of Derby; together with a Diary, containing the names of the guests who visited the latter Earl at his houses in Lancashire: by William Farrington, Esq., the Comptroller. Edited by the Rev. F. R. RAINES, M.A., F.S.A. pp. xcviii, 247. Five Plates.

XXXII. The Private Journal and Literary Remains of John Byrom. Edited by RICHARD PARKINSON, D.D., F.S.A. Vol. I. Part I. pp. x, 320. Portrait.

XXXIII. Lancashire and Cheshire Wills and Inventories from the Ecclesiastical Court, Chester. The First Portion. Edited by the Rev. G. J. PICCORS, M.A. pp. vi, 196.

1854-5.

XXXIV. The Private Journal and Literary Remains of John Byrom. Vol. I. Part II. pp. 321-639.

XXXV. The House and Farm Accounts of the Shuttleworths of Gawthorpe Hall. Edited by JOHN HARLAND, Esq., F.S.A. Part I. pp. 232. Frontispiece.

XXXVI. The Diary and Correspondence of Dr. John Worthington. Vol. II. Part I. pp. 248.

1855-6.

XXXVII. Chetham Miscellanies. Vol. II. Edited by WILLIAM LANGTON, Esq.: containing The Rights and Jurisdiction of the County Palatine of Chester, the Earls Palatine, the Chamberlain, and other Officers. Edited by JOSEPH BROOKS YATES, F.A.S., G.S., and P.S. pp. 37.

The Scottish Field. (A Poem on the Battle of Flodden.) Edited by JOHN ROBSON, Esq. pp. xv, 28.

Examynatyons towcheynge Cokeye More, Temp. Hen. VIII. in a dispute between the Lords of the Manors of Middleton and Radclyffe. Communicated by the Rev. F. R. RAINES, M.A., F.S.A. pp. 30.

A History of the Ancient Chapel of Denton, in Manchester Parish. By the Rev. JOHN BOOKER, M.A., F.S.A. pp. viii, 148. Three Plates.

A Letter from John Bradshawe of Gray's Inn to Sir Peter Legh of Lyme. Edited by WILLIAM LANGTON, Esq. pp. 5.

Facsimile of a Deed of Richard Bussel to Church of Evesham (for insertion in vol. xxx).

XXXVIII. Bibliographical Notices of the Church Libraries of Turton and Gorton bequeathed by Humphrey Chetham. Edited by GILBERT J. FRENCH, Esq. pp. 199. Illustrated Title.

XXXIX. The Farington Papers. Edited by Miss FFARINGTON. pp. xvi, 179. Five plates of Signatures.

1856-7.

XL. The Private Journal and Literary Remains of John Byrom. Vol. II. Part I. pp. 326 and two Indexes.

XLI. The House and Farm Accounts of the Shuttleworths of Gawthorpe Hall. Part II. pp. 233-472. Portrait.

XLII. A History of the Ancient Chapels of Didsbury and Chorlton, in Manchester Parish, including Sketches of the Townships of Didsbury, Withington, Burnage, Heaton Norris, Reddish, Levenshulme, and Chorlton-cum-Hardy: together with Notices of the more Ancient Local Families, and Particulars relating to the Descent of their Estates. By the Rev. JOHN BOOKER, M.A., F.S.A. pp. viii, 337.

Seven Illustrations.

1857-8.

XLIII. The House and Farm Accounts of the Shuttleworths of Gawthorpe Hall. Part III pp. x, 473-776.

XLIV. The Private Journal and Literary Remains of John Byrom. Vol. II. Part II. pp. 327-654; Byrom Pedigrees, pp. 41 and three folding sheets; Index, pp. v.

XLV. Miscellanies: being a selection from the Poems and Correspondence of the Rev. Thos. Wilson, B.D., of Clitheroe. With Memoirs of his Life. By the Rev. CANON RAINES, M.A., F.S.A. pp. xc, 230. Two Plates.

1858-9.

- XLVI. The House and Farm Accounts of the Shuttleworths of Gawthorpe Hall. Part IV. (Conclusion). pp. 777-1171.
- XLVII. A History of the Ancient Chapel of Birch, in Manchester Parish, including a Sketch of the Township of Rusholme: together with Notices of the more Ancient Local Families, and Particulars relating to the Descent of their Estates. By the Rev. JOHN BOOKER, M.A., F.S.A. pp. viii, 255. Four Plates.
- XLVIII. A Catalogue of the Collection of Tracts for and against Popery (published in or about the reign of James II.) in the Manchester Library founded by Humphrey Chetham; in which is incorporated, with large Additions and Bibliographical Notes, the whole of Peck's List of the Tracts in that Controversy, with his References. Edited by THOMAS JONES, Esq. B.A. Part I. pp. xii, 256.

1859-60.

- XLIX. The Lancashire Lieutenancy under the Tudors and Stuarts. The Civil and Military Government of the County, as illustrated by a series of Royal and other Letters; Orders of the Privy Council, the Lord Lieutenant, and other Authorities, &c., &c. Chiefly derived from the Shuttleworth MSS. at Gawthorpe Hall, Lancashire. Edited by JOHN HARLAND, Esq., F.S.A. Part I. pp. cxx, 96. Seven Plates.
- L. The Lancashire Lieutenancy under the Tudors and Stuarts. Part II. (Conclusion). pp. 97-333.
- LI. Lancashire and Cheshire Wills and Inventories from the Ecclesiastical Court, Chester. The Second Portion. pp. vi, 283.

1860-1.

- LII. Collectanea Anglo-Poetica: or, A Bibliographical and Descriptive Catalogue of a portion of a Collection of Early English Poetry, with occasional Extracts and Remarks Biographical and Critical. By the Rev. THOMAS CORSER, M.A., F.S.A., Rural Dean; Rector of Stand, Lancashire; and Vicar of Norton, Northamptonshire. Part I. pp. xi, 208.
- LIII. Mamecestre: being Chapters from the early recorded History of the Barony, the Lordship or Manor, the Vill Borough or Town, of Manchester. Edited by JOHN HARLAND, Esq., F.S.A. Vol. I. pp. 207. Frontispiece.
- LIV. Lancashire and Cheshire Wills and Inventories from the Ecclesiastical Court, Chester. The Third Portion. (Conclusion). pp. v, 272.

1861-2.

- LV. Collectanea Anglo-Poetica. Part II. pp. vi, 209-456.
- LVI. Mamecestre. Vol. II. pp. 209-431.
- LVII. Chetham Miscellanies. Vol. III. Edited by WILLIAM LANGTON, Esq.: containing
On the South Lancashire Dialect, with Biographical Notices of John Collier, the author of Tim Bobbin. By THOS. HEYWOOD, Esq. pp. 84
Rentale de Cokersand: being the Bursar's Rent Roll of the Abbey of Cokersand, in the County Palatine of Lancaster, for the year 1501. Printed from the Original. Edited by the Rev. F. R. RAINES, M.A., F.S.A. pp. xviii, 46.
The Names of all the Gentlemen of the best callinge wthin the countye of Lancastre, whereof choyse ys to be made of a c^ten number to lend vnto her Ma^ys moneye vpon privie seals in Janvarye 1588. From a manuscript in the possession of the Rev. F. R. RAINES, M.A., F.S.A. pp. 9.
Some Instruction given by William Booth Esquire to his stewards John Carington and William Rowcrofte, upon the purchase of Warrington by Sir George Booth Baronet and William Booth his son, A.D. MDCXVIII. Communicated by WILLIAM BEAMONT, Esq. pp. 8.
Letter from Sir John Seton, Manchester y^e 25 M^ch, 1643. Edited by THOMAS HEYWOOD, Esq., F.S.A. pp. 15.
The Names of eight hundred inhabitants of Manchester who took the oath of allegiance to Charles II. in April, 1679. Communicated by JOHN HARLAND, F.S.A. pp. 8.
The Pole Booke of Manchester, May y^e 22^d 1690. Edited by WILLIAM LANGTON, Esq. pp. 43. Map and folding Table.

1862-3.

- LVIII. Mamecestre. Vol. III. (Conclusion). pp. xi, 433-627.
- LIX. A History of the Chantries within the County Palatine of Lancaster: being the Reports of the Royal Commissioners of Henry VIII., Edward VI., and Queen Mary. Edited by the Rev. F. R. RAINES, M.A., F.S.A. Vol. I. pp. xxxix, 168.
- LX. A History of the Chantries within the County Palatine of Lancaster, &c. Vol. II. (Conclusion). pp. 169-323.

1863-4.

- General Index to the Remains Historical and Literary published by the Chetham Society, vols. I-XXX. pp. viii, 168.
- LXI. I. Abbott's Journal. II. An Account of the Tryalls &c. in Manchester in 1694. Edited by the Rt. Rev. ALEXANDER GOSS, D.D. pp. xix, 32; xxi, 42; 5.

REMAINS HISTORICAL & LITERARY CONNECTED WITH THE PALATINE COUNTIES OF LANCASTER AND CHESTER.

PUBLISHED BY THE CHETHAM SOCIETY.

CHETHAM LIBRARY

VOL. LXI.

PRINTED FOR THE CHETHAM SOCIETY.

M.DCCC.LXIV.

C

271031

Y8A99. 10.49.16

COUNCIL FOR 1863-4.

JAMES CROSSLEY, Esq., F.S.A., PRESIDENT.

REV. F. R. RAINES, M.A., F.S.A., HON. CANON OF MANCHESTER, VICE-PRESIDENT.

WILLIAM BEAMONT.

THE VERY REV. GEORGE HULL BOWERS, D.D., DEAN OF MANCHESTER.

REV. JOHN BOOKER, M.A., F.S.A.

REV. THOMAS CORSER, M.A., F.S.A.

JOHN HARLAND, F.S.A.

EDWARD HAWKINS, F.R.S., F.S.A., F.L.S.

THOMAS HEYWOOD, F.S.A.

W. A. HULTON.

REV. JOHN HOWARD MARSDEN, B.D., CANON OF MANCHESTER, DISNEY PROFESSOR OF CLASSICAL ANTIQUITIES, CAMBRIDGE.

REV. JAMES RAINE, M.A.

ARTHUR H. HEYWOOD, TREASURER.

WILLIAM LANGTON, HON. SECRETARY.

Richard Abbott

I.

ABBOTT'S JOURNAL.

II.

THE TRIALS AT MANCHESTER
IN 1694.

EDITED BY THE
RT. REV. ALEXANDER GOSS, D.D.

PRINTED FOR THE CHETHAM SOCIETY.

M.DCCC.LXIV.

INTRODUCTION.

THE following Narrative, now published for the first time, contains an account of the apprehension, imprisonment, and release of Richard Abbott, a servant in the employ of Caryl lord Molyneux. It belongs to the period of the Revolution. The manuscript, written in the current hand of the time, occupies part of a small duodecimo volume, nearly one half of which is devoted to a miscellaneous collection of receipts for salves, plasters, and medicines, being, in fact, a sort of domestic Pharmacopœia. On the vacant pages have been registered various Roman Catholic baptisms and other religious memoranda, by the priests officiating at Croston Hall,¹ at a period when the exercise of their ministry was forbidden by law.

On a fly leaf the following entries, referring to Mr. Richard Abbott, are written in the same hand as the body of the manuscript, but with less durable ink. "On Whitsunday y^e 15 of May, in the (year) of our Lord 1692, I was married to Mis Jane Prince, aged 23 years 7 months 11 days." Below this: "On Whitsunday y^e 15 of May in y^e year of our Lord 1692, I was married to Mr. Richard Abbott, I being att y^t time aged 23 year: 7 months, and 11 days." There are three entries that refer to his housekeeping after the date of his marriage. The first records that his wife had taken lodgings: "Thursday y^e 27th of April 1693, my wife came to table with Matt: Pluckington, and is to pay 7*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.* per annum." But the erasure of this note with the addition of the following, would seem to imply a change in his household arrangements: "August y^e 19th 1693, my wife went to house to pay 4*l.* p^r ann^m." This arrangement, however, does not seem to have been of long continuance, for another entry states that on the 24th of February (94), which is 1695 according to our present style of reckoning, she went to table at 7*l.* per annum. Three years later there is a further entry recording that "Monday y^e 29th of August wife went to table at Rich: Hartleys (98)." From a subsequent entry — "15th May 1727 beene married 35 years" — it appears that he was still alive in 1727.

¹ This property passed by marriage from the Ashtons to the Traffords. The present proprietor, Randolphus de Trafford, Esq., has pulled down the old Hall, and built a handsome mansion from the designs of E. W. Pugin, Esq.

When to these particulars we add that Mr. Abbott entered the service of Lord Molyneux as soon as his years rendered him capable thereof, and that he had been fourteen years in his service when apprehended at Liverpool, we know all about him that has been thought worthy of record. His imprisonment had the effect of making him prize his liberty; for on a fly leaf he has copied "honest Abraham Cowley's prayer:"

for the few Hours of life allotted me give me Great God but bread and liberty ; i'll beg no more, if more thour't pleas'd to give i'll thankfully that overplus receive ;
 if beyond that no more be freely sent ille thank for this and goe away content.

Two other moral lessons he has set down for his guidance, which are authenticated by his initials R. A. They help to show that he was a better Christian than scholar :

In all thy glory
 Memento mory.
 for no envie no reveng
 no rage no pride no lust nor vengeance should our actions gide.

Abbott's narrative of his imprisonment reveals the barbarous hardships to which prisoners were in former times subjected in gaol whilst awaiting their trial; and the difficulty of procuring his liberation shows the perils to which the liberties of the nation were exposed at the trying crisis of the Revolution. Its principal value, however, consists in its complete refutation of the statement made by Richard Kingston in his True History, that Abbott was apprehended at Coventry in company with Lunt, the notorious informer against the Lancashire gentry at the Manchester trials, in the August of 1689, as he was returning northwards from London; that whilst in confinement there, they were visited by Charles Cawson, the master of the pink which had brought Mr. Lunt and Mr. Threlfall from Ireland, who was in custody for that offence; and that both, after being examined by the Privy Council, were committed to Newgate for treasonable practices in November 1689.²

Dr. Kingston, who was a Court scribe and a pensioner of King William, must have had a purpose to serve in falsifying these facts. In a petition to the clerk of the Privy Council in 1699 he complains that 600*l.*, arrears of pension, were then owing to him; and he sets forth that he had printed thirteen books on the Government behalf at his own cost, and that he had been a witness in the conviction of three several traitors, &c.³ Now Abbott's narrative shows that he was apprehended on the 15th of April 1689, and after five weeks' imprisonment was freed on bail; that he surrendered himself to a King's messenger on the 2nd of July; that on the 3rd he set out across the country to London, which he reached on the 11th; that he remained in charge of his keeper till the 7th of August, when he was committed to Newgate, where he continued till the 12th of February 1690, at which date he entered into his recognizance to appear at Lancaster to take his trial at the spring assize.

A search in the Public Record Office by a friend has enabled me to verify the accuracy of Abbott's statement; for amongst the scanty memorials of 1689, a year of doing rather than of writing, is the identical letter of Mr. Thomas ² See the Jacobite Trials in 1694, edited by W. Beamont, Esq., Introduction p. xv. and p. 18, note.

³ Notes and Queries, 3rd series, vol. iii., Jan. 24, 1863, p. 76.

Tyrer, mayor of Liverpool, informing the Earl of Nottingham, Principal Secretary of State, of the apprehension, imprisonment, bail, and subsequent surrender of Abbott:

Liverpool, y^e 3d of July 1689.

Rt Hon^d Sir,

I thought convenient to give y^r Lordship an acc^t of Mr. Abbot, w^h is thus, upon y^e 17th of April last I was informed that he was imbarg^d in a small vessel for Ireland, whereupon I immediately ordered y^e custom house boat to follow him and bring him back, w^h accordingly they did, and I exai^d him (Major Gen. Kirk being present) who, I doubt not, but transmitted his examination to Whitehall, if it any way miscarried; the purport of it was thus.

He declared that a daughter of my L^d Molaneux being under a great indisposition, my L^d sent him over on purpose to wait upon her for Engl^d, in hopes that her native air might contribute to her health, that he did not go in contempt of, or disobedience to y^e Government.

I caused him to be strictly searched and found never a letter about him, and when I had kept him five weeks in prison, I writ to y^e Recorder of Wigan (our own Recorder being at London) to know his opinion whether or no he wasailable, his answer was in y^e affirmative, so that I took sufficient bail for his appearance if y^e Government sh^d remand him, and when the Messenger came, one of his bondsmen went to Crocksteth to him and he immediately redelivered himself. I have truly (as to the merits of the affair) stated it to y^r L^p and send it you together w y^e service of y^r L^p's most humble servant,

THOS. TYRER,

To the Earl of Nottingham,
Principal Sec^y of State.

Maio^r of Liverpool.

By virtue of his office, the Mayor was not only a justice of the peace for the borough, but also for the county of Lancaster. He was chairman at the Quarter Sessions of the borough, and presided at the Court of Passage, assisted by the Recorder, for the trial of civil causes, where the cause of action arose within the borough. The day of election was the feast of St. Luke, the 18th of October, and the office was held for one year. He was chosen by the votes of the free burgesses; the only restriction on the freedom of election was, that he must already be a member of the Council. Under the Municipal Reform Act the Mayor is elected by the Town Council.⁴ Mr. Tyrer enjoyed the esteem of his townsmen, for he had been Bailiff in 1681.

Two Bailiffs were elected annually by the burgesses on St. Luke's day. Their duties were very onerous, and they had to attend almost daily to public business. They acted as coroners for the borough, and as officers for the Court of Passage, the local Court of Record for the borough, at which the presence of one of them was required for the legality of the Court. They had to summon grand juries, petty juries and coroner's juries, and formerly had to act as billet-masters. The office of bailiffs was abolished by the Municipal Reform Act.⁵

Some excuse for the imprisonment of an apparently innocent man must be sought in the temper of the times. Fear and hatred had disordered the understanding of the nation. The people were kept in constant alarm by rumours of French invasion and the dread of pillage, whilst rival politicians sought to advance the interests of their party by affecting a solicitude for the safety of their royal master. Any slander, however monstrous, if only well timed, obtained belief; and the most abandoned wretches, when begging and swindling failed, raised themselves from poverty to riches, and from obscurity to renown, by bearing false witness against their neighbour.

⁴ History of Liverpool: Brooke, p. 197; Baines, p. 638.

⁵ Ibid. Brooke, p. 202; Baines, pp. 356, 638.

The Government was not likely to view without suspicion the intercourse of the old Cavalier party with Ireland; for news had reached London that James II. had landed in the harbour of Kinsale in the afternoon of the twelfth of March, and had been received with shouts of transport by both the Protestant and Catholic population of the neighbourhood.⁶ In England many members of the Established Church and Dissenting Congregations, with the general body of the Non-jurors, were attached to the house of Stuart both from principle and affection. Though the latter disliked the Catholic tendencies of James, it was thought that some remedy might have been devised for the protection of the National Church without disturbing the legal succession of the Crown. If the loyalty of the Catholics had not been well tested during the Civil War—when not one of them, rich or poor, joined the rebels⁷—it was not doubted that the profession of their faith by James would render them anxious for his return. Yet it is a strange fact that they remained quiet both during the actual invasion of Ireland and the meditated invasion of ⁶ History of England, Macaulay, vol. iv.

⁷ MS. in possession of the Editor.

England, considering, as they did, that their allegiance was due to the exiled rather than to the reigning monarch. Perhaps their national prejudices against the French were greater than their zeal for James, and they disdained to co-operate with the enemies of their country even for the restoration of a king professing their own faith. We know that a similar feeling led Russell to declare, at the very time that he was under Jacobite influence, that, if he met the French fleet, he would sink it, though James was on board. It is to the credit of the Catholic body that not any Catholic, or at least any Catholic of note, was engaged in either of the plots which were subsequently formed for the assassination of William.⁸ The very first year of his reign which brought toleration, such as it was,⁹ to others, only riveted their chains the faster. The 1st William and Mary, c. 9, removed all Catholics from London and Westminster under pain of forfeiting and suffering as popish recusant convicts, and the 1st William and Mary, c. 15, authorised any two justices to warrant the search and seizure of all arms and ammunition in the house or possession of any papist, and of any horse above the value of 5*l.* for the use of the king.

These statutes were not allowed to remain a dead letter as in more modern times, but were rigorously enforced by the representatives of the Crown. There is a letter in the Record Office from Charles Lord Gerard of Brandon, ⁸ Butler's Historical Memoirs of English Catholics, vol. iii.

⁹ History of England, Macaulay, vol. iv.

Lieutenant of Lancashire, to the Earl of Shrewsbury, Principal Secretary of State, which exhibits the keenness of that nobleman in this ignoble pursuit.

Preston, June 23rd.

My Lord,

I have received y^r Lordship's letter and am very glad that the Parliament are taking such measures for securing the Papists, which I thought so necessary that I have already issued my warrants for securing the whole party, and I hope by tomorrow night to have a good account of them. I have made discoveries of more horses and armes than what has been already seized.

This countey is very unanimous for the King's service, and I think there is not a better militia in England. As for the horses, I think it would be much for His Majesty's service to mount the honest Protestants of this countey upon them, but of this I will write more fully to y^r Lordship in my next.

The papers w^h were sent from Lancaster were seized by one Mr. Kirby whom I sent downe from London, and I hope he will be encouraged. I am with all respect

Y^r Lordship's most faithfull and most obedient servant

To the R^t Hon^{ble}

C. BRANDON.

the Earle of Shrewsbury, Principal Secretary of State.

With such a spirit abroad we are more surprised at Abbott's release than at his imprisonment, and it is probable that he owed his liberty not so much to a belief of his innocence as to the success of William's arms in Ireland; for the battle of the Boyne freed him from all further solicitude.

Besides Abbott one Richard Shuttleworth is named in the order for their detention in Newgate. Both are said to "stand charged for high treason in levying of war against their majesties," but no specific act is alleged, nor does Abbott's Journal make any further mention of him. From the Public Record Office, however, we learn that he was employed in bringing over from Ireland to the partisans of James in England commissions, letters and papers; that he was seized as soon as he landed from a wherry on the Welsh coast, and committed to Chester Castle. The letters are so graphic that they deserve to be reproduced. The first two are from the Earl of Meath, who had succeeded his brother the third Earl in 1684. He was the son of Edward Brabazon, the second Earl, and Mary, younger daughter of Calcot Chambers Esq. of Denbigh in Wales, and Carnowe, county of Wicklow in Ireland. At the battle of the Boyne he had the command of a regiment, and was wounded in the subsequent attack on Limerick. He was Ranger of the Phoenix Park in Dublin, and died in 1707. The other is from Morgan, the Governor of Chester Castle. It is a pity he did not incorporate in his letter the particulars of Shuttleworth's examination: it was no doubt forwarded in a separate form.

Denbigh, June y^e 20th, but y^e post goes not hence till tomorrow.

My Lord,

There was a wherry landed upon this coast y^e 18th of y^e month purposely to sett on shore Richard Shuttleworth; he was apprehended and sent to this Towne. I examined him and y^e boat's crew generally; and by some of the boatmen I was acquainted y^t Shuttleworth had a Red Portmantle w^h when he expected being seized he threw among some Russhes, upon w^h I sent a guard with one of the boatmen who landed Shuttleworth to look for this portmantle, and it fell into y^e hands of Mr. Thomas Carter, w^h emediatly I sent for; but his answer was y^t finding many papers, commissions and two little bookes w^h serves for a key to these papers, he sent an Expresse by his one servant to y^e King with them.

I have Shuttleworth and y^e boat's crew in safe custody; and resolve to see them delivered tomorrow to y^e Governor of Chester, and with them there Examinations; and just now I am taking horse for Sn^t Aseph, where I am told I shall discover more of this sort. I have sent a strong party, somme mounted, somme on foote, to search three houses neere y^e sea by Conaway, w^{ch} houses belongs to Papists, and I am informed has sheltered severall Irish at there landing, and harboured considerable numbers till they gott Passages for Ireland. The Party I have sent will secure y^e masters of these houses, and all suspected persons there abouts, and make diligent search for papers or any thing y^t may be of servisse to King William's interest.

Y^{re} Lordp^s most obedient servant,

MEATH.

This 20th instant y^e party setts out to search y^e Papists' houses.
To the Right Hon^{ble} y^e Earle of Shrewsberry, Principle Secretary of State.

Chester, y^e 22th of June (89).

My Lord,

Last night I brought to this Towne y^e boat's crew (all but one) who I sent with some of my officers and men to search some suspected houses; and hope by the next to give y^r Lords^p a good acc^t of whatt they are sent about. Richard Shuttleworth and y^e boats crew I delivered into y^e safe custody of y^e Governor heere, with there Examinations, w^h by this post the Governor despatches to y^r Lords^p.

The commissions, lett^{rs} and papers w^h came with these men in a wheȳ from Ireland were throne amongst Russhes under a stone [illegible] and in ditchesse, but found by Mr. Carter's search. Early and late, it shall be my care and duty to have y^e Welsh coast narroly and strictly guarded, and daily endeavour to prove myselfe in His Maj^{ties} servisse as becomes a Loyal subject.

Y^r Lordsp^s obedient servant,
MEATH.

To the Right Hon^{ble} y^e Earle of Shrewsbury, Principle Secretary of State,
Whitehall, London.

Chester Castle, June 22, 1689.

May it please youre Lordsp^s,

.

The portmantle w^h was sent up by Mr. Carter I suppose may give y^{rs} Lordsp^s greate light upon the affaires in Ireland. I heere send y^r Lordsp^s a coppye of the examination of the prisoners who were taken in the boate and who are now in the Castle.

I have now as many prisoners in this Castle as I have men to guard them; truly, my Lord, the trust is greate, and I shall endeavour to discharge it with all diligence. I hope y^{rs} Lordsp^s will please speake to his majesty that I may have heere two independent companyes or at least one consisting of a hundred who may constantly lye in the Castle, for realy there are so many roman Catholicks who thrust themselves into regiments that if it s^d happen that some disaffected officer sh^d allot me such a garde, they may betray mee and set the prisoners at libertye.

Yours Lordsp^s most obedient humble servant,

JOHN MORGAN.

To the Right Hon^{ble} the L^d of Shrewsbury, Principall Secretary of State, Whitehall.

I can add little more to these scanty notices to enable the reader to realize the state of the country, when this narrative was written. The history of the statesmen who are mentioned in connection with public affairs, belongs rather to the general historian than to the editor of Abbott's Journal. Still one can hardly pass over the names of these celebrities without some notice. There were amongst them men of consummate ability, but their talents were obscured by the absence of principle. At no period of our history did statesmen stand so low. Office was sought for the lust of gain rather than the love of power, and men strove to grasp the highest honours the Crown could bestow, in order to fill their purses rather than to gratify an honourable ambition. Not to be treacherous, unpatriotic, corrupt, was a rare distinction for a statesmen in those times.¹⁰ Under Charles II. some of the boldest speakers in the House of Commons were in the pay of France; and after the Revolution, statesmen, soldiers and sailors, whilst they ate the bread of William, were negotiating for the return of James, or they sold at Whitehall what they had been paid for at St. Germain. William, whilst affecting to hate bribery, did not scruple to practise it. He considered that every man had his price, and that the services of a statesman, like those of a valet, could be hired in the market by the highest bidder. It soon became a proverb, writes Lord Macaulay, that a Parliament resembled a pump: if a few thousand pounds were poured in as bribes, millions would gush out in the shape of supplies. There was a market for votes at the Treasury, as there was for cattle at Smithfield; and to distribute bribes was not thought to deprive a man of the title of an upright and honourable politician, though it would have been thought shameful to receive them.¹¹ Such were the men in whose hands the liberty, the fortunes, and the life of Richard Abbott, were placed.

¹⁰ Knight's Popular History.

The Privy Councillors who signed the warrant for his commitment, were Nottingham, Shrewsbury, Robert Howard, Henry Capel, Richard Hampden, and J. Boscowen.

Daniel Finch, Earl of Nottingham, bore amongst wits the name of Dismal, from his dark complexion and harsh features. Though in the secret to bring in the Prince of Orange, he shrank from taking an active part in the Rebellion; yet, when named Secretary of State, he did not hesitate to serve the new Sovereign. He was a zealous advocate for the retention of the Test Act, but purposed to extend toleration to any person who took the oaths of allegiance and supremacy, and subscribed a declaration against Transubstantiation — conditions which excluded all Catholics, to whom, in fact, the bill declared that it did not intend to grant the smallest indulgence. Lord Macaulay calls him a bigot, a formalist, and narrow-minded. In 1693, on the appointment of Russell as First Lord of the Admiralty, he resigned the seals of office, and retired into private life, a much richer man than he had been five years before.

Shrewsbury was the other Secretary of State. His manners were easy and gracious, his temper sweet and bland; but he was without principle. He was one of the seven revolutionary chiefs who signed the requisition to the Prince of Orange to seize the English throne; but failing to find his hopes realized, he entered into secret negotiations with James, and resigned the seals of office in 1690. In 1694 he again accepted them at the earnest solicitation of the King, who showed him that he had become acquainted with his intrigues with the Jacobites, and he was subsequently named one of the Lords Justices appointed to administer the government during the King's absence in the Netherlands. But he was an unhappy man, and again retired from office in 1697.

¹¹ History of England, Macaulay.

Sir Robert Howard, one of the Berkshire branch of that great family, was a Privy Councillor and member of Parliament for Castle Rising. He was a staunch Whig, and exerted himself lustily in behalf of Oates, when the Lords had rejected his appeal in a writ of error; and backed Sacheverell in his attempt to disqualify for municipal office, for the space of seven years, any functionary who had been a party to the surrender of the franchises of a borough.

Sir Henry Capel, brother of that Earl of Essex who died by his own hand in the Tower, was one of the Lords of the Treasury at this epoch. He was subsequently named to be one of the Lords Justices to whom the government of Ireland was entrusted. By Lord Macaulay he is called "a zealous Whig, very little disposed to show indulgence to the Papists."

Richard Hampden, son of the leader of the Long Parliament, was another Whig member of the House of Commons who sat at the Treasury Board. He had been Chairman of the House of Commons, when the throne was declared vacant by the supposed abdication of James. He was subsequently appointed Chancellor of the Exchequer.

To these must be added Carmarthen, Halifax, and Russell, who signed the warrant for Abbott's further detention in Newgate.

Thomas Osborne, Earl of Danby, Marquis of Carmarthen, and subsequently Duke of Leeds, was one of the many statesmen who, at the Revolution, struggled, with unscrupulous violence, for office, and when attained clung to it, in spite of vexations, humiliations and dangers, with desperate tenacity. In the reign of Charles he had been Lord Treasurer, and had not scrupled to bid for popularity by putting down every species of Sectarianism and Dissent, and raising the cry of "No Popery." In 1689, the period of which we are treating, he was made President of the Council. Lord Macaulay says of him, that he was greedy of wealth and honours, daring and unscrupulous, corrupt himself and a corrupter of others; lax in principle; insatiably ambitious and covetous; and that out of grants, pardons, and bribes, he had accumulated a princely fortune.

George Savile, Marquess of Halifax, was another of those versatile statesmen, who, in this corrupt age, sought to retain power by trimming between the two great factions which divided the state. He held office under Charles and James and William. Taunted by his enemies as an atheist, he preferred to lose office rather than vote for the repeal of the Test Act, and he laboured strenuously for the passing of an act banishing for life all Catholics, whose rental exceeded one hundred pounds per annum,¹² though he had shewn himself averse to the shedding of their blood. At the time of Abbott's imprisonment he was Lord Privy Seal.

Edward Russell, afterwards Earl of Orford, whom I suppose to be the Russell that signed the warrant for Abbott's further detention, was so far trusted by William, as to be appointed one of the Council of nine, before he set out for Ireland. He had been in the household of James, but joined in the invitation to the Prince of Orange to invade England, and landed with him at Torbay. Though false to William, and holding communication with James, he did his duty at the battle of La Hogue, where the partisans of James expected to have had his assistance. It must be on account of his practices with the Jacobites, and his undertaking to effect, by means of the fleet, what had been effected, in the preceding generation, by means of the army, that Lord Macaulay draws so dark a picture of him. Whilst admitting that he was a man of undoubted ability and capacity, the historian alleges that he was of loose principles and turbulent temper; that he was daring, unquiet and vindictive, proud, acrimonious, restless and violent, insolent, malignant, greedy, faithless, false, arrogant, wayward, intolerant, passionate, rude, emphatically a bad man and a villain.¹³

¹² Lingard, vol. x. p. 4.

¹³ Vols. ii. and vi.

Another Government officer who had a share in Abbott's apprehension, was the notorious Major-General Kirk. No doubt, he had been sent down with his "lambs" to crush any manifestation of disaffection in Lancashire, a county teeming with Jacobites. He may have been in Liverpool for the purpose of making preparations to sail for the relief of Londonderry. He is described as a rough soldier who had formerly commanded the garrison at Tangier, a regiment now known as the second of the line. Lingard, speaking of the execution by martial law of the prisoners taken after the battle of Sedgemoor in Monmouth's rebellion, says that stories were related of his wanton and unfeeling barbarity, which, if true, ought to have rendered him an object of horror to every human being, but which probably were false, since they did not prevent him from being caressed and distinguished by the Prince who expelled James from the throne. Yet Lord Macaulay confesses that "it is difficult to understand why the Government should have selected for a post of the highest importance an officer generally and justly hated, who had never shewn eminent talents for war, and who both in Africa and England had notoriously tolerated amongst his soldiers a licentiousness, not only shocking to humanity, but also incompatible with discipline." The detail of his cruelties at Taunton is too disgusting for insertion.

The reader will rise from the perusal of this volume with a feeling of thankfulness, that he can travel through the length and breadth of the land without the aid of a pass, and that he can take shipping at Liverpool for a voyage, not only to Ireland but round the world, without the fear of arrest or molestation. At no period of our history has either the government, or the people, exhibited greater respect for the law, than at present, and in no country do the inhabitants enjoy greater personal freedom.

A. G.

St. Edward's College,
February 13th, 1863.

ABBOTT'S JOURNAL.

APRIL ye 13th (1689).

I was order'd by my Ld to goe for ireland to fetch over the Rt Honorable Lady Gormanston,¹ provided my passage would be without dang^r or difficulty, so haveing procur'd a pas. and the Fumbler frigate bound for Droughada² i spoak to y^e mast^r one Jump who tould me he would falle downe to y^e Rock that night: and haveing his concent i went openly aboard (and haveing no fair wind) we lay at ye Rock³ that night; the next day the Custom hous officers came to se what passing^m was in the ship; so showing my pas they permitted me, but y^e wind proving cros, we came to towne agane and went ashore:⁴ lay that night

¹ Lady Gormanston was the wife of Jernico Preston, Viscount Gormanston, of Meath, in Ireland, who was outlawed for his adherence to James II. She was a daughter of Caryl, third Viscount Sefton, also a staunch adherent of the house of Stuart. She died in 1711.

² Drogheda is 133 miles from Liverpool. During the Commonwealth it stood a siege of eight days against Cromwell. Considerable portions of the walls, with two of its gates, still remain as ruins. Lord Macaulay describes it as being, at that time, a small knot of narrow, crooked, and filthy lanes, encircled by a ditch and a mound, the houses being built of wood with high gables and projecting upper stories.

³ The Rock, known as the Black Rock, which bars the entrance of the Mersey, was anciently surmounted by a pole called the Rock Perch; but it is now surmounted by a beautiful lighthouse, eighty-six feet high, begun in 1827, whilst at the Cheshire side of the Rock has been erected a battery for the protection of the port. — Baines's Liverpool, p. 624. Troughton's Ditto.

⁴ At this date there was no dock or proper harbour. The trading vessels lay in the offing, and the cargoes had to be discharged in boats, whilst passengers had to be carried ashore on men's shoulders, as there was not even a quay.

at y^e Georg;⁵ intending to goe home earely in the morning; but about five a'clock, a ship boy came to my Chamb^r and tould me the ship was under sale, and a fare wind, so I made hast aboard y^e 2^d time; but being scars got to sea but there apear'd a boat rowing and saleing affter us with all hast, and coming up to our ship they tould me they had orders to cary me back before the Maior, and requested me to goe into ther boat; which I willingly did; but immediatly there came the king's boat with Major Gen^lall Kerk souldg^{rs}, about a dozen, who demanded me there preson^r, and cary'd me back before the Gen^lall, where after a long Examination, i was ordered to M^r Maior⁶ hous to be search'd, and notwithstanding nothing was found about, I was sent to preson, where I reman'd 5 weeks, and then M^r Maior excepted of bayle; which was M^r Luis y^e gouldsmith, and M^r Sedan each in £200; myself in tow hundered pound to apeare att there next sesions, so I was at liberty and retorned home to my duty.

But y^e 2^d of iuly came to my Ld^s⁷ M^r Luis and tould me i must goe to Leverpoll; that a mesing^r was com'd downe from London for me; so without any delay I went and surrendrd myself into the mesing^{rs} custody att M^r Bens;⁸ where I demanded to see his warrant which was as foloweth:

Copie.

Daniell Earl of Nottingham, Baron Finch of Daventry one of the Lds of his Maties Most Hono^rble Privy Councell, and principall Secretary of State.

⁵ Was this the George's coffee-house which stood, last century, on the west side of Castle-street, and was pulled down when that street was widened? — Brooke's Liverpool, p. 164.

⁶ The Mayor was Mr. Thomas Tyrer. See Introduction, p. v.

⁷ At Croxteth, as appears from Mr. Tyrer's letter to the Secretary of State; but Lord Sefton had a house called Stand Park near Sefton, to which he was accustomed to repair for the purpose of hunting and shooting. It was whilst making a call on Lord Molyneux at Stand Park, called New Stand, that William Blundell Esq. of Little Crosby, one of the Lancashire gentlemen tried at Manchester in 1694, was taken suddenly ill July 27, 1702: he died at Crosby on the second of August following. Croxteth was rebuilt by William, Lord Viscount Molyneux, who died in 1717.

⁸ Mr. James Benn was one of the bailiffs of Liverpool; Mr. Joseph Travers was April the 15th

I was made prisoner att Leverpoll for above 30 days.
Expense
5, 10, 0.

These are in his Maties name to authorize and require you forthwith to make strickt and dilligent search for Mr Allin and Mr Abbott of whom you shall have notice, and them or eyther of them having found, you are to apprehend for suspition of high Treason or Treasonable practicess, and to bring them or eyther of them in safe custody before me to be examin'd concerning suche matt^{rs} as shall be objected aganst them Relating to y^e premices, and to be further dealt with according to law. And in the due execution hereof, all Mayors, Justicess of the peace, Constables, and all other his Maties officers, sivill and military, and loveing subjects whome it may concerne are to be assisting to you as there may be occasion, and for so doing this shall be your warrant.

Given att the Court att Whitehall the 24th day off June (1689).

NOTTINGHAM.

To S^r John Talor one of his Maties mesing^{rs} in ordinary.

The 3rd of iuly we set forward for London, but was 8 days on our iorney crosing the contery to winsor about 40 miles (about) at a great charg, y^e 11th we came to london where i stayd a prisoner at y^e mesing^{rs} hous 9 days before I was examin'd by y^e Lds of the counsell affter which Examination, i was ordered bayle but still a prison^r in y^e mesing^{rs} custody, and watted daly at white hall⁹ from ofice to ofice and presented a petiōn to y^e Ld secretary to direct some person to take good bayle which i had ready but could not learne who might do it, so I got leave of my mesing^r to goe downe the other. Mr. Benn was elected Mayor in 1697. For the duties of bailiffs, see Introduction, p. vi.

Charg
3, 12, 0.

⁹ In Whitehall were the offices of the Privy Council, the Secretary of State, and the Treasury. In 1698 the entire structure, with the exception of the banqueting-house and some small portion of its buildings, was destroyed by fire. Originally it was built by Hubert de Burgh, Justiciary of England, temp. Henry III. He bequeathed it to the Black Friars, who sold it to Walter de Grey, the Archbishop of York, whose successors used it as their archiepiscopal palace, until, on the fall of Wolsey, York House passed into the possession of the Crown. It ceased to be a royal residence at the Revolution.

to Hampton Court¹⁰ with my Keep^r to request the Right Hon^{ble} Count^s of Darby¹¹ to speak to y^e Ld Nottingham on my behalf; her Honor was very kind, and commanded me to stay diner with her servants; afterward sent for me to her chamb^r, tould me she would be mindfull, and do my business effectually the first time she saw his Ldpp.

Charg
o., 9., o.

giveing her Honor most humble thanks, I returned back with cherefullnes to London.

Tow dayes after i was tould the Queen was coming to towne by watter; so made hast to attend at Back stares, where she landed, but had not then an oportunity to speak tell two or three hower after perceaveing the Lady Darby coming in her chare¹² acros the inner Court I met y^e Chare where she stopt and tould me she had not spoak then to my Ld about me, nor had any time, but would send M^r Wattkins her Gentlemⁿ usher to his Ldpp to desire him to doe me all the favor my case would alow so we went to the

¹⁰ Hampton Court was the principal residence of William and Mary. Cardinal Wolsey purchased the manor from the Knights Hospitallers, erected the palace, and presented it to his Sovereign Henry VIII. in 1526; but it was William who made it what it now is. George II. was the last king who resided there. In 1838 it was thrown open to visitors of every rank. In 1849 it was visited by one hundred and seventy thousand persons; as many as twelve thousand have passed through in one week. — Knight's London.

¹¹ Would this be Elizabeth Butler, daughter to Thomas Lord Ossory, who in July 1673 was married to William Lord Strange, ninth Earl of Derby? or Dorothea Helena, daughter of John Kirkhoven, Baron de Rupa in Holland, and maid of honour to the Queen of Bohemia, the aunt of William, who was the relict of Charles the eighth Earl of Derby? Both were living at the time; but I have no doubt, that the wife of the ninth Earl was referred to, as she was a personal friend of Queen Mary, and at the head of her household.

¹² At this time there were no foot pavements as distinguished from the carriage road, but there were lines of posts for the protection of foot passengers who, however, were forced to give way to the chairmen. Chairs were first introduced into England in the reign of James I., but they were not in common use till 1634. In the reign of William and Mary, they were first taxed by act of parliament. They must have been an invaluable protection to ladies and elderly gentlemen, at a time when crowds of idle boys were allowed to play at foot-ball and other sports, in the most crowded thoroughfares. — Knight's Popular History of England.

King's sell^r where I was to stay till his returne which was about half an hour where he brought me word I should be discharg'd shortly. Expense 0, 4, 6.

That night being a Counsell night i attended till nere midnight when a Clark came out to ask my Cristian name which put me in hopes that my business would be don; but the mesing^r being call'd on, i was impatient to know what nues; he tould me we might apeare in the morneing agane. So went to our lodgings, and to bed, but geting up earely in the morneing, which was Wednesday y^e 7. of August, I found my chamb^r duple locked and hasp^d on the outside, which made me think that things was nought; but presently the mesing^r came up with a man and tould me he had a warrant to carry me to Nugate which was as foloweth:

These are in his Maiestys name to will and require you to reave into your custody the body of Richard Abbott here with sent unto you for suspition of high Treason and him to keep in safe custody untill he shall be dischargd by due cours of Law for which this shall be your warant.

Whitehall y^e 6th day of August.

To y^e keeper of his Mai^{ty} prison of Nugate in London or his Deputy.

SHREWSBURY.
NOTINGHAM.
Ro: HOWARD.
HEN: CAPELL.
J. BOSCOWEN.
B. HAMPEEN.

So i was brought by coach to Nugate praying the mesing^r to speak favourably of me to the Maior or keep^r of that prison, and put within y^e iron dore into the press yard¹³ and so into the fees and charges in ye messing^e custody
16, 14, 0.

¹³ The Press Yard was so called from the torture anciently inflicted on criminals who refused to plead. Some writers believe this barbarous custom to have been in use before the reign of Edward I.; but from the reign of Henry IV. must be dated the cruel infliction of pressing mute criminals to death. The marshall was instructed to put them in low and dark chambers, naked except about their waists, with as

Roume calld the lodg, and there lockt up close about 3 houres, and then a man came askd if i would have any thing to eat ; I desired him get me 6^d in meat and a mug of Ale and lockt me up agane, but about an howre affter came and tould me I might have the liberty of y^e prison, which I was very glad of seeing many prisoners walking about in a walk about 15 yards long and tow brode, being all that the prison allowed night coming on I desired to know my lodging which was deferd till ten a'clock at night, then the Turnekey with his great bunch of keyes sho^d me five pare of stares over the comon prison a most stinking Roume where there was a close prisoner a Flanderian,¹⁴ spoake but little inglish, nor had y^e liberty of ever going out of the roume or other conveniences but a great chamb^r pot for both uses, my bed was hunge about with ould Cittermister Cortanes¹⁵ and hoales in them so big as I could creep much weight of iron as they could bear, and more, so that they should be unable to rise. They were to have nothing to eat but the worst bread that could be found, and nothing to drink but water, except running water, taken from the nearest place to the gaol ; but on the day on which they had bread they were to have no water, and e contra, and there they had to lie till they were dead. From humane motives a sharp stone was sometimes placed under the back, and a sufficient weight was put on them to secure speedy death. In 1585, or 1586, Margaret Clitherow had this sentence passed upon her on refusing to plead. "You must return from whence you came, and there, in the lowest part of the prison, be stripped naked, laid down on your back to the ground, and as much weight laid upon you as you are able to bear and so continue three days without any food, except a little barley bread and puddle water, and the third day to be pressed to death, your hands and feet tied to a post, and a sharp stone under your back." She was about a quarter of an hour in dying. A sharp stone, as much as a man's fist, was put under her back, and upon her was laid to the weight of seven or eight hundred weight, which breaking her ribs caused them to burst forth of the skin. — Knight's London, and Margaret Clitherow, pp. 159, 195.

¹⁴ This would be a Fleming, a native of Flanders, of whom there used to be many in England, for they taught us the art of weaving, and numbers had, no doubt, followed the fortunes of William ; but French and Austrians, as well as the Dutch, held parts of the country.

¹⁵ As early as the reign of Henry VIII. Kidderminster was noted for its manufactures. Broadcloth was the principal article then made, afterwards linsey woolseys, and, in less distant times, crapes, bombazines, and poplins were made. In 1735 the manufacture of Scotch carpeting was introduced, and subsequently Wilton carpets with a cut pile, but at present Brussels carpets with a raised pile are the most celebrated of its manufactures. — Par. Gaz.

thorow to bed, my sheets no bett^r but paid 2^s for cleane ones as bad as those I found upon the bed, my chamb^r was prety large, but the window had more bars of Iron then quarell of glass but my greatest truble was

That this lodging was over the coman prison, and a continuall noyes night and day of there Irons and chanes rattling, so the next morneing about 9 of clock when this displeasing lodging was unlockd I petition the Tornekey to lie in some other place who churlishly answerd if I liked it not I might goe to the comon side,¹⁶ so being no remedy i was content; but found more troubles attending my Apartm^t for all comon felons and roags pas^d by my chamb^r dore to y^e chapell each Sunday and the nastiness was emptied before my chamb^r window upon the leads into a place that had a holow pipe to convey it into the cenell the first time the roages pas^d I was so curious to peep thorow the key hoale and saw 40 or 15¹⁷ pas by with great irons on both men and women which added to my truble tell I was better accostomed to it.¹⁸

Thus I continued tell Octob^r and then aply^d myself for my releasement to the Ld president of the Councell by a Gentleman my great frend and his Honor^s Relation who continually soliseteing

¹⁶ The common side of the prison, the bare threat of which quietened Mr. Abbott, was a den of iniquity, in which he would have had for his companions men nurtured from infancy in the lowest depths of vice and infamy, or transformed into demons by the vilest passions. As there was no classification of prisoners, old and young, healthy and sick, clean and filthy, were all huddled together. Even within the last five and twenty years, those who sought to isolate themselves from the oaths, blasphemy, and indecent conversation of their more hardened companions, could do so only by asking to retire to the solitary cells, the same that were formerly used for condemned malefactors, which were so small, cold, dark, and ill ventilated that Howard describes the boldest criminals as struck with horror and shedding tears when brought into them. — Knight's London.

¹⁷ The MS. has fifteen, but, no doubt, it is a slip of the pen for fifty.

¹⁸ Newgate was a prison in the reign of King John; but the building in which Mr. Abbott experienced so much discomfort, erected after the great fire in 1666, no longer exists, having been partly destroyed in the Lord George Gordon riots, and partly pulled down to make room for the present edifice, erected between 1770 and 1783 from the designs of George Dance.

Charg
2,,10,,0.

and accuanteing his Ld^{PP} with my Cerconstances att last his Ld^{PP} tould his kinsman he would doe me all y^e service in his power, but advized me to pe^ttion the king and anex the Certificat which I had from the Cuntery to y^e said pe^ttion and he would delivere it himself, a kindness he said he would do for no body ells but his kinsman, acc^ordly I got a pe^ttion drawne to this Effect :

To the Kings most Excell^{tt} Ma^{tie}.
The humble Pet^tion of Ric. Abbott now a prison^r in the Presse Yard in Nugate

Sheweth

charg
0,,7,,0.

That your Pett^r who for severall years pas^t hath beene S^rvant to the Ld Molyneux in Lancas^{re} did upon nottice that a warrant was out aganst him volantly surrend^r himself to M^r Talor, one of your Ma^{ties} messings who brought him up.

That upon his Examination, nothing was found aganst him yet your pet^r (being a stranger) was committed that a further Enquiry might be maide of his cariage, demeanour and carактер.

That your Pett^{onr} never was in armes eyther by sea or land in all his life haveing beene a servant ever since his years rend^{ed} capable thereof, and wholly attended his duty therein as by a testimonyall und^r the hands of divers eminent persons boath Ecclesiastical and Civill (hereunto annex) will apeare.

And that your Pett^{onr} haveing no subsistance but his said s^rvice which by confinem^t he must unavoidably loose ; and haveing expended most of his small stock and destitute of frends heare and hath never acted nor contributed to the disturbançe of y^e government.

Your Pet^r therefore most humbly begs that your M^{tie} will be gratically pleasd to order his Enlargm^t upon Bayle or otherwyse as in your princly wisdom and clemency shall seeme meet.

And your pet^tion^r as in duty bound shall ever pray &c.

which was sent away to his Ld^{PP} att which time the king had given him leave to goe into the Cuntry to Wimlton¹⁹ for his health for 14 dayes, but nevertheless his Honor tooke my papers and sent them by his Secretary to my Ld Nottingham and tould his kinsman that my Ld Nott would do it, so in expectation of a good answere I desisted from trubling his Ld^{sh} for three weeks and more.

And haveing no account I humbly aplyd myself agane to his Ld^{sh} by the interposition of his kinsman to know what progress was made and his Honor sent me word that I should be dischargd in 2 days time to my great satisfaction this was y^e 15 day of Octobr^r (1689) being on a Tuesday: on the Friday following my Ld^s kinsmsn came himself to me in prison and tould me that on Monday following i should come out with out so much as bayle.

I humbly retornd him all the thanks in the world for all the panes he had taken in his indevours for my inlargm^t and desired to be derected by him who I might gratifie of Clarks or S^rvants to y^e Ld P. he tould me he would he^{ve} me send a Guinee to my Ld's Secretary and I did imediatly which he recevd and sent me word i should be out on Monday morning, this being Saterdag at night. I slept but little for ioy, and on Monday morneing got up earely in hops to take the are. About 9 of clock our Maior or keep^r came into the preson where I was walking and haveing a paper in his hand I perceaved the Councell seale and doutd not but it was his order to discharg me.

But contrary to my expectation he calld me to him and tould me he had receaved an order from the Ld of the Councell to this effect: verbatim

Whereas one Richard Shuttleworth²⁰ and Richard Abbott

¹⁹ Wimbledon is six miles from London by the Southampton Railway. The principal feature in the parish is the park. The common is surrounded by seats of the nobility and gentry, at the north and east angle of which is the village, consisting of one street containing many respectable houses; and in detached situations are numerous handsome seats and pleasure villas. — Lewis's Top. Dict.

²⁰ See the account of Shuttleworth's seizure, Introduction p. ix.

pd. 5^s g'nyys to keepe irones of.

now prison's in your custody stand chargd before us for high Treason in levyng of war aganst there Maj^{ties} and the govern^t; these are therefore in his Maj^{ties} name to will and require you to detane them ye s^d Rich: Shuttleworth and Richard Abbott in your said Custodye for the causes afforesaid tell they shall be dischargd by due cours of law and for soe doeing this shall be your warrant.

Whitehall the 19th day of Octobr (1689).

To the keep^r of Nugate.

CARMARTHEN. P.
HALIFAX. L. P. S.
SHREWSBURY.
NOTTINGHAM.
R. HAMPDEN.
RUSSELL.

This last warant almost discoridged me from anny further indev^{rs} for liberty.

But knowing myself innocent I sent copies of boath my Commit^{ts} to Councell the 2^d weeke of y^e tearme and there opinion was that the warants not specifying to stand chargd upon oath I might sue for a habias corpus, and that my case was baleable.

Mich. Term 89.
[In the MS.
Mich. Term is written in pencil.]

The last of October I sent to S^r Charles Ingleby²¹ who apointed me Councell and his owne Clark the Attorney and desired them to move for my habias corpus which they did the first day of Novemb^r and it was granted and my Attorney brought it to Maior Richinsoⁿ y^e 2^d.

That day I sent word to frends to desire them to stand for my Bayle, and prevald with foure sufficient housekep^{rs}, but fereing anny obiections should be, a Gentleman procurd me 2 more of his ²¹ Sir Charles Ingleby, of Lawkland, a barrister of Gray's Inn, had been baron of the Exchequer in the reign of James II. He was descended from Sir Thomas de Ingelby, justice of the King's Bench in 1377, and Catherine Ripley his wife. In 1680 he had been accused of subscribing money to bring about the murder of the king, by Bolron and Moubray, two mischievous informers, who would have rivalled Oates, if the Yorkshire juries had not refused to believe them. — Foss. vol. iv. p. 62; Depositions from York Castle, vol. xxvii. p. 49.

owne acquaintance who was all willing and sory for my long imprisonment. The fore returned to the kings Solitt^r M^r Arron Smith was

M ^r John Sharples	{	housekeep ^{rs} 22
M ^r Goreing
M ^r Turner
M ^r Clayton

and haveing ingadg'd my bayle to be at Westmst 23 by 9 of clock the 4th of Nov^r where I was caryed by my Habias Corpas in a coach with 2 keep^{rs} and put in the box, but the Attorney Gen^{all} not being there, my Councell thought it not convenient to move, so expected so long that the Court rose and so i went back to Nugate and lost that labour and charg.

The 6th haveing ingadged all my Bayle to be there I went a 2^d time in y^e like man^r and my Councell moveing that I was brought up and bayle in court and that they humbly desired it might be excepted, and conceaved that the latter commitment not specifiing that i stood chargd upon oath i might be admitted bayle.

So i was in great expectation att last one of the judgs asking the soliseter if he was satisfide that the bayle was good,

he answerd

That my Comm^t being for high Treason, I could not be admitted that liberty.²⁴

²² I have no doubt that these were Liverpool men, though they might be settled in London; for in the History of Liverpool we meet repeatedly with those surnames. A Cuthbert Sharples was mayor in 1699; a Thomas Clayton in 1680, and a William Clayton in 1689. Syers mentions a Mr. George Goring, as having had a summer cottage in Everton, which gave rise to a lawsuit between him and Mr. Case, another Liverpool celebrity. — Syers' Everton, p. 178.

²³ The Courts held at Westminster are the Queen's Bench, the Court of Exchequer, the Court of Common Pleas, the Lord Chancellor's Court, and the Rolls Court. This spot has been the seat of justice for nearly a thousand years. — Knight's London.

²⁴ Aaron Smith was at this time Solicitor of the Treasury, "It was the business of that officer to conduct political prosecutions, to collect the evidence, to instruct the Counsel for the Crown, to see that the prisoners were not liberated on insufficient bail, to see that the juries were not composed of persons hostile to the government." It will not excite the surprise of the reader to find bail refused by this "acrimonious

Judge's
Ld C Justice
houl
J. Dolbin
J. Gregory.

The charg of my Habias Corpus:
Councill and fees
to the maior
6, 13, 0.

And soe he read the Retorne of my Habias Corpas and I was orderd to be remanded by the Court back to Nugate (the 2nd time) and put within the Iron dore in the press yard and thus all my expectations was crost without any further hope of inlargm^t tell my triall which there was no present prospect of at that time, but well knowing that I had not any Gilt of me or acted anything aganst the Govern^t I was very desirous to know if there were no effectuall means to recover my liberty, and speakeing to my Attorney; he tould me not tell the tearme folowing, and thus affter a great expens I was forsd to desist, and make it my indevours to be as easey and contented as posible i could in such a condition.

Some dayes affter came to see me y^e Gentleman that had so much indevoured for to satisfie y^e Ld president of my hardsp.

And tould me that speakeing to my Ld, his Ld^{pp} tould him great matt^{rs} aganst me was aleadg'd, and that I was in the numb^r of those whome the Attorney Gen^l was to appoint a triall, and sd that it could not be long before i might expect to have my owne.

charg
s.
10, 0.

Then I made my whole indevours to gett my Certificat from my Ld Nottinghams office, thinking it nessessary and that it might prove for my advantage, but it was not to be found.

Before I had taken out a Copie and a Clarke transcribed it, and could swere it a true copie, which was as foloweth:

Liverpool, August y^e 4th 1689.

The Copie of my Certificat.

We whose names are subscribed doe certifie that wee know M^r Richard Abbott who for seven or eight years last past has served the Right Hon^{ble} Caryll Ld Viscount Molyneux. And that dureing the whole time of our accuantance with him

The saide M^r Abbott has caryed himself as a person of a modest, and unscrupulous politician," as Lord Macaulay admits him to have been, "who had been the legal adviser of Titus Oates in the days of the Popish plot, and who had been deeply implicated in the Rye House plot." — History of England, vol. iv.

peaceable, and inoffensive behaviour, nor has he (to the best of our knowledge) beene any wayes concearned as a sould^r or otherwise in any of the late raised Regiments.²⁵

	THOMAS TYRER Maior
	JOHN CHORLEY, Alld ^r man
	JAMES PRESCOT Alld ^r man
	OLIVER LYME Alld ^r man & Controul ^r	{
	of the Custom House
	THO: JOHNSON Alld ^r man
	RICH: WINDLE Alld ^r man
	WILL: ATHERTON	{
	RICH: RICHMON
	DAN: DANVERS	{
	RICH: SEDAN
	HEN: HIGINSON
	ALLIXAND ^r NORIS
Vera Copia Orig
Surtificat
I : O : 6.

Minist^{rs}.

Marchants.

After I was committed to Nugate and my Certificate comd to my hand, i gott a Gentlewoman of my accuants well knowne to

* The influence of Lord Molyneux must have been exerted to procure this certificate, which bears the signatures of the most influential men in the town of Liverpool at that epoch. Thomas Tyrer was the actual mayor who had apprehended him. Thomas Johnson had been bailiff in 1663, and mayor in 1670. John Chorley had been mayor in 1678. Richard Windle had been bailiff in 1699, and mayor in 1681. Oliver Lyme had been mayor in 1685. On the 14th of August, 1687, James II. having received information of the "misbehaviour" of Oliver Lyme, deputy mayor of Liverpool, and Silvester Richmond, a justice of the peace there, ordered their removal from their offices in the town of Liverpool; but both were reinstated after the Revolution. James Prescott had been mayor in 1687. Alexander Norris had been bailiff in 1685, and died whilst holding the office of mayor in 1694. Henry Higginson had been bailiff in 1671. Richard Sedan had been bailiff in 1683.

The Rev. William Atherton was one of the first two Rectors of Liverpool, appointed June 24th, 1699, when, by virtue of an Act passed in the preceding year, Liverpool was made into a separate parish independent of Walton. He was succeeded in 1700 by the Rev. Henry Richmond. The substitution of Richard, for Henry, Richmond hardly offers a difficulty, for Atherton in some works bears the Christian name of Henry, though in the Act he is named William. — Hist. Liv. Brooke, p. 48; Baines, pp. 337, 339, 356.

the Countes of Darbye to goe downe to hampton court, and humbly to pray her honor to reade the Certificates and speake once more for me to the Ld Nottingham.

Her Lady^{sh}s answer was that though she knew the p^rsons that had subscribed my Certificate she did not know it to be there owne hand; but if i would get a letter from (y^e Doct^r) she knew his hand and would do me all the s^rvice in her power, which lett^r I could not obtane.

28th Nov^{mbr} being y^e last day of the tearm a great maney preson^rs was bayld out, that gave me an oportunyty to remove my Chambr^r ganeing the maior concent: by my humble aplication to himself; so the 29th i removed to a good and convenient Chambr^r fit for a cristian to lye in: after haveing layne foure months in a miserable place 5 pare of stares high, within the City prison; but now within the liberty of the press yard; and three of us pd thirty shillings wickly for so bad a lodging;²⁶ where I had not beene above three weeks but I had got a violent could, and haveing a ague fitt,²⁷ I desired the advice of a phisisyon that was preson^r who tould me it was convenient to take somthing (which if he pleasd to direct) I promisd to observe.

So he sent to the apothecary (but first let me blud) to bring me tow or three doses of physick; and gave me his derections which I observd as well as convenience would permit for 14 days with a very good effect.

²⁶ The charges in gaols were deemed so excessive that, by the 32nd of George II., a penalty of fifty pounds to the person injured was imposed on any gaoler or keeper who should demand fees not set down in a tablet, signed by the justices, and afterwards confirmed by the judge, and judges of assize, and justices, and hung up conspicuously in the prison.

²⁷ Howard remarks, in 1777, that the builders of old Newgate seem to have regarded, in this plan, nothing but the single article of keeping prisoners in safe custody. He describes the rooms and cells as so close, as to be almost the constant seats of disease, and sources of infection, to the destruction of multitudes, not only in the prison, but abroad. His fears regarding the new building were justified by the breaking out of a contagious fever, at the commencement of this century. Though much improved since the days when Mr. Abbott experienced its discomforts, it still bears the stigma of being one of the worst managed prisons in this country.

The docter gave me his advice but the Apothecary's bill came to £1 : 5 : 6.

After this I found myself prety well, but for a swimming in the heade, which continued long after; all my indisposition i imputed to a violent could, and for want of sleep.

The 5th of Decemb^r I sent a peñtion of my owne hand to the Ld president as foloweth :

To the Right Honorable Ld President of his Maiesty's privie Councell and the rest of the Hon^rable Lds.

The peñtion of Richard Abbott who hath beene long preson^r in Nugate

Sheweth

That your Hon^r petton^r being very unhealtfull and haveing ^{Decembre} spent his whole stock to his utter undoing in a long impresonm^t ^{ye 5.}

Humbly moves your honer, and the rest of the Right Hon^rable privie Councell to permitt that your honor's pore peñtion^r might be inlargd upon bayle or as your Ldpps shall think fitt and your peñtion^r will for ever pray.

The same day a councell advized me to put my prayr in the court the 1st day of the Sessions at the ould balye,²⁸ being y^e 11th for triall, baile or discharg, and tould me the Habias Corpas act oblidged them to try or alow baile or make oath in Court that the king was not readey, i accordingly did and feed S^r Bartholomew Shores²⁹ to plead and crave the benefit of the act and moved that

²⁸ The judicial sittings at the Old Bailey are of such high antiquity that we have lost all records of their commencement. It is divided from Newgate by the open area, through which prisoners pass from confinement to trial.

²⁹ Sir Bartholomew Shower belonged to the Tory party, and was generally employed by Jacobite prisoners. When Holt had been dismissed from the Recordership of London by King James, he had been appointed to succeed him in 1687. Having little favour or preferment to expect from the Whigs, he was fearless in the discharge of his duty to his clients. He was counsel for Rookwood, implicated in the conspiracy to surprise and murder William; and he assisted Sir Thomas Powis in the Council fees and charges on this account

3,17,0.

Decemb
ye 5th 89.
[This marginal note is in pencil.]

my prayre might be enter'd, and had my bayle attending in Court, but nothing being don y^t day they aperd the next morneing and my attorney feed another counsell and y^t being the 13th I was caryed downe to Hicks hall³⁰ and put to the bar and Major Richinson read y^e charg of commitm^t aganst me after which y^e Deputy Recorder one Rider sd these words; "Felow, you are committed for high Treason and this court cannot try you, but wee will take care to send you downe to Lancashire where the fact was committed and orderd me back to Nugate where the day folowing Major Richinson sent to me that it was in his power to lay Irons on me; and if I did not pay him £5 then due and consider him allso for omiting that punishm^t, i might expect it.³¹

The 10th i receved this folowing lett^r from my Ld. P. Secretary in answer to my Peñtion: y^e lett^r was to M^r W:

Sir,

Haveing layd the inclosd before my Ld, he thinks it not prop^r the peñtion be to himself but that if you designe to peñtion, it unsuccessful defence of Sir John Fenwick in 1696, who was put to death, writes Lord Campbell, in a manner which would have been condemned in the worst days of the Stuarts. Lord Campbell calls Shower an absurd man (Lives of Lord Chief Justices, vol ii. p. 108). Lord Macaulay calls him a "base and hard hearted pettifogger," though he admits that he had "some legal learning." He died in 1701.

³⁰ Hicks Hall was anciently the name of the Sessions house on Clerkenwell Green. About 1778, the old building having become ruinous and inconvenient, a new Sessions house was erected. It takes its name of Clerkenwell, if we may believe the inscription near the public pump, from the parish clerks of London having, in remote ages, annually performed sacred plays around a well near the spot, whose waters were much prized. — Brayley's London, vol. iii. p. 554.

³¹ Newgate was not the only prison in which ease of irons was purchased from the gaolers: York could boast of a like infamy. The prisoners confined there complained bitterly that they were laid in double irons unless they consented to go to the high tables, and that they were abused unless they consented to purchase the ordinary conveniences and necessities of life at an exorbitant price. The gaolers demanded money for chamber rent, beds, and bedding, and compelled the prisoners to pay for ease of irons, although they had paid the same to the former gaolers to whom they had been committed: both felons and debtors were lodged in the same room. — Depositions from York Castle, published by the Surtees Society.

would be best to the king and counsell on thursday next for which i havn allter'd the peñtion, and as to what M^r Abbott hath writ below it in iustification of himself it being no answer to what is laid to his charge, my Ld is of opinion that it will be of noe advantage to him I am S^r

Sidney house, one your most humble S^rvant of the clock.³² B. COOPER.

The next morneing I got y^e folowing peñtion fair writ affter M^r Cooper derection, and sent it to my Ld. P. to deliver: it was as foloweth :

To y^e King's Most Excellent matie and the Rih^t Hon^rble the Lords of his maties most Hon^rble Privie Counc^{ll}.

The humble Pett: of R. Abbott, Prison^r in Nugate,
Sheweth

That your Pett^r being very unhealtfull and haveing spent his whole stock in a long confinem^t most humbly moves that your Matie and this most Hon^rble Board would be gratioously pleas'd to order that your pore pettition^r might be enlargd upon baile, &c.
and your Pett^r will e^vr pray.

Expecting a good answer of this last, about 2 days after I recev'd this folowing letter from my Ld presidents kinsman :

I know you expected an answer in your bisines from me yesterday, but it could not be though I was twise at Linsey house.³³

³² Sydney House, situated in the Old Bailey, was the mansion in which the Earls of Leicester resided, till they removed to Leicester House. It was once the residence and office of the notorious thief and thief detector, Jonathan Wild. Some years ago, it had a noble front supported by two handsome columns with lions rampant, but the lower part of it is now brought to the front of the street. It is a large and roomy yet crowded building inside, having many remains of its ancient magnificence.
— Brayley's London, vol. iii. p. 69.

³³ Lindsey House was contiguous to the site of Beaufort House, and stood on

To be short my Ld wond^{rs} att your illegall useage & sayes your Councell hath not acted their parts, has apointed me to atend him agane at half an hower past eight this night, and i desire that S^r Charls ingleby Clark will meet me there at that time to give my Ld a full account of y^e miscarage, and my Ld saith he will doe his utmost to searve^e you conceaveing you have the Law on your side

I am and will be your Tru frend

y^e 18 Oct^{br} (1689).

W. W.

All that this produced was that he ord^d my Attorney to draw tow petitions, one to y^e King and Councell another to Ld Cheief Justice Hoult to pray to be admitted Bayle and so he would deliver them himself the next day being y^e 19th

To this porpose :

To the King &c.

That your petition^r has beene^e detained a prison^r in y^e sd Goale of Nugate for above five months under y^e charg of high Treason : whereof he is altogether innocent yet is with out remedy the fact charg^d upon him being suposed to be don in another County and therefore not Triable where he is now confin^d to the uter ruing of your pore pett^r, through a long and chargeable impresonm^t.

He therefore most humbly prays your Mai. and this Hon^{ble} bord that you would be pleasd to ord^r his inlargm^t upon Bayle to apeare at Lancas^{tr} or when calld and you^r pett^r &c.

That to y^e Ld Cheafe Justice was in these words :

To y^e Ld &c.

That your pett^r haveing presented a pettⁿ to your L^{pp} & other ground which is thought to have formed part of Sir Thomas More's domain. It is said to have been built by the celebrated physician, Sir Theodore Mayerne, and to have become the property of the Earl of Lindsey, after his death in 1655. It was afterwards possessed by several families, and about 1750 was purchased by Count Zinzendorf, the Moravian. The old mansion is now divided into several respectable tenements, which bear the name of Lindsay Row. — Brayley's London, vol. v. p. 44.

ther Maiestys Com^{rs} of Goale delivery for the County of Midlesex: to be tryd or bayld according to the Habias Corpas act; your Ld^{ps} was pleasd to say that if M^r Smith did not produce an inform^a taken before tow justieses of peace, importing a proof of y^e crime wherewith your pet^r stands charg^d or an affida^t that y^e king's witness^{es} could not be ready then your pett^r should be enlargd upon bayle; accordingly your Ld^{ps} pett^r did attend y^e last day of ye sessions with his councell but was denide y^e benefit of y^e sd act; though no such information or afid^t as your Ld^{ps} directed was produced.

He therefore most humbly prays, &c.

The 22^d Decemb^r being Sunday at night I receaved this lett^r from M^r W. who had just receaved it from my Ld. P. Secretary and sent it me by his boy.

Sir,

My Ld tells me that M^r Abbotts expecting an answer to y^e petition given to the king in Councell is not att all necessary but that he has spoake to Ld Chief Justice Hoult about him who my Ld expects will searve him and therefore desires that some frend of M^r Abbotts may atend his Ld^{ps} saying he comes from my Ld Carmarthen from whome my Ld douts not he will receave some satisfaction.

I am S^r

Sunday 3rd Afternoone.

Your most humble Se^vant

B. COOPER.

The 23^d Decemb^r my Attorney went in my Ld Markquās' name to attend y^e Ld Cheaf Justice and pray that I might be bayld; his L^{ps} sent for M^r Arron Smith to consult about it and comanded my Attorney to come ye next day, and he would satisfie him forther, but it proved a deniall, then my Attorney prayd that I might be sent downe speedily to the County preson: upon ye king's charg: for my condition was not able to pay the great charge of

My attorney fecs
s d
10.9

nugate to wh his Ld^{pp} answer'd he would grant me a habeas corpus if i would bear the charg of going downe but when my Attorney tould me this i thought they might send with me a gard & my circomstance could not maintain it, so i resolved to sit quiet tell y^e Assizes though Major Richinson daly threatened to torne me over to the comon side or lay irons upon me if I did not pay.

The next day being Crismas Eave i writ to my frend M^r W. to let him know my suckcess with my Ld C. Justice who upon y^e receate of myne, went to my Ld P. to accuant him, and tow days after I receaved this following lett^r from my great frend (and kinsman to y^e Ld President) in answer to mine :

it was not Sr
Charles but the Clark that was with Ld Chief justice.

With much truble (Dear S^r) I receaved your last, and went to accuant my Ld with y^e contents of it who stood amazed to heare things fell out so unluckely and contrary to his expectation; and he asked me hastily and earnestly who was sent to my Ld Cheaf Justice about it. i tould him that you sd you thought S^r Charles Ingleby would und^rtake it at which my Lds coler rosse, and in some passion he sd that he thought y^e papists were y^e worst manag^{rs} of there owne concearns in the world; for sd he none but a madmⁿ would have und^rtaken such a message in his cercumstance, haveing beene one of the late Judgs and more obnoxious to the gov^{mt} than Abbott: he might have beene sure continued he that the Chief Justice would show no favour in behalf of such a soliciter,³⁴ and much

³⁴ If the Earl of Clarendon, as he records in his Journal, found the Lord Chief Justice very snappish, we must not be surprised that the solicitor of a servant of Lord Molyneux, failed to find him very gracious. Notwithstanding the high praise that has been given by political historians and biographers to Chief Justice Holt for vigorously supporting the rights and liberties of the subject, it is to be feared that, if his staunch adherence to the Whig cause did not interfere with the course of justice, it helped to check the flow of mercy. Whilst he rose superior to the intemperance and brutality which had disgraced criminal proceedings in former reigns, he did not hesitate to interrogate prisoners during trial, with the hope of entrapping them into a fatal admission, or involving them in a contradiction. In the Aylesbury case even his eulogist allows "that he was carried too far by his Whig zeal against a Tory House of Commons," and "that he was tainted with the rage against Popery, from which no more not prop^r to incert; when he was a little cooler he sd there was no man more proper to have gon then the Clark that was with him being a good sensible felow, and one that the Chieaf Justice could not have excepted aganst:: sd he when the king is at Councell i sit at the corn^r of the table and the king at y^e end cloase by me, and thus seated I beconned at my Lord Cheaf Justice to com to me which accordingly he did and I spoake so loud that the king planely hard what we sd; i tould him the whole business as you had related to me what had past att y^e ould balye.

Then the king sd my Ld it is but justice that he should be bayled if he have proceeded according to law.

Then I asked my Ld Cheaf Justice if I might send a person to him about Abbot when you have recolected yourself. he answerd if you pleas you may, and so it ended.

Then my Ld sd, i will vent^r once more to speak y^e next Councell day to my Ld Cheaf Justice, and know his reason of this deniall and comanded his secretary to put him in mind of what you desire. Therefore send me 2 lines, and I will give them to M^r Cooper and notwithstanding all these trubles, i will never be danted from at least indeavouring to s^rve you to the pow^r of W. W.

My humble request that I returnd was: that I might be admited to bayle, to apeare at y^e Assizess, or if that was not allowd: to surrend^r myself in ten days to y^e Goaler Costody: and if not permitted that favour to be sent downe by one man: and I would beare his charg as pore as I was; for I was not able to live in Nugate, and if I paid not i should be turnd from y^e press yard amongst the theavs to lie on the bords on the comon side, and allso the Major threatend that he should be pd to keep irons of my legs, (which I patriot was then free." In the reign of James he had been made Recorder of London, but was subsequently dismissed: by William he was made Lord Chief Justice, and took his seat on the bench at Easter Term in 1689. He died on the 5th of March 1710, in the sixty-eighth year of his age. — Lord Campbell's Lives of the Chief Justices of England, vol. ii.

writ) and that it was very hard being innocent, and haveing prayd for my tryall and that I neyther could be tryd, bayld nor dischargd.

The 12th day after Crismas being the 6th of January my Ld sent to me to get my proceedings und^r Councell hand and sd that would not faile to get me out, and so I sent & got the case statted and sent it to S^r Creswell Lievins;³⁵ but my Attorney being afrade of reflecting of the Court y^t denide me bayle put the case in this folowing maner:

Mr Abbott was taken in Lanc^r by a mesing^r; brought up to London in Custody and committed to Nugate for leviing war aganst the govern^t, and according to the tenor of the Habeas Corpas act peftious the 1st day of the next sessions of Goale delivery for the County of Midlesex to be tryd which prayr was by order of Court recorded, and the last day of that sessions there being no persecucion moves by his Councell to be admited to bayle as the sd act directs.

Quere 1. Whether y^e preson^r is calpalble of the benefit of y^e act, act of Habeas Corp^s notwithstanding the fact is suposed to be committed in another County then where he is prisoner and maks his prayr.

Quere 2. Admiting he were uncalpalble for that reason whether a bare suggestion of the fact being comited in another County without oath be made be sufficient to deprive him of the benefit of y^e act.

³⁵ Sir Creswell Levinz. It is curious that Abbott did not write his name accurately, as he must have had before him Sir Cresswell's own signature to his answer to the questions submitted by the attorney for his opinion. He was Attorney General in the reign of Charles II., and afterwards one of the justices of Common Pleas, from which station he was displaced in the reign of James II. for opposing the dispensing power. He then retured to the bar, and was one of the counsel for the seven bishops. He had great knowledge and experience of his profession, says Lord Macaulay, but was deficient in moral courage, though he probably had enough to save him from being made subservient to the interests of a party, and so was not restored to the bench under William. — Lord Campbell, vol. ii. p. 48. Brayley's London.

Answer. Iff the fact were committed in another County then where the party is in preson, I conceive the Judgs or Justices of the Sessions where he is in preson are not bound, though he petitions the 1st day of the sessions to bayle him the last day of the sessions for want of an inditem^t, because he could not be indited in that county.

Creswell Levins.
A giney fee.

But in such case he ought to be sent to the County prison where the fact was committed that there he may make his petition and be indited or bayld for want of inditem^t.

But if no place where the fact was committed be expressed in the warrant, then I conceive the Court cannot take notice, that it was don in another County upon a bare affirmation without some oath, for Courts doe not regularly trust informations without oath.

And the Statute itself that excuses the Judges from bayleing where there is no inditem^t does it upon oath made that the witness for the king could not be produced that sessions.

So in this case without an oath of the fact being comited in another County, the Court cannot take notice of it but the party ought to be bayld.

6th January (89).

CRESWELL LEVINS.

This opinion I sent as my Ld Marques desired to M^r W. with my lett^r as foloweth :

Sir,

Though it be y^e opinion of the Lawyers amongst the rest M^r S^rgant Levins (whose opinion I have sent you) that i have met with hard measures, yet i thought to decline all further truble, and not in the least to reflect of y^e Court: but wholly to aquiese; being also afrade you would quite Tyre out my Ld Marquis' patience; but his honer derecting this way of proceeding, i have in obedience thereto sent you Judg Levins opinion; with other papers meteryall to prove my not onely being innocent, but the great charg of so long impreson^{mt}, Counsell fees, and other Expencess; which hath exhausted me of all that I have got in 14 years service: to my utter ruing : and have no other hopes but in my Ld Marques Left ; in whose power it is to send an order to M^r arron Smith to concent to my being bayld or at least sent downe to the County preson : I hope when you have Laid this before his Honer att last my condition will be considered.

and S^r for yo^r constant indevours to your pore obli^d S^rvant, which is all in my power

I shall for ever pray

Janu y^e 6th (89)

R. ABBOTT.

Nugate.

A giney fee for going to the Judgs Chambr.

The 17th of January my Ld deliverd S^r Creswell opinion to my Ld Cf Justice. y^e 19th I aply'd myself to know his Ldpps answer, which was that he desir'd to discours my Councell, and if hee was convinced that it was Law, he would yⁿ bayle me. accordingly S^r Levins was³⁶ free to attend his Ldpp at his Ldpp's Leasure : but his Ldpps answer was I might move y^e Court.

upon the 4th of Feb. My Ld President sent his secretary to the Attorney Gen^l to desire him to doe me what kindnes the Law would alowe, so upon the 8th of Feb: Council^r freeman moved for my habias Corpas which was granted.

Feb: y^e 12th (89) Hilery Tearn. (89).³⁷

I was bayld out of Nugate: the charg. 09:14:00

I was bound to apeare at Lanc^{tr} in £3000. 4 protestant bayle and was to apeare the 1st day of the Assizes held March ye 31st in 1690.

The names of my bayle

M^r Hen: Mosley Marchant in Good Man's Feelds.³⁸

³⁶ was is repeated in the MS., clearly a slip of the pen.

³⁷ Hilary Tearn (89) is written in pencil.

³⁸ Goodman's Fields, London, now consist of several handsome and broad streets, but were formerly a farm belonging to the Minoreesses of St. Clare. Stowe says that when a boy he bought milk there, never receiving less than three ale pints in summer,

M^r Mawrisce Tipper Confection^r in Stocks Market.³⁹

M^r Wich^rley of Convent Garding,⁴⁰ Woling Draper.

M^r Goreing of⁴¹ King Street in Westminster, Vintner.

Fees to Maior Richinson for Lodging	14	7	0
To y ^e Tornekeys	05	0	0
Expencess for meate and drink	11	6	0
Expence upon my bayle	00	15	0
Coach hire	2	0	0
Chargs downe	1	2	0
Chargs in all at London as apeares by bill	95	12	6

March y^e 31st (90).

I apear'd at Lancast^r according to my Recognizance Taken at Westminst^r Candlemas Tearme. Feb: y^e 12th (89) at y^e sd assizes an Inditement was found aganst me but procureing favour I travers'd the inditem^t and gave £2000 bayle to try the Travers y^e Assizes following.

For Traversing fees	1	3	6
For a copie of y ^e inditem ^t	0	6	0
To y ^e Clark of y ^e Crowne	2	0	0
For entering new Recog ^{sane}	0	18	0
To the Marshall.. ..	0	05	0

Y^e carg at y^e sd assizes.

nor less than one ale quart in winter for a halfpenny, always "hotte from the kine, as the same was milked and strained." A farmer of the name of Goodman afterwards purchased the farm, and gave his name to the property. — Brayley's London, vol. iii. p. 133.

³⁹ Stocks Market had its origin in 1282, when Henry de Wallis, then Mayor, built a market for fish and flesh, for the maintenance of London bridge, on a piece of vacant ground near Woole Church. A pair of stocks for the punishment of offenders, that stood near the spot, gave the market its name. — Brayley, citing Stowe.

⁴⁰ Covent Garden anciently belonged to the Abbots and Monks of Westminster, whence it derived its name, Convent Garden. At the dissolution of religious houses it fell to the Crown, and was given to Edward, Duke of Somerset, and after his attainer, to John, Earl of Bedford. — Brayley's London, vol. v.

⁴¹ of is repeated in the MS.

To the Cryer	0	05	0
To Mr Entwisle	1	00	0
To Mr Greenefeld	1	0	0
To Myles Gerard	0	10	0
To M Ashton & Tomlinson	0	10	0
Charg Man and hors	1	7	0
Totall.....	9	4	6
With Charg at London amounts to	106	12	0

here folowes a Copie of the discharg of my Bayle above: und^r
the hands of y^e Clark of the Crowne:

These are to certifie whome it may concearne that Richard Abbott, Gent: apeard att the Assizess houlden for the County of Lancast^r upon a Recognizance retornd from the Co^t of Kings Bench; and hath enter'd into new Recog: to apere att the next Assizess.

And thereupon his former Recognizance was discharg'd.

Datted at Lancast^r y^e

3rd day of Aprill (1689).⁴²

THOMSON Deput: Cl^e

Coron:

Vera Copia.

This is a true
coppie of the bale bond signed y^e
28th of Aprill (1690).

Noverint universi per præsentes Ricardum Abbott de Croxteth in Comitatu Lancastriæ gen: et Georgium foxcoft de vil^a Lanc^{rie} in Com Lanc^r gen: teneri et firmiter obligari Wilmo Simson de fflookburgh in Cartmell in Com Lanc^{rie} gen et Johani Marshall de Dalton in ffurneis in Com Lanc^{rie} prd gen in mille libriss bonæ et Legalis monetæ Anglie solvend; eisdem Willo Simpson et Johani Marshall aut suo cer^o in hac pte attornat executoribus administra-toribus vell assignat suis ad quidem soluconem bene et fideliter faciend; obligamus nos et utrumq; n^{rm} per se pro toto et in solid ⁴² This should be 1690, but it is 1689 in the MS.

hered executor et administ^{rs} n^{ros} firmiter per presentes sigillis nris sigillat datz quarto die Aprilis Anno R Re^{gis} Willi et Marie Angl' &c s^{cd}o. Anoq Do^{mi} 1690.⁴³

*Translation of the Bond.*⁴⁴

Know all men by these presents that [we] Richard Abbott of Croxteth in the county of Lancaster gentleman and George Foxcoft of Lancaster in the county of Lancaster gentleman are held and firmly bound to William Simson of Flookburgh⁴⁵ in Cartmell in the county of Lancaster gentleman and John Marshall of Dalton in Furness in the county of Lancaster gentleman in the sum of one thousand pounds of good and lawful English money to be paid to the same William Simson and John Marshall or their certain attorney in this behalf their executors administrators or assigns for which payment to be well and truly made we bind ourselves each of us in the whole and entire sum our heirs executors and administrators firmly by these presents, sealed with our seals. Dated the fourth day of April in the second year of the reign of King William and Queen Mary &c. and in the year of our Lord 1690.

The Condition of this obligation is such that whereas the above named Will: Simson and John Marshall at the request of him the above bounden Richard Abbott doth stand bound by Recognizance taken this Assizess for the personal apereance of him the s^d Richard Abbott at the next Generall sessions of assizess to be houlden for the County of Lanc^r in five hundred pounds apeice to answer such matters as shall then be objected aganst him and performe what the Court shall enjoyne him if therefore he the s^d Richard Abbott do and shall according to the tenor of the s^d Recognizance appear att the s^d next generall sessions of Assizess and answer what shall then be objected and Laid aganst him, and free his s^d suretyes from such recognizance as afores^d and save and keepe harmeles them y^e s^d Will Simson and John Marshall their heres executors and administrators and every of them of and from all Losse costs Chargs Truble and damage whatsoever which may falle, hapen or Come to them or eyther of them for or by Reason of y^e s^d Recognizance or y^e not apereing of the s^d Richard Abbott at the time Limited Thereby That then this present obligation to be void or els to remane in force.

⁴³ The contractions used in the MS. have not been copied throughout in the text.

⁴⁴ The translation of the Bond does not occur in the MS.

⁴⁵ Flookborough is a fishing village in the township of Lower Holker and the parish of Cartmel, in the hundred of Lonsdale north of the Sands. It was formerly a market-town, holding a charter granted to the Prior of Cartmel by Edward I., which, after the dissolution of the priory, was removed to Cartmel, famous for the manufacture of coarse woollen cloths to which it gave the name of Cartmels.

This is a True Copie of the originall bond examined the 28th of aprill (1690) by THO: BOOTLE.

OLIVER PRESCOTT.

A copie of y^e / Inditment.

Lanč: ff. Jurator pro dno Rege et dña Regina sup sacrum suum p^rsentant⁹ qd Ricus Abbott nuper de Croxteth in Com Palat⁹ n Lanč generosus timorem Dei in corde suo non hēns sed existens persona prave turbide false et seditiose dispositionis debitum Legiance sue minime ponderans sed machinans et malitiose impie et seditiose intendens pacem et cōem tranquillit huius Regni Anglie pturbare et destruere ac Rebellionem, bellum et tumultus infra hoc Regnū Anglie et infra Regnū dictorum Dñi Regis et Dñe Regine Hibnie suscitare fovere et promovere ac Gubnationem dictorum Dñi Regis et Dñe Regine necnon personas eorundem Regis et Regine nunc suprem et indubitat Dñi et Dñe suorum in extremū periculum ducere ac Statum huius Regni Angl et res in eodm Regno gestas hostibus et inimicis dictorum Dñi Regis et Dñe Regine perfidiose et malitiose prodere et noticiam facere ac hostes eorundem Dñi Regis et Dñe Regine in bellis suis contra eos-dem Regem et Reginam assistere et supportare ipse predictus Ricus primo die Julij Año Regni dictorum Dñi Regis et Dñe Regine nunc primo apud Croxteth p'dicto in Com Palatin p'dicto machinações et intentiones suas predictas perimplendas et perficiendas et ad effectum redigendum cum quodam Willo Bromfeild subdito dictorum Dñi Regis et Dñe Regine se assemblavit et eundem Willim Bromfeild extra hoc Regnū Anglie ad Hiñnam ad tunc et ibidem illicite et seditiose misit et mitti et transportari causavit et procuravit ad assistend et supportand Jacobum secundum nuper Reġm Anglie et alios hostes dictorum Dñi Regis et Dñe Regine nunc cum eodem Jacobo congregat jur p'd Ignot in bellis suis contra eosdem nunc Dñum Regem et Dñam Reginam per dictum Jacobum et alios hostes predictos ad tunc gest levat et crudeliter prosecūt et quo magis secure incognito et Clandestine idem Willus Bromfield extra hoc Regnū Anglie ad Jacobum et hostes p'dcos evaderet ac iter ad p'posita predicta perimplenda performaret ipse predictus Ricus Abbott Peruçam Anglice the Periwick ipsius Riçi Abbott eidem Willo Bromfield ad tunc et ibidem dedit et deliberavit ad ipsum predictum Willim Bromfeild dissimuland Anglice disġise, ac ulterius ipse predictus Ricus Abbott ad machinações prædictas perimplend diversas chartas imprimatas vocat London Gazets per ipsum Riçum Abbott collectas ad tunc et ibidem eidem Willo Bromfield dedit eidem Jacobo deliberand et per eundem Willim Bromfield dicto Jacobo deliberandum misit ad statum huius Regni Anglie et res in eodem gestas eidem Jacobo et aliis hostibus predictis prodend et notas faciend et hostes predictos in bellis suis contra dñm et dñam Regem et Reginam nunc assistend et supportand contra legiançe sue debit ad magnam pacis dñor Dñi Regis et Dñe Regine pturbaçãoem et contra pacem dñor Dñi Regis et Dñe Regine nunc coronam et dignitatem suas &c Exa p A RIGBY Cle. Coronæ.

*Translation of the Indictment.*⁴⁵

Lancashire } The Jurors of our Lord and Lady the king and to wit } queen, upon their oaths do present Richard Abbott late of Croxteth in the county of Lancaster gentleman, for that he not having the fear of God in his heart but being of a wicked turbulent false and seditious disposition, not regarding his allegiance but contriving and maliciously impiously and seditiously intending to disturb and destroy the peace and common tranquillity of this realm of England and to stir up, excite and promote rebellion war and tumults within this realm of England and within our said lord and lady the king and queen's kingdom of Ireland and the government of the said lord and lady the king and queen and the persons of the same king and queen the supreme and undoubted lord and lady thereof to bring into extreme peril, and the state of this realm of England and the matters there transacted perfidiously and maliciously to betray and make known to the enemies of the said lord and lady the king and queen, and the enemies of the said lord and lady the king and queen to assist and support in their wars against the same king and queen, he the aforesaid Richard on the first day of July in the first year of the reign of the said lord and lady the now king and queen at Croxteth aforesaid in the aforesaid county palatine his machinations and intentions aforesaid to fulfil perfect and bring to effect did join himself to one William Bromfield a subject of the said lord and lady the king and queen and the same William Bromfield then and there unlawfully and seditiously did send and cause and procure to be sent and conveyed out of this kingdom of England to assist and support James the Second late king of England and other the enemies of the said lord and lady the now king and queen to the jurors unknown and with the same James assembled in their wars then levied and cruelly carried on against the same lord and lady the now king and queen by the said James and other the enemies aforesaid and that he the ⁴⁵ The translation of the Indictment is added: it does not occur in the MS.

said William Bromfield might the more effectually and clandestinely escape out of this kingdom of England and accomplish his voyage to the said James and the enemies aforesaid and carry out the purposes aforesaid he the said Richard Abbott did then and there give and deliver to the said William Bromfield his peruke or periwig to disguise the same William Bromfield, And further that he the said Richard Abbott the aforesaid machinations to fulfil did then and there give the said William Bromfield certain printed papers by him the said Richard Abbot collected and called the London Gazette to be delivered to the same James and by the same W^m Bromfield did send them to be delivered to the said James the state of this kingdom of England and the things therein done to betray and make known to the said James and other the enemies aforesaid to assist and support them in their wars against the said lord and lady the now king and queen contrary to his allegiance to the great disturbance of the peace of the said lord and lady the king and queen and against the peace of the said lord and lady the now king and queen their crown and dignity.

Ex^d by A. RIGBY, Clerk of the Crown.⁴⁶

At y^e sum^r sizes held in the year (1691) I did apere at Lancast^r where I was Call'd (and Try'd y^e Travers) and by y^e Jury brought in not Gilty so was discharg'd paying Fees which Cost me 12^l od money and my Counsell M^r Entwisle⁴⁷ farther advized me to pray ⁴⁶ Alexander Rigby Esq., who resided at Layton Hall, near Blackpool, was Sheriff of Lancashire 1691-2. The sacrifices of this family in the royal cause had so impoverished him that he was compelled to dispose of the Layton property for the benefit of his creditors at the sum of 19,200*l*. He was also imprisoned for debt till released by an act of parliament in 1714 (1st George I). His arms, of the date 1693, may yet be seen at his house on the south side of the market-place at Poulton-le-Fylde, where he resided after the sale of the Layton Hall estate.—Thornber's History of Blackpool, p. 66.

⁴⁷ This would probably be Bertie Entwisle of Wigan (son of John Entwisle of Foxholes, Esq.) who married Clarissa, daughter of John Chorley of Ormskirk. He a discharg by proclamation which the Court did ffreely alow me the Judge was S^r Will: Dolbin :⁴⁸ soe I was att Length ffree ffrom Truble to my great Satisfaction.

was Vice-chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, and died Recorder of Liverpool in 1709.—Baines's History of Lancashire, vol. iii. p. 95; Brooke's Liverpool, p. 203. I find, however, several warrants addressed to the constables of townships signed by J. Entwistle, bearing date 1676 and 1679, so that it is difficult to say whether the father or son was counsel for Mr. Abbott, as he does not give the Christian name of Mr. Entwisle.

⁴⁸ Sir William Dolben was one of the Judges of King's Bench in the reign of William and Mary.

AN ACCT.
OF THE
T R Y A L L S
AT MANCHESTER

OCTOBER 1694

Of Caryll Ld. Molineux, S^r W^m Gerrard,
S^r Rowland Stanley Barr^{ts}, S^r Tho: Clifton Barr^t, Bartholomew Walmesley, W^m. Dicconson,
Philip Langton Esq^{res} and William Blundell Jun^r Gent^s, with observat[']ons.

PRINTED FOR THE CHETHAM SOCIETY.

M.DCCC.LXIV.

INTRODUCTION.

THE Lancashire plot was a supposed conspiracy of Lancashire gentlemen, between the years 1689 and 1694, for the restoration of the House of Stuart. The evidence produced in favour of its reality, was of the same character as that which had been deemed sufficient to prove the existence of previous plots, and if the informer Lunt was less successful in his villainy than Oates, it was not for want of the countenance of Government. Sir John Trenchard, who had been associated with Nottingham as Secretary of State in 1693, encouraged tale bearers to come to Whitehall with reports of conspiracies; and his office was haunted by heartless vagabonds, who fattened on the spoils of those whom they first seduced and then betrayed.

Through life he had been a violent politician, and was excepted by name from the general pardon of 1686; but, at the intercession of Penn, he had been allowed by James II. to return from exile. Whilst his colleague, on whose integrity William, the reigning sovereign, placed great reliance, attended to the graver affairs of State, Trenchard was little more than a superintendent of police, at whose office there was a constant stream of informers coming in, and of messengers with warrants going out. He belonged to the extreme section of the Whig party, and was closely connected with a set of men, whose passions were fiercer than his own. Amongst these were Hugh Speke, whose sister he had married, capable of any villainy that was false enough, and Aaron Smith, an acrimonious politician, in whom the fanatic and the pettifogger were strangely blended. The latter had been the legal adviser of Titus Oates in the conduct of his plot, and had himself been deeply implicated in the Rye House plot. It was probably this double infamy that recommended him to the office of Solicitor to the Treasury, to which he was appointed in 1689. As it was the business of his office to conduct political prosecutions by collecting evidence, instructing counsel, and preventing the introduction into juries of persons hostile to the Government, he had ample opportunity of gratifying his political spite by crushing those who were obnoxious to his party. This minister of justice, to whom, says the Whig eulogist,¹ a hunt after a Jacobite was the most exciting of all sports, had made himself so sure of his prey on this occasion, that warrants for the execution of the prisoners were signed, and directions given for their execution to take place three days after their conviction.² But the people had grown weary of the bay of Whig bloodhounds, and the integrity of a Manchester jury saved the county from legal plunder and judicial murder.

The property of the Lancashire gentry had long excited

¹ Macaulay, vols. iii. iv. vi. vii.

² Wagstaffe, cited in Introduction to the Jacobite Trials, p. lxxxvi.

the cupidity of hungry Whigs. In February,³ 1692, the Lords of the Treasury granted to Mr. Peter Stepkins, Mr. Peter Godard, and Mr. Nich. Hall a full third of lands, tenements, and sums of money within the Kingdom of England, which they should prove to have been given to superstitious uses.⁴ By other articles it was covenanted by these harpies that their third should be subdivided into other three parts, one of which had to be held in trust for Sir John Guyse and Sir Scroop Howe.⁵ They further agreed to pay to one William Wybrants, who had to bear the expenses of executing the commission, 10*l.* for every 100*l.* so granted, and 100*l.* for every 100*l.* per annum in land. Lord Monmouth gave Stepkins 500*l.* for a moiety of his third, and Captain Baker had to receive a moiety of the remainder for introducing Stepkins to Lord Monmouth. Goddard and Dockwray gave Stepkins each 200*l.* for a sixth part each of the other moiety.

A Commission under the Great Seal was issued 22nd March, 1692, and sat at Warrington on the 4th of May in the following year, for the discovery of property left or given for superstitious uses. But the result did not answer the expectation of these political cormorants, who had settled by the above articles of agreement the share of the anticipated booty which each had respectively to receive. The defendants not only denied the allegations of the witnesses against them, but produced such proofs in defence of their denial that the Attorney General did not venture to bring the cause to a hearing.

³ 27th Feb., 1692, Jacobite Trials, p. 1.

⁴ 6th March, 1692.

⁵ 9th March, 1692.

Though baffled, the greedy adventurers were not discouraged. Schooled by failure, they set to work anew; and in order to make more sure of their game, they determined to remove the gentlemen whose estates they coveted, by swearing against them such things as would maintain an impeachment for high treason. The stake was high, and they resolved to play a desperate game. The success of Oates in a former reign offered an example and encouragement, and they determined to alarm the nation with the announcement of the discovery of a plot for the murder of William, and the restoration of James.

One Lunt was selected as the fittest tool for this nefarious job. He was an unprincipled vagabond, willing to serve or betray any party for hire. He was not only the associate of highwaymen, but had made money by the same calling, whilst his private life was stained with the foulest crimes. Smollet says that he was an Irishman; the name, however, is not uncommon in Lancashire: but, wherever born, he seems to have grown in obscurity till wanted for the occasion — like those loathsome creatures that lie hid in foul waters until their depths are stirred, when they float to the surface. Our earliest acquaintance with him is at Highgate,⁶ where he earned twelve pence a day as a labourer. He subsequently rose to the rank of coachman, then to be a licensed victualler at Westminster, and at the time of these trials he had a footman to attend upon him, and was living at the rate of a thousand a year. His unblushing effrontery and reckless lying, seem to have especially fitted him for the part he had to play. None but a corrupt Government would have availed itself of such an instrument; but there are circumstances connected with his history, which render it by no means improbable that he was employed as a decoy, at least by its subordinate members. His arrest for treason, and subsequent discharge, on the ground that there was not legal proof of guilt, bear the appearance of a collusion between him and Government, which is not rendered the less probable by the fact that, when apprehended on a charge of bigamy, no less a personage than the Solicitor to the Treasury stood bail for him.

⁶ Introduction to the Jacobite Trials, pp. lxx. lxxix.

On the 27th of June, 1694, this wretch appeared before Sir John Trenchard, and deposed, on oath, that in 1688 he had followed King James to France; that, in the month of March following, he had been sent with the rest of the guards to Dublin; that he there became acquainted with Dr. Bromfield, who had been sent from England to give an account of the preparations which had been made by King James's friends for his return, and to bring back his Majesty's commissions for several persons of quality; that, in consequence of Dr. Bromfield being too well known to escape detection, he Lunt and one Mr. Threlfall of the Ashes in Goosnargh in Lancashire, were sent over with them; that he landed at Cockeram within four miles of Lancaster in June, 1689; that he with difficulty escaped the Custom-house officers, who seized four cases of pistols and some blank commissions; that he however distributed commissions to divers gentlemen in Lancashire and Cheshire, whom he named; that, through the information of the Captain who had brought him over, he was made prisoner, but admitted to bail; that in 1691 he had assisted in buying arms and enlisting men to serve King James in the projected invasion of England;⁷ that he had been twice despatched by those gentlemen to the court of St. Germain; that he had been engaged in a plot to assassinate King William; and that he could take any body to places in Lancashire and other counties, where secret hoards of arms and ammunition had been formed.

As Lunt's single oath would not have been sufficient to support a charge of high treason, he produced other infamous emissaries, who received but too much countenance from Government, to confirm his testimony.⁸ "Blank warrants," writes Smollet, "were issued, and filled up occasionally with such names as the informers suggested: these were delivered to Aaron Smith, Solicitor to the Treasury, who, with messengers, accompanied Lunt and his associates to Lancashire, under the protection of a party of Dutch horse-guards commanded by one Captain Baker. They were empowered to break open houses, seize papers, and apprehend persons according to their pleasure; and they committed many acts of violence and oppression. The persons against whom their measures were taken, being apprised of the impending danger, generally retired from their own habitations; some, however, were taken and imprisoned."

⁷ Smollet, 1694.

⁸ Macaulay, Smollet, 1694.

The history of these trials, published by the CHETHAM SOCIETY in 1853, records the manner in which the gentlemen tried at Manchester in 1694 were seized. This was usually accomplished by a King's messenger, who was assisted by a party of Dutch horse; and we may rest assured that men, whose main object was to improve their fortunes, would not be over nice in the execution of their odious task. The prisoners were mostly arrested at their own houses, and, after a temporary confinement in Chester Castle, were forwarded to London, where they were confined in Newgate or the Tower till a few days before the trial, upon which they were sent down to Manchester. Lord Molyneux was arrested at Croxteth; Sir William Gerard at Garswood; Sir Rowland Stanley at Hooton; Sir Thomas Clifton at Wray Green, near his seat at Lytham Hall; on the 17th of July, 1694. Bartholomew Walmsley, Esq. was arrested at his lodgings in London on the 15th of July; William Dicconson, Esq., also in London about the 30th of August; Philip Langton, Esq. at Wepre in Flintshire, on the 27th of July. If the reader is curious to know further particulars about the arrest of these gentlemen and their future fortunes, he must refer to the volume already published, where the diligence and research of Mr. BEAMONT have left nothing to desire. Of Mr. Blundell's arrest I venture to speak more in detail.

Mr. William Blundell, of Little Crosby, was the head of a family that came over with William the Conqueror. He was an able scholar, a gallant soldier, and a worthy gentleman. Excluded from the advantages of an English education at Oxford or Cambridge by the Penal Laws, he had however managed to acquire a knowledge of the Latin, French, Italian, and Spanish languages. At an early age, in 1634, he married Anne, daughter of Thomas Haggerston, Esq., of Haggerston Castle, in Northumberland, who was afterwards created a baronet. "It was my own happy lot," he writes in 1690, "not by chance but Providence, to marry a wife in Scotland in the fifteenth year of my age." As a soldier he early obtained distinction in the royal cause. He was amongst the gentlemen volunteers who followed the Earl of Derby in the successful assault on Lancaster, where his thigh was shattered by a musket-ball that crippled him for life, and rendered him unequal to the fatigue of war; still he was one of the heroic band that stood by the Countess of Derby in her brave defence of Lathom House. Though unable to use a sword, he was four times made a prisoner, and paid his ransom twice. He says of himself that "in the first days of his service, before he had mustered the hundred dragoons that he was by commission to raise, he was sorely maimed, having lost the use of his limbs by a shot in the year 1642; and that his weak endeavour to have served that very much injured but incomparable good Prince King Charles I., was followed by the plunder of almost all his goods and the sequestration of his lands; which lands were sequestered and wholly detained from him for the space of ten years, and then were exposed to sale by virtue of a Rump Act. Yet, true it is, that they were purchased in the name of his friends, with the moneys which he himself procured, for his own proper use and behoof. Yet after his estate was bought, as above said, he paid the tenth part of the revenue by an arbitrary law of Cromwell's for sundry years." In consequence of these losses, and in consideration of his services, he petitioned the Government of James II. for some small advantageous employment upon a civil account, but though he remained in London for eight months to press his suit, he petitioned in vain: for whatever might be the religion of the reigning Stuart, gratitude formed no part of his creed.

The flight of James and the accession of William put an end to his hopes, but not to his troubles. In the April of 1691, he was taken by a warrant from the Secretary of State, bound over under a bond from him and his bondsmen of 1000*l.* to appear at the assizes; though to use his own words, "he had one foot already in the grave through age and weakness, and had little else to think on, but to seek for such comfort as by the great mercy of God may last for ever." His resignation however was great, and in 1692 he writes: "I thank God for it that I have in some tolerable sort weathered all the storms, and that now I have little to do with the world, but to leave it in a happy hour." Yet old and infirm as he was, unable even to write his name without pain; he would have been dragged to prison for compassing the death of the king by rebellion, if the caprice of his captors had not substituted the son for the father.

On Monday, July 30th, 1694, at half-past five in the morning, three of the King's messengers, with two of the informers, invaded the hall at Crosby, with the intent of carrying off old Mr. Blundell. As, however, he was then in his seventy-fifth year, and had been lame for many years in consequence of the injuries he had received, while fighting in the royal cause, they did not take him with them; but they carried off a case of pistols, two swords and a fowling piece, and seven horses and two hackney saddles. Mr. William Blundell jun. having shown them to his father's room left the house; but finding, on his return, that they had carried off his horses, he went to Liverpool to Mr. Norris of Speke, who gave him into the custody of the Mayor, by whom he was handed over to Captain Baker, who sent him to Chester Castle, and thence to London, where, having been examined, he was committed and taken to Newgate. None of the authorities concerned in this illegal arrest seem to have doubted the justice of committing the son for the supposed crime of the father. He survived this trial many years, dying at Crosby Hall on the 2nd of August, 1702; having a numerous issue by his wife Mary, daughter of Rowland Eyre of Hassop in the county of Derby. "About half an hour after ten in the morning," writes his son Nicholas, "being Sunday, many people in the room hearing mass, and mass just almost finished, my dearest Father departed this life, being much lamented by all: as his life was virtuous and edifying, so was his death. Sweet Jesus receive his soul." Himself, his son, and his father, with their respective families, were all living at Crosby Hall at the same time. But those were days in which the Catholic gentry were content to exist, without being allowed to exhibit the style and splendour due to their wealth and rank. Few families suffered more for their attachment to the throne and the altar than the Blundells of Crosby. In the Derby Household Book, under date of Thursday 17th June, 1590, we read that "Mr. Blundell, his sone, and Robert Wodroffe the Seminary were apprehended and brought to my Lord, and on Saturday were sent to Chester as prisoners." Mr. Richard Blundell must have been subsequently removed from Chester to Lancaster Castle, where he died a prisoner on account of his recusancy in 1591. His son and successor William Blundell, who died in 1638 at the age of seventy-eight, also suffered an imprisonment of five years for his political and religious proceedings, and was fined two thousand three hundred pounds by the Star Chamber, for having enclosed a part of his demesne for the burial of recusants, who were refused burial at the parish church of Sephton. He was succeeded by his grandson, the William Blundell mentioned above as having his thigh broken at the siege of Lathom House, who was not less distinguished than his predecessors for devoted and chivalrous loyalty.⁹

⁹ Stanley Papers, Part II.; Notes in Derby Household Book; Blundell MS.

Government determined to have the prisoners tried by a special commission,¹⁰ and, in October, four Judges went down to Manchester. They were Sir Giles Eyre, made Judge of the King's Bench May 8th, 1689; Sir John Turton, created Baron of the Exchequer May 9th, 1689, and some years afterwards transferred to the King's Bench; Sir John Powell, created Baron of the Exchequer October 31st, 1691, and made a Judge of the Common Pleas October 26th, 1695; and Sir Samuel Eyre, made Judge of the King's Bench February 19th, 1694.

If political partisanship can give a bias to the judgment in political matters, Sir John Powell was not likely to extend much favour to the prisoners. When Anderton was indicted for having printed a political pamphlet, he was one of the Judges who sentenced him to death, after having laboured to procure his conviction, though there was no evidence to show that he had printed the libel, much less that he had written it.

With these Judges were joined in commission Hugh Lord Willoughby, Sir Thomas Stanley, Bart., Sir Ed. Moseley, Knt., and Mr. Roger Moore, who had been raised to the degree of Sergeant 22nd April, 1692.

Their Majesties' Counsel were Sir William Williams and his son, Mr. Hollis, Mr. Naps, and Mr. Serjeant Gould, made a Judge of the King's Bench 14th January, 1699. The most eminent of these for knowledge, energy, abilities, and dauntless courage was Sir William Williams, who, in the reign of Charles II. had distinguished himself by his virulent opposition to the court. This, however, did not prevent his being made Solicitor General, December 13th, 1687, and receiving the honour of knighthood and afterwards of a baronetcy at the hands of James II., whose partisans he was now called on to prosecute. Though he atoned for his adherence to James by attacking him in Parliament with unblushing forehead and voluble tongue, yet the Whig historian denounces him as a venal turncoat and an apostate, an angry and disappointed man, and insinuates that his conduct at the trials arose from coolness to the Government from which he had nothing to expect, and not from honourable indignation, on finding himself the advocate of a cause supported by perjury and forgery.

¹⁰ Macaulay, 1694.

The arrival of the Judges, the Counsel and the prisoners caused great excitement in the town of Manchester, which was thronged with multitudes from the neighbouring villages, as well as by the retainers of the prisoners, whom curiosity, interest, or sympathy had attracted to the spectacle. Pity for the accused and hatred of the prosecutors were the prevailing sentiments, and the multitude saw with grief and indignation, the most honoured gentry of the county exposed to the risk of hanging, beheading, disembowelling, and quartering, on the evidence of a gang of ruffians. Even men who had no personal sympathy with the prisoners could not but feel indignant,¹¹ that, on the authority of warrants irregularly drawn, which specified neither the person nor the crime, houses had been entered, desks and cabinets searched, valuable papers carried away, trinkets pilfered, and men of good birth and breeding flung into gaol among felons.

¹¹ Letter to Trenchard, 1694, cited by Macaulay.

No detailed report of the trial has come down to us; probably the Government felt more ashamed of the part it had taken in the matter, than Lord Macaulay, who pronounces the conduct of Trenchard, "an earnest Whig," to have been more unlucky than culpable. Dr. Abbadie, a friend of King William, whom he advanced to be Dean of Killaloe, and Richard Kingston, the court scribe, profess to have compiled true histories of this event; the reader must judge of their claims to impartiality, when he compares their account with that now offered to the public. It is printed from a MS. in the possession of Major Blundell, of Crosby Hall, Lancashire, a descendant of one of the prisoners. It is written in a small, cramped hand, and appears to be a narrative, or an abridgement of a narrative of an eye witness. It may have a common origin with that published by the CHETHAM SOCIETY in 1853, from a MS. of John Jesse, Esq., under the able editorship of William Beamont, Esq., but it differs from it in some important respects.

The Blundell MS. does not contain any account of the Commission held at Warrington in 1693, for the inquisition of lands, moneys, and other effects given for superstitious practices. Nor does it contain copies of the depositions of Lunt, Wilson, and Womball, made on oath before Secretary Trenchard, in the month of June 1694; nor any account of the apprehension of the prisoners by Captain Baker, who was sent from London to Lancashire with the messengers, informers, and others in the month of July for the purpose; nor does it include Mr. Legh of Lyme among the prisoners; nor does it contain a copy or analysis of the Indictment of the prisoners, all of which particulars are fully set forth in the MS. edited by Mr. Beamont for the CHETHAM SOCIETY; from which it would appear that the writer had had access to government information. It however details at much greater length the evidence of the various witnesses, and thus supplies more abundant proofs of the innocence of the prisoners, and the rascality of their accusers.

The MS. of Mr. Jesse is described as written in a plain law hand, apparently a transcript made about thirty-five years ago from some earlier manuscript. Mr. Beamont conjectures that it may be founded on a narrative, if ever prepared, promised to be written by Mr. Thomas Wagstaff, a nonjuring clergyman, who in his "Letter out of Lancashire to a friend in London," has given some account of these trials.

If these two MSS. have a common origin, the spelling of that in possession of Mr. Jesse must have been improved by the copyist, for it is much more modern than that belonging to Major Blundell. I am indebted for the transcript of the original from which this has been printed, to the intelligent diligence of a member of that useful religious community, the Sisters of Mercy, of Mount Vernon, Liverpool.

Mrs. Frances Blundell, a daughter of Lord Langdale, of Hulme, in Yorkshire, and wife of Nicholas Blundell, Esq., the son of the William Blundell, junr., one of the prisoners, in a letter to Lady Mountgarett, dated November 6th, 1694, from Crosby, alludes to an account of the Trials in preparation, without giving any clue to the authorship.

"In May last," she writes, "I was in hopes of seeing my dear nephew Butler in these parts, and by so good an opportunity to have own'd the favour of so friendly a communication, but as matters fell out it was much better that he wav'd that visit, rather than to have been a spectator or unhappily a sharer in the late troubles and afflictions this poor family, and divers others of greater note, have laboured under, as no doubt your Ladyship must have heard of by all hands, as also that the said persons after having been carried to London, thence back to Manchester, they have been fairly acquit by a just and legall tryall, much to the honour and reputation of the government and satisfaction of all good men to see innocency justify'd, and villany laid open to the world The particulars of matters handled in this grand affaire would be too tedious here to relate, and more especially since they will in likelihood be handed over to you in a much better method. Our business is now to bless and prayse Almighty God, who by his mercy and singular providence, has preserv'd our friends, when on the very brink of utter ruin and destruction."

Her husband, Nicholas Blundell, died April 21st, 1737.

The result of the trials is briefly told by Lord Macaulay. "The prisoners at the bar were instantly acquitted; those who had not been tried were set at liberty; the witnesses for the prosecution were pelted out of Manchester; the Clerk of the Crown narrowly escaped with life; and the Judges took their departure amidst hisses and execrations."

The character of the Government was seriously damaged by this result, and in prose and verse they were announced as the abettors of knavish contrivances to ensnare the innocent, and swear away the lives of honest gentlemen. The matter was brought before Parliament, and several days were spent in the examination of witnesses. The partisans of the Government contended that because the prisoners had been acquitted, it did not follow that the Secretary of State, and the Solicitor of the Treasury had been guilty of unfairness. It was moved and carried, that there had been sufficient grounds for the proceedings before the Special Commission; and it was resolved by 133 votes to 97 that there had been a dangerous conspiracy. The House of Peers, after deliberating on the same subject, passed resolutions acquitting both the Government and the judges of all blame. The public, however, uninfluenced by party considerations, continued to think that the gentlemen who had been tried at Manchester, had been unjustifiably prosecuted.

Notwithstanding the resolution of the two Houses, the accused gentlemen succeeded in obtaining a conviction for perjury against Lunt, Womball and Wilson, at the Lancaster assizes. They were then indicted for a conspiracy against the lives and estates of the Lancashire gentlemen; but convinced that the Government wanted to take advantage of the charge, in order to punish those who had given or might give evidence in their favour, they declined to appear against the prisoners, who were consequently discharged. Lunt passed away with the storm he had created, and disappeared from the scene of public life after his discharge at Lancaster.

The reader must have been painfully struck by the legal hardships to which the gentlemen in this trial were subjected. It was the common fate of all prisoners at that period of our history. They were not allowed a copy of their indictment, and often did not know of what they were accused till they stood at the bar. They had no power to compel the attendance of witnesses, who, if they did attend, could not be sworn, so that their testimony made little impression. The Crown could command the services of the most able and experienced lawyers of the day, whilst the accused, confused with the prospect of a cruel and ignominious death, and ignorant of the first principles of law, was refused the help of a single counsel. Though allowed to challenge the jury, he was not allowed to know their names till he heard them read out in court; yet they were oftentimes men of the fiercest party spirit, selected by sheriffs whose obsequiousness had recommended them to Government. These disadvantages are ably summed up by the advocate for the Bill to regulate Trials for High Treason, passed in the reign of William III. "How helpless," said the young orator, "must be a poor man, who, never having opened his lips in public, is called upon to reply without a moment's preparation, to the ablest and most experienced advocates in the kingdom, and whose faculties are paralysed by the thought that if he fails to convince his hearers, he will, in a few hours, die on a gallows, and leave beggary and infamy to those who are dearest to him!" This was the position of the gentlemen tried on a charge of High Treason at Manchester in 1694; but, bad as it was, it was immeasurably superior to that in which those stood who had to plead in capital offences under James I. When the Commons, at the close of the session in 1610, petitioned, amongst other things, for criminals under trial for their lives, to bring forward witnesses in their own defence, James replied "that he could not in conscience grant such an indulgence. It would encourage and multiply perjury. Men were already accustomed to forswear themselves even in civil actions; what less could be expected when the life of a friend was at stake?"¹² And so through fear of a possible evil, the prisoner was denied a positive right. Many an innocent life had to be sacrificed before this nation achieved that liberty of which it is so justly proud.

A. G.

St. Edward's College,
August 27th, 1863.

¹² Lingard's England, vol. vii. p. 118.

An Acc^t of the Tryalls at Manchester Com. Lan^r.

October 1694

Of Caryll Ld. Molineux, S^r W^m Gerrard, S^r Rowland
Stanley Barr^{ts}, S^r Tho: Clifton Barr^t, Bartholomew Walmesley, W^m. Dicconson, Philip Langton Esq^{res} and William Blundell Jun^r ¹ Gent, with observat^{ons}.

MR. BAILE, sollicitor ag^t the prison^{rs}, M^r Winter a Clerk in Sunday the 14th the King's bench office Westm, who came to act as Clerk of the arraignm^{ts} at Manchester, Capt Baker, master of the intelligence office and one of the witnesses, John Lunt, heretofore coachman to the Ld Carrington, another of the witnesses, John Womball a broken Carrier, another of the witnesses, George Wilson late a chamberlaine at the Bear and ragged staffe in Smithfield, another of the witnesses, with others, came into Manchester in order to this tryall.

The prison^{rs} before men^coned, with others, were brought into Tuesday the 16th Manchester.

Four Judges, v^{iz}t. Sr Giles Eyres, Sr John Turton, Sr John Wednesday 17th Powell, and Sr Samuel Eyres, came into Manchester, with whom were joyned in Comission, that sate with them in the execution thereof, Hugh Ld Willoughby, Sr Tho: Stanley Barr^t, Sr Edw: Moseley Kn^t, and M^r Sergeant Moor. The same day came into Manchester their Majest^{ties} Counsell in order to this tryall, v^{iz}t.
Sr Wm: Williams, M^r Serj^t Gold, and M^r Hollis, and also Sr Wm:
Williams son, and another young lawyer,² and with these gentlemen Mr Aaron Smith, sollicitor to the Lords of the Trẽary and sollicitor ag^t the prisoners, and the same day came into town Mr Urian Bruerton another of the witnesses. The prison^{rs} had great guards, and the offic^{rs} and attend^{ts} on the Judges were many. This day two of the Judges only, vřzt. Sr Giles Eyres and Sr. John Turton went into Court at Manchester and read their Comission.

¹ The addition of Junr. to Blundell is in ink, but in a different hand from the rest of the MS.

² Mr. Jesse's MS. omits the words, "another young lawyer," but mentions the name, M^r Naps.

Thursday 18th All the Judges sate, and in the afternoon before the grand Jury were called, Sr Giles Eyres, chief Justice, there appointed the Statute 3: H: 8: ca: 12^o, (intituled the Act that Justices may returnẽ impannellẽs for the King by their discretion³), to be read, which was openly done. Then were the grand Jury called and sworn, vřzt. Tho: Norres of Speake Esq^r, Joshua Horton of Chadderton Esq^r, Ričh Fletewood of Leyland Esq^r, Henry Hulton of Hulton Esq^r, Barnaby Hesketh of Northmeales Esq^r, John Hopwood of Hopwood Esq^r, Tho: Bradshaw of Lumm Esq^r, Ralph Livesay of Livesay Esq^r, Walter Frost of Cockerham Esq^r, Robert Hide of Denton Esq^r, Joseph Greg of Chamberhall Esq^r, Joseph Hooper⁴ of Manchester gen., Alexander Radcliffe of Leigh gen., Andrew Dandy of Lostock gen., John Johnson of Westhoghton gen., Robert Roscow of Bolton gen., and W^m Lowd of Kirkham gen.

Sr Giles Eyres gave the charge onely touching High-treason, as he said being the onely intent of their Comission.

In the afternoon, at the first sitting of the Court, eleven witnesses, each of them indorsed on 4 sevrall bills, were sworne, and the Bills sent to the Jury, Mr Winter being with the Jury to read the bills. After some time the grand Jury brought in a Bill ag^t Sr W^m Gerrard, and return'd to consider of the rest. Judge Eyres then demanded of the gaoler: Have y^u Sr W^m Gerrard in yo^r costody? who answering he had, The Judge order'd him to be brought to the Barr, w^{ch} after some time was done. Sr W^m Gerrard was arraigned. The Indictm^t opened ag^t him by Mr Winter, first in English, and then the Bill at Sr W^{ms} request was read in Latin, to which Sr W^m plead'd not guilty. Then Sr W^m prayed time till Saturday to prepare for his tryall, and that he might have a copy of the Indictm^t and of the pannell. The Judge told him a copy of the Indictm^t was not allowable by law, but a copy of the pannell he should have, w^{ch} the Sheriffe was ordered to give him before 11 a clock that night. After this the grand Jury brought in two Bills more. One Bill ag^t Sr Rowland Stanley, Sr Thomas Clifton Barr^{ts}, W^m Dicconson, Philip Langton Esq^{res}, and William Blundell jun^r ⁵ gentⁿ. Another bill ag^t Bartholomew Walmesley Esq^r. Whereupon those 6 prison^{rs} were sent for, and the first five arraigned together and charged thereupon by Mr Winter, who each pleaded not guilty. They also prayed time as Sr W^m Gerrard had done, the Indictm^t ag^t them having also been read both in English and Latin. They likewise prayed to have a copy of the pannell, w^{ch} was order'd, v^{izt}. one copy for all the prison^{rs}. Then Mr Walmesley was in like manner arraigned and charged, his Bill being read both in English and Latin, he prayed time and a copy of the pannell, as the rest had done, but, before he pleaded, took this exception upon the Indictm^t, y^t he in the Indictm^t was named to be of the p^{sh} of Church, whereas there was no such p^{sh}. The Judges directed if it were so y^t he must plead it in abatem^t, and plead over in chief to the Indictm^t, not guilty, and the Court gave him time till the next day to consider of it, and if he did insist upon it, to have his plea drawn up in forme, assigneing him for Counsell upon his prayer Sr Chrsfe: Greenfield and Mr Upton.

³ The MS. of Mr. Jesse has "direction."

⁴ The MS. of Mr. Jesse has "Hoop"; but I am inclined to believe that Hooper is the correct reading of this MS., as the letter p differs from that generally used, and is identical with the contraction of per in the words peril and person.

Forenoon, a Bill ag^t the Ld Molineux was brought in, and his Lo^{pp} sent for, arraigned, and pleaded, not guilty; he also prayed time and a copy of the pannell, as the rest had done, and p^rsented a peti^{cion}, w^{ch} was read, wherein his Lo^{pp} prayed y^t in regard to the defects of his memory and the hardness of his hearing, he might have Counsell or his Sollicitor to assist him at his tryall, w^{ch} the Judge S^r Giles Eyres said could not be allowed him by law. After which M^r Walmesley was sent for, as also the other five that were in one indictm^t, and brought to the Bar. The Court then demanded of M^r Walmesly if he did insist on his plea, bidding him advise with his Counsell and doe it at his perill, whereupon M^r Walmesley waved it, and pleaded, not guilty, as the rest had done. After which the Court did demand of S^r Rowland Stanley, S^r Tho: Clifton, M^r Dicconson, M^r Langton, and M^r Blundell whether they would be tryed together or apart, saying it was in the power of the King's Counsell whether way to try them, but it was proposed by the Court to try them all five together if they would but in all challenge 35 peremptorily, to w^{ch} they agreed, and then they were bid to prepare for their tryall ag^t the next day, and then all 6 were taken out of Court, after w^{ch} upon M^r Aaron Smith's mo^on in Court y^t there was not full forescore in all returned upon the impannell, w^{ch} might not be sufficient, because the prison^{rs} might challenge with cause. Thereupon the Court ordered the Sheriffe immediately to su^mon 40 more at the least, and that a copy of that new returne should be sent by the Sheriffe to the prison^{rs} that night. Then the Court adjourned till afternoon, and in the afternoon two Judges onely came into Court, and without doing any business adjourned till 7 next morning.

⁵ Jun^r to Blundell is an addition in a different hand.

Saturday 20th

By 7 a clock in the morning all the Judges were sitting, and S^r Rowland Stanley, S^r Thomas Clifton, M^r Dicconson, M^r Langton, and M^r Blundell, the 5 indited in one Bill were brought to the Bar. After the long pannell was call'd over, and the prisoners bid by the Clerk of the Crown to look to their challenges, the challenges were made in manner following till 12 were called by each side allowed.

Challenged for the King and Queen without shewing any cause.

- 1 S^r Edw: Chisenhale Kn^t a member of Parliam^t and Justice of Peace.
- 2 W^m Farrington Esq^r a Justice of Peace.
- 3 Lawrence Rawstorne Esq^r a Cōll in the Militia, a Depty Lieuten^t and Justice of Peace.
- 4 Thomas Braddyll Esq^r a Justice of Peace.

- 5 Thomas⁶ Rigby Esq^r a Justice of Peace.
 6 Robert Mawdsley⁷ Esq^r a Justice of Peace.
 7 John Veale Esq^r a Justice of the Peace.
 8 Jonathan Blackburne Esq^r a Justice of Peace.
 10 Tho: Shierson Esq^r Justice of Peace.
 12 William Mollineux Esq^r.
 14 Geo: Farrington Esq^r.
 15 W^m Leigh gen.
 16 Jonathan Case⁸ gen.
 17 Jn Clayton of Shorrock green gen.
 19 W^m Chrichloe gen.
 20 Thomas Loxam gen.
 22 J^a Clayton of Little Harwood gen.
 28 J^a Grimbaldeston gen.
 49 Hen: Parker gen.
 54 Samuel Drinkwater gen.

BY EACH SIDE ALLOWED.

Jurors.

- | | |
|--------------------------------|---------------------------|
| 18 J ^a Lightbounne. | 33 W ^m Patten. |
| 21 Risley Brown. | 41 Francis Davenport. |
| 23 Cuthb ^t Holland. | 44 Riçh Heape. |
| 27 Abraham Townley. | 48 Hugh Hulme. |
| 30 W ^m Whalley. | 52 Francis Meadowcroft. |
| 31 Chröfer Roby. | 55 Riçh Percival. |

CHALLENGED BY THE PRISONERS.

- | | |
|------------------------------------|--|
| 9 Ralph Egerton Esq ^r . | 13 Alexand ^r Hesketh Esq ^r , |
| 11 Riçh Longworth Esq ^r | 24 Hen: Dicconson gen. |
| Justice of Peace. | 25 Jonathan Green gen. |

⁶ In Mr. Jesse's MS. he is called "John."

⁷ Mr. Jesse's MS. calls him "Maud:" may not that be a contraction for the "Mawdsley" of Major Blundell's MS.?

⁸ The Editor of Jesse's MS. reads "Cave:" it is written with a long f in Major Blundell's MS.

26 Edm ^d ⁹ Taylor gen.	40 James Hilton gen.
29 Andrew Stones gen.	42 James Johnson gen.
32 John Leech gen. ¹⁰	43 J ⁿ Warmingham gen.
34 John Earle gen.	45 Edw ^d Greaves gen.
35 J ⁿ Hamond gen.	46 Nathan Walker gen.
36 Edw ^d Rowe gen. ¹¹	47 Geo: Smith gen.
37 Rob ^t Gartside gen.	50 James Moss gen.
38 George Duerden gen.	51 Joh: Diggle gen.
39 Ralph Sandiford gen.	53 John Green gen.

The 12 unexcepted Jurors being all sworne, the Indictm^t read, and the Jury charged accordeing to coñon forme by the Clerk to the Crown, M^r Williams as youngest Counsell for the King and Queen thus opened the Indictm^t, vīzt. the Bill sets forth y^t whereas for certaine years past there hath been and still is an open and notorious war betweene their Maties King William and Queen Mary and Lewis the French King, during wh^{ch} time the French King and his subjects were and are enimies of their Maties and this kingdom,¹² and the prisoners, knowing thereof and being seduced by the Devill, have designed and endeavoured to subvert and overturne the Governm^t of this Kingdome as it is now happily establisht, and to reduce us to miserable bondage and servitude under the French King, and to depose our gracious King and Queen from their regall dignity, Crown, and governm^t, and to bring them to death and utter destrucōn, and to encourage the s^d French King to invade this Kingdome with armed troops and to p̄cure a most miserable slaughter to be made throughout this Kingdome, and that these gentⁿ with other false traytors did maliciously consult, consent, and agree to send messengers beyond the sea to bring in open enemies into this kingdome, and for this

⁹ The Jesse MS. has "Edward."

¹⁰ This name is omitted in Jesse's MS., probably by mistake, as the number 32 is also omitted.

¹¹ The Jesse MS. has "Roscoe."

¹² The Jesse MS. has their "majesties' kingdom."

purpose accepted Comissions from the late King James, S^r Rowland Stanley to be Cöll of horse, S^r Tho: Clifton to be Cöll of horse, Mr. Dicconson to be Lieuten^t Cöll, M^r Langton and M^r Blundell to be Majors. And further, that they did encourage many to be soldiers under them and to assist them in this their traiterous designe contrary to their allegiance, for which these gentⁿ the prison^{rs} at the Barr stand indicted of hightreason, and have pleaded not guilty, if these their practices be proved y^u must find the prison^{rs} guilty.

M^r Serj^t Gold the King's Serj^t thus spoke: —

Gentⁿ of the Jury,

I am of Counsell in this case on behalf of the king and Queen. These 5 gentⁿ, S^r Rowland Stanley, S^r Tho: Clifton, and the other 3 before mençoned, stand charged with hightreason, such treason as at once strikes at the overthrow of the King, Kingdome, and Governm^t, and also of all our lawes, such lawes as these very gentⁿ are secured by to have a fair tryall, and they are brought down into their own Country to be tryed by their own Country-men. The gentⁿ stand before y^u accused and indicted, and whether they are guilty or no I shall not say, 'tis yo^r part to enquire.

The Indictm^t consists of two parts, the one geñall, and the other p^ticular; the geñall part sets forth that these gentⁿ imagined and intended the overthrow of this Governm^t and the bringing in of a forreigne power. The p^ticular shewes that they accepted of sevall Comissions, some to be Collonells one a Lieuten^t Cöll,¹³ and some Majors, and for this purpose have levyed men p^rvided armes, and taken measures when and how to act. Now if men be so forward as to do any act out of designe to bring into our naçõn forreigne enemies, or do any thing to encourage them to come in, that act is treason, and tho that act be not effected, as God be thanked this was not, yet nevertheless the designe itself is treason.

We shall go so far back as to the year 1689, and there shall begin and shew you how at that time they sett up a conspiracy of bringing in the French King to levy war in this kingdome under p̄tence of restoring King James.

¹³ The Jesse MS. has "colonels or a lieutenant Colonel."

We shall prove to you how from time to time they held their consultations; our witnesses will tell you, and we shall prove to you by their very Agents, y^t they have sent messengers to France to tell them there how our condiçõn stood here, and to acquaint them when would be the most convenient season to invade us with an army. In the month of the then Aprill following a french army lay ready at La Hogue to have imbarqued and should have landed with us in England, w^{ch} was happily p̄vented by the French fleet being beat; and as soon as England had been surprized then their fresh army should have assisted that from France ag^t us, w^{ch} if it had come to pass, I leave it to any sober considerate man to imagine how sad our condiçõn had now been.

Gent^u, We shall go further with y^u, and prove it to y^u by these very persons that were their Agents, how that armes were bought, soldiers listed, and actually quarter'd wth y^u.

Before the witnesses gave their evidence, the prison^{rs} prayed y^t the witnesses might be exaied apart; the Judge replied it should be so with all his heart if the King's Counsell consented thereto; but after he said he never remembred any instance of it, especially in such a criminall fact, so it was not allowed. Then the witnesses were called and the first witnes for the King and Queen produced and sworne was

JOHN LUNT, who being ask't by S^r W^m Williams if he knew all the 5 gent^u prison^{rs} at the Bar, he said he did know them all. S^r Rowland Stanley then said to Lunt, w^{ch} is S^r Rowland Stanley? and Lunt pointing at a wrong person, and a great noise thereupon being made, the Judge bid Lunt take one of the offic^{rs}' white staves and lay it upon S^r Rowland Stanley's head: Lunt took the staffe and laid it upon the head of S^r Tho: Clifton, saying that was S^r Rowland Stanley; and being then ask't w^{ch} was S^r Tho: Clifton, he pointed at S^r Rowland Stanley, saying that was he, and further did depose to the effect following, vīzt. that he was in

Ireland, a souldier in King James's guards there, at the time when Dr Bromfeild came over thither from England, w^{ch} was in the year 1689, y^t Dr Bromfeild, as he said, brought instruc^{co}ns from most of the gentⁿ in England that were King James's friends, and desired y^t his Mat^{ie} would send them over Comissions, but y^t he the s^d Dr Bromfeild being a p^{son} suspected and much sought after in England, some other trusty persons were to be pitched upon for that service, amongst w^{ch} he, the s^d Lunt, was one thought fitt by Dr Bromfeild¹⁴ and recomended by him as such to the Earle of Melfort; and the s^d Lunt being asked by Dr Bromfeild and the s^d Earle if he would undertake the service, agreed to't, and thereupon Comissions and other instruc^{co}ns were p^{re}pared, and when all things were in readiness the guards were ordered (as it was before agreed) to be drawn up, and King James coming as to take a view of them, cashiered Lunt and one Gourdon who was to go into Scotland, and some others who were to be sent to other parts on the same errand, w^{ch} was done to the intent that it being publickly beleaved they were sent away in disgrace, they might the better go on that business unsuspected; that thereupon Lunt as he said came over for England in one Cawson's vessel of Lanc^r together with one Mr Edm^d Threlfall, and the ship comeing to Cockerham and they seeing the Custome offic^{rs} makeing towards them to come on board, Lunt prayed the Mr¹⁵ to putt him and Mr Threlfall wth their concernes on shoar before the offic^{rs} came on board, but the master refusing, saying he durst not do it least the officers should see em and his ship be forfeited, Lunt, as he swore, pull'd a pistoll from under his coat and sett it cock't to the master's breast, threatning to shoot him if he did not imediately put off his boat, w^{ch} he thereupon did put off, and Lunt threw into the boat a Trunck and other things, leaving onely behind them in the ship a bundell of blank Commissions, and Threlfall and he gott safe to shoar wth the rest, where taking their papers and Comissions out of the Trunck, they left the empty Trunck in a ditch and gott safe

¹⁴ Instead of "Dr. Bromfeild" the Jesse MS. has, "my Lord Thomas Howard."

¹⁵ An abbreviation for "master."

themselves to Thurnham Mr Dalten's house and from thence came to Mr Tildsley's of the Lodge, where Mr Threlfall and he divided their packetts, Mr Threlfall to go to carry Comissions into Yorkshire, and Lunt being to distribute the Comissions he had through Lancashire and other countrys.¹⁶ From Lodge Lunt as he swore, came to Croxteth, the Ld Molineux's house, w^{ch} was in June or July 1689, conducted thither by a guide in the night, where he found the Ld Molineux, master Molineux his son, S^r W^m Gerrard, S^r Rowland Stanley, S^r Tho: Clifton, Mr Dicconson, Mr Blundell, Mr Gerrard S^r W^ms son, Mr Harrington, Mr Ralph Tildesley, and many others; y^t he there delivered a Comission from King James to S^r Rowland Stanley to be Cöll of horse, another to S^r Tho: Clifton to be Cöll of horse, another to Mr Molineux to be Cöll of horse, another to S^r W^m Gerrard to be Cöll of horse, and one to the Ld Molineux to be governo^r of Liverpoole, and that there he saw Mr Molineux give a Comission to Mr Blundell to be his Major. Mr Lunt being then ask't by one of the prison^{rs} if all those gentⁿ last mençoned were then together at Croxteth, he said yes; being then also ask't if ever he had seen Mr Dicconson before that time, he answered no; being ask't if ever he had seen him since, he replied yes, and being then ask't if ever he had seen the Ld Molineux's son before that time, he answered no; S^r Rowland Stanley then asking Lunt if he and the sd Lunt were ever any waies acquainted before that time, Lunt replied no. Upon w^{ch} S^r Rowland said, how probable then can it be, if I were but a man of comon and ordinary sense, that I should receive such a Comission (the acceptance whereof might throw away my life and estate) from such a p^{erson} as yⁿ, altogether a stranger to me? Lunt then said, but I brought you with yo^r Comission D^r Bromfeild's letter; thereupon Mr Justice Eyres said to S^r Rowland, yⁿ are answered, that was his credentiall; and further said to the prison^{rs}, gentⁿ, you may ask questions, but this is not the time to make yo^r observations. Then the Judge asked Mr Lunt againe if, before the deliv^y of those Comissions to S^r Rowland Stanley and S^r Thomas

¹⁶ The Jesse MS. more correctly has "countys."

Clifton, he did psonally know those gentⁿ, he answered, he did not till then know either of them. Whereupon S^r Giles Eyres the Judge did say there was then no such mighty matter in Lunt's mistake as the prison^{rs} made of it in diversifying the two gent^{n's} names that were strangers to him, haveing been told when he first saw them that those were the 2 psons. The sd Lunt moreover said y^t the gentⁿ to whom he brought Comissions gave him £5 a peece. That S^r Rowland Stanley's five pounds was 2 guineas and the rest in silver, and further said y^t all those gentⁿ kissed their Comissions at the receit and readeing thereof, and afterwards on their knees drank the healths of King James and his Queen and the Prince of Wales, and said they hoped to be ready. Then Lunt further swore y^t ab^t February 1690 he was with S^r Tho: Clifton at his house at Lithom, who gave him £10 to buy armes with and list men for King James, and y^t S^r Rowland Stanley some time before had given him £4 for the same purpose, and that they both order'd him to go to one M^r Whitfeild the King's Cardmaker in Leicester feilds London, and take up what moneys he should have occasion for. That M^r Dicconson about that time gave Lunt 2 guineas and desir'd him to list men for him. That Lunt accordingly listed about 60 men in London, to whom at their listing he gave 12^d a peece, and that he sent down 40 swords at one time and many more armes by Hilton and by Knowles, Carriers, directed some to one M^r Mare in Preston, some to one Taylor of Standish, and some to one Jackson in Preston, and th^t p^ticularly at one time Lunt sent down as many armes as came to £50, w^{ch} he bought of a Cuttler who lives next to the upper end of Middleroe in Holeborne, London and for w^{ch} he brought the aforesd M^r Whitfeild to the Cuttler, who undertook for the paym^t thereof.

That about July or August 1691 Lunt was at Standish hall desired by S^r Rowland Stanley, M^r Dicconson, M^r Blundell, M^r Langton, and others, to go over to France to acquaint King James of their forwardness, and to know when they might expect him. In order to this they gave Lunt £15 and a bill for £15 more upon one Walgrave. That Lunt accordeingly went and acquainted

King James, who told him he would be in a readiness the spring following, whereupon Lunt returned, and acquainted S^r Thomas Clifton, M^r Legh, and the rest. Lunt likewise swore y^t ab^t February 1691 he was at Dunkenhalth, where M^r Walmsley being lately come from France, p^rduced a Comission from King James for his being C^oll of horse, and did then deliver a Comission to M^r Dicconson to be his Lieuten^t C^oll, and a Comission to M^r Langton to be his Major, and that M^r Langton upon his receipt of that Comission said he had kept 14¹⁷ Ireishmen in his house 2 years, and that now he hoped to have some good of them. That M^r Legh of Lime was there present, and they did all declare they did not question to be well p^rpared ag^t the King landed.

M^r Dicconson one of the prison^{ers} askeing the s^d Lunt the reason why he either discovered this thing no sooner or why he discovered it at all, he the s^d Lunt answered he had not discovered it, but that some things were putt upon him w^{ch} he could not doe, and being urged by the Court to explaine himself, he said, when he was last in France, there was a designe on foot to kill King William. And the Earle of Melfort asked him if he would make one in the attempt and y^t he answered he would, and said he came over to England intending to doe it, but that in his travelling the Country he mett with a Carthusian Fryer, to whom going to Confession he declared this, and his s^d Confessor thereupon disallowed it, telling him unless he could doe it fairly in the feild it was wilful murder, and he thereupon first made this discovery least some of the rest concern'd might accomplish it.

JOHN WOMBALL the next witnes exa^med for the King and Queen swore, y^t he was serv^t ab^t 8 yeares wth John Knowles¹⁸ a Carrier, during w^{ch} time he sevall journeys carried armes from London to Lancashire, and p^rticularly about the time of the late

¹⁷ The Jesse MS. has "4 Irishmen."

¹⁸ The Jesse MS. calls him "James Knowles:" the name is unabbreviated in Major Blundell's MS.; and in another passage the Jesse MS. calls him "John Knowles," p. 73.

Revolution. That 8 horses loaded with armes went to Townley, and at another time 102 swords by Nic Rigby. That he the said Womball afterwards, when a Carrier for himself abt December 1691, came down wth armes from London, w^{ch} he carried in the night to Standish hall, and in the inner Courts unloaded his horses and pich't the packs in the parlor, where the packs were opened and the armes divided, M^r Standish, M^r Molineux, S^r Rowland Stanley, S^r Tho: Clifton, and the rest, being present, who each took his share except S^r Tho: Clifton and his share, tho he himself [was] p^sent, one Capt Reddish took, and all the gertⁿ drank King James' health, rejoycing at their p^paration and forwardness, and Womball said he had at other times brought down great quantities of armes for 12 months together without intermission, and likewise said he had brought down 3 boxes directed D. D. w^{ch} were to be delivered to M^r Dicconson of Wrightington, and the mare w^{ch} carryed them falling into a pitt, one of the boxes was broke in w^{ch} he the sd Womball saw there were pistolls, w^{ch} was one of the boxes he delivered to Joshua Ashurst.

JOSHUA ASHURST another witness for the King and Queen swore y^t he carryed 3 boxes, w^{ch} he re^cd from Womball, to M^r Dicconson's house, but does not know that they were armes, but said a serv^t paid him for the carriage.

JOHN KNOWELES¹⁹ sworn a witnes for the King and Queen, said by fair yea and nay he knew nou't on't.

OLIVER PEARSON next sworn a witnes for the King and Queen, said he had carryed some few armes to M^r Standish and M^r Dicconson, but men^coned not what sort, what quantity, nor what time.

GEO: WILSON witnes for the King and Queen, swore th^t he was ordered by the prison^{rs} to go to the water side to wait for some gentⁿ that were to come by sea, and y^t he came to Croxteth wth Lunt, and there saw Lunt deliver Comissions to sevall of the prison^{rs}, he called all the prison^{rs} by their right names, and said he re^cd some moneys from S^r Rowland Stanley²⁰ to list souldiers withall to serve for the bringing in of King James, and y^t he had listed for the s^d S^r Rowland five and twenty men, four of which S^r Rowland Stanley had in his own house, and some others were quarter'd with his ten^{ts}, and the s^d Willson further said he had listed in all 400 men for that service.

¹⁹ The Jesse MS adds "another carrier."

COLL: URIAN BRUERTON²¹ another witness for the King and Queen, declar'd y^t he haveing served King James as an officer dureing the war in Ireland, and that King haveing no further service for him, he came back for England being well entertain'd by the gentⁿ here in England that were King James's friends, y^t he as a soldier of fortune, lay ready here to head such force as should appear for King James and them, and relating his acquaintance with S^r Rowland Stanley sayd he had re^cd sevall small sumes of money from S^r Rowland, not²² for his own use but for the service of King James, and being ask't what sumes, he answered a crown, ten or twenty shillings at a time, and being ask't, what condi^con he was then in, whether he was not very necessitous, naked, and poor, when he had such guifts, the s^d Cöll answered, poor! that was a question to degrade a gentⁿ. After w^{ch} M^r Justice Eyres observing upon what acc^t he said he lay there said it was likely that such sumes were given him as subsistence money.

CAPT. BAKER another witness for the King and Queen, sworn sayd y^t he being informed that there were armes secretly kept at Standish hall, he with a party of Dutch horse went in July last to search there, where he and those that went wth him found

²⁰ The Jesse MS. has "Lord Molyneux."

²¹ This Bruerton or Brereton is said to have been a saddler's apprentice who turned out no better than a common sharper.

²² This "not" is in pencil in a modern hand.

39 saddles, most of them warr saddles, y^t all the warr saddles were seemeingly new, w^{ch} he beleaved had never been used, the pannells being clean and white, that he there allso found a few belts with socketts for carrying Carbines, y^t there were a great many bridles fitt for troops, and p̄ticularly one fine bridle fitt for an officer, y^t some of the saddles were but ordinary hackney saddles, that there was one mourning saddle, that there was one Buff coat, that the mourning saddle he left, and the rest he seized and took away.

The forecited evidence for their Maties being thus given and no more witnesses being called, after some stay Mr Dicconson, one of the prison^{rs}, asked for himself and the rest, if that were all the evidence would be given ag^t them, moveing y^t, if they had more, they would give it all together; to w^{ch} Mr Justice Eyres said he must leave that to the King's Counsell. Whereupon Sr W^m Williams standing up said, to deal plainly, we have no further evidence to give, unless we have occasion given by what may fall from the prison^{rs} evidence.

SIR ROWLAND STANLEY then applyed himself to the Court and said :

My Lords, we are not able to make our observa^{ns} on all the improbabilities and incoheren^{ces} of the evidence given ag^t us, but we are well assured yo^r L^opp^s Justice will do it for us; there has been great industry used to conceale from us the p̄ticular matters we are charged withall; what discovery's we have made we owe to the providence of God, who protects the innocent; in the meantime we shall satisfy yo^r L^opp^s and the gentⁿ of the Jury that this is a bloody conspiracy ag^t our lives for the sake of our estates, carryed on by indigent and necessitous villaines.

Then Mr. Dicconson said further :

My Lords, it is no new thing to hear of sham plotts forg'd by persons for interest and designe; such a one was Fuller, who was order'd by a vote of the House of Co^mmons to be p̄secuted for an Impostor, and that of Whitney, who, to save his life after he had been condemned, gave informa^{ti}on of a plott, but the Ld chief Justice Holt upon ex^{am}ina^{ti}on detected it, and Whitney was executed the next day. Another of the like nature was that of Young and Blackett, w^{ch} is so well known to the Counsell and most of the gent^a of the Court y^t I need not to repeat it;²³ and I hope, my Lords, we shall make it appear y^t this designe ag^t us is of the same nature, and by our witnesses we shall be able to make it out.

After which the prison^{rs} had leave to call their witnesses, and the first was SIMON ARROWSMITH who being asked whether he knew John Lunt and what he knew of him sayd y^t in the year 1690 he the s^d Simon being undergaoler at Lanc^r, the s^d Lunt was then a prison^r there, very poor and shabby, but made himself buisy wth some other of the prison^{rs} to witt some Ireish men who had lately served in King James's army, asking if he might list them, some of them replyed, what has thou to do to list any body thou pawtry pedlars son? The s^d Simon further said, y^t Lunt sometimes used to goe by se^vall names, y^t in July last seeing Lunt in Manchester he saluted him by the name of M^r Lunt, who told the s^d Simon he was mistaken, his name was Smith, and turned away, but the weeke following the s^d Simon meeting the s^d Lunt at Wygan, there Lunt came to him, and invited him to drink, saying y^t his calling him by the name of Lunt at Manchester would have spoil'd the designe Lunt was then upon. Simon ask't what that designe was, Lunt answered an Informer for the King.

M^r JOHN BREERS being asked what he knew of Lunt's takeing moneys by the highwaies, gave an acc^t to this effect, y^t (not long since) he had known Lunt in a very poor and needy condi^{ti}on, and in very ill habit, and y^t the next time after he saw Lunt in a much better equipage and full of money, and the s^d M^r Breers speaking freely to Lunt said he was glad to see his condiſcōn ſo chang'd, and inquir'd what good fortune he had to appear ſo much better; to w^{ch} Lunt replyed, y^t he had been upon the merry pad; at w^{ch} time the ſd Lunt ſtaid ſome days at M^r Breer's houſe, and gott a neece of Breers to go with him to Ormeskirke to buy linnen for him there, who (as ſhe told M^r Breers) had bought very fine holland, M^r Lunt would have it ſo, tho it was much finer, as ſhe beleev'd, than ever M^r Lunt uſed to wear.

²³ For an account of these impostors see Jacobite Trials, pp. 22 and 80, notes; also Macaulay, 1690, ch. xv., 1692, ch. xviii.

CUTHBERT WILSON being asked what he knew of Lunt's padding upon the highway ſaid to this effect, th^t he was in company wth Lunt ſome time ago, who invited him to joyne wth him the ſd Lunt in beſetting the way, and who ſhowed him 2 horſes, asking the ſd Wilson, what he thought of thoſe horſes. Wilson replyed, that one of them was a broken belly'd horſe ſeemingly onely fitt for the cart, the ſd Lunt then ſaid a broken belly'd horſe, but y^t he about a month before had done a job upon the highway, and that horſe had carryed him off with £200 behind him. Whereupon the King's Counſell ſaid to Wilson: why did not y^u diſcover this to a Magiſtrate, who ſaid he knew not the law, nor what belong'd to't.

CHARLES BESWICK being asked what he knew of Lunt's ſelling a horſe in 1690 to 3 ſevall pſons in one day ſaid, y^t one W^m Stopford agreed of a price and gave Lunt earneſt for the ſd horſe, and being gone home to fetch the money Lunt, in the meantime, agreed to ſell the ſaid horſe to the ſaid Charles Beſwick, who knowing nothing of the former bargain gave him earneſt and was to have the horſe for £2 12s. 6d.; his houſe being near at hand he fetch't money and came back pſently, but in the meantime Lunt had ſold his horſe to a 3^d perſon, and taken earneſt of him, that his the ſd Beſwick's money came firſt, who having paid for the horſe took him away, and ſome time after having putt him into better caſe ſold him for 11 guineas.

LAWRENCE PARSONS being ask't, whether he knew Lunt and what acc^t he could give of him, he sayd Lunt was his brother in law, and y^t in June last, he was often in his company at London, who there asked the s^d Lawrence to joyne with him in informeing ag^t sev^{all} gentⁿ in Lancashire and Cheshire, promiseing him if he would do so he the s^d Lunt would enter the s^d Parsons in Captaine Baker's office, and that he should have 20^s a weeke p^sent pay, and when the buisness was done, he should haue £150,²⁴ but y^t Parsons should swear ag^t such p^sons and in such matters as he the s^d Lunt would direct him, but the s^d Parsons then saying he would not swear ag^t his countrymen that he knew nothing against; The s^d Lunt then told him y^t he the s^d Lunt and others were goeing into Lancashire, and y^t if Parsons would go along with them, they would bear his charges, w^{ch} he accordingly did, and came with them to Manchester; That after some stay at Manchestr^e Capt. Baker, Lunt, Womball²⁴, Ellis, and he the s^d Parsons, went to Worsley, the Ld Willoughby's house, and when the rest went into the house, Parsons understanding they were about to seize some gentⁿ refused to goe in amongst them, and afterwards, when they came from the house, he was sollicitod to joyne with them, Captaine Baker p^ticularly inviteing him, sayeing he was assured he was an honest man, and hoped he would serve his King and Country in that buisness; to w^{ch} Parsons replyed, he knew nothing ag^t the gentⁿ After w^{ch} Parsons goeing some little before the rest stopp^t at an alehouse door near Streetgate, and haveing there called for a cup of Ale, whilst he was drinking thereof the company came up and Womball amongst them, who said: Damm him, shoot him; this Rascall will betray us; after w^{ch} Ellis, another of the company, came to the s^d Parsons thanking God y^t he had no hand in his blood, for he was to have shot him, and thence Parsons went to Blackrod²⁵ with them and there left them.

Mr LEGH BANKES a gentⁿ of Grayes Inn, being produced a witnes for the prison²⁸ said y^t in September last Captaine Berris-²⁴ "And" here occurs in the MS., but has been erased with a pencil.

²⁵ Blackrod, a chapelry in the parish of Bolton, four and a half miles from Chorley.

ford, his intimate acquaintance who lodged wth him in his the s^d Mr Banks's chambers in Grayes Inn, there told him y^t M^{rs} Dicconson of Wrightington, wife to one of the prison^{rs}, had acquainted the s^d Mr Berrisford, that there was one Mr Taafe who had been supposed to be one to give evidence ag^t her husband and the rest of the Lancashire and Cheshire gentⁿ prison^{rs} then charged with Hightreason, had lately been wth her and told her that there was a great deal of villany designed ag^t those gentⁿ, and that Lunt was the principall evidence upon whom the whole plot was founded, y^t he was a rogue, for he had known him manifestly contradict himself in his evidence, and y^t he had heard Wilson and Womball say they knew nothing of this plott, but what Lunt had taught them, and y^t he had seen Lunt sevall times instruct them what they should swear, and offered y^t, if she had gentⁿ to befreind the prison^{rs} that would follow his the s^d Mr Taafes direc^{co}ns, he would so bring it about, y^t they should hear the whole roguery from Lunt's own mouth, and the s^d Capt. Berrisford told Mr Banks that he was afraid to go, being known to Mr. Taafe, and doubtfull of his designe, but Mr Banks replyed, he was sure he was known to none of them, and therefore he would adventure to go and hear what Mr Taafe would say, and accordingly he did go to one Mr Banister's house in Bromley Street, Druery lane, and there mett and told Mr Taafe y^t he came from M^{rs} Dicconson; the s^d Mr Taafe then presently told him, y^t, if he the s^d Mr. Banks would follow his advice, he would putt him in a way to discover the whole roguery design'd ag^t the gentⁿ prison^{rs}, w^{ch} was to be after this manner. One Lunt, he said, was the chief p^{er}son and the sole contriver of this designe ag^t the gentⁿ, who at p^{re}sent was at want of some p^{er}sons who look'd like gentⁿ, if such would come to his assistance and give evidence in this plott, their appearance would give credit to't, and y^t Lunt had laid hard upon Mr Taafe to provide him such p^{er}sons as in that respect were fitt for his purpose, and Mr Taafe sayd, y^t he was sure Lunt had so much confidence in him, y^t such p^{er}sons as Mr Taafe would recomend to him Lunt would at first sight entirely intrust, and so open himself, that they might learne as much from him as they could wish for discovering of the whole. That therupon M^r Bankes appointed M^r Taafe to come to his chambers in Gray's Inn the next morning. That in the meantime M^r Bankes distrusting his own fittnes to manage such a designe went to and prevail'd with his friend M^r Bagshaw of Gray's Inn to undertake it. That the next morning M^r Taafe, according to his promise, came to M^r Banke's chambers, and there being M^r Berrisford, M^r Taafe then repeated what the day before he had told M^r Bankes, after w^{ch} M^r Bankes fetch't his friend M^r Bagshaw, to whom againe M^r Taafe told all the same thing. Then they agreed to meet another time at the ship alehouse in Butcher Roe, where M^r Taafe was to tell Lunt to meet them. That in the meantime they had gone to Counsell that were their friends, and acquainted them wth their p^{ce}ed's, who highly disapproving of it, as a thing full of danger to themselves and that might be of ill construcc^on and a p^{re}judice to the gent^l to whom they designed well in it, thereupon M^r Bankes and M^r Bagshaw were in great doubts what to doe; however they resolved to go according to their appointm^t wth M^r Taafe, by that meanes to keep it in their power to p^{re}ceed as they should afterwards resolve. That they accordingly went, when seeing M^r Lunt with M^r Taafe who out of earnestness came with him, which they supposed he would not have done, the 3d M^r Bankes and M^r Bagshaw forbear to go there, resolving y^t M^r Bagshaw and Capt. Berrisford should go to Sir Bartholo. Shoar to be directed what was adviseable to doe, and they left M^r Bankes to stay in the house, tho' not in the roome where M^r Taafe and Lunt were till they returned, but before they came back, M^r Taafe came to M^r Bankes, and told him y^t Lunt had seen them come into the house, and y^t M^r Taafe had told Lunt those were the men y^t he had p^{re}cured him, therefore it was necessary y^t one or both of them should goe to him, else it would bring a suspicion on M^r Taafe, and that they would lose an opportunity to discover Lunt, the like whereof they could never gett againe, and said further, y^t if M^r Bankes would but come and drink a glass of ale wth Lunt, he need to say nothing unless he pleased.

Thereupon Mr Banks lett Mr Taafe bring Lunt up to him, who at his comeing up, saluted Mr Banks, saying he hoped he should be happy in his conversacōn, y^t if Mr Banks would assist him in this designe, he should be plentifully provided for; That he wanted gentⁿ of reputaōn to give creditt to his plott; then pulling out a writeing of 5 or 6 sheets of paper, w^{ch} he called his narrative of the plott, Mr Taafe read it over, the s^d Lunt applauding himself all the while for his contriveance in it, saying he could have been in Dodsworth plott, but he was resolved to have a plott of his own. Mr Taafe then said to Mr Banks he thought y^e narrative was Capt Baker's hand, to w^{ch} Lunt replied, yes it is so; that there were a great many persons some hundreds named in the narrative more than were prison^{rs} on that acc^t. That Mr Banks thereupon asked why these gentⁿ were taken up and not the others allso; to w^{ch} Lunt replied; we will do these people's business first, and, when that hath given credit to us, we will run through the body of the na^ōn. Then Mr Banks askeing what must be his part to doe, Lunt answered, he would tell him saying, he should serve him ag^t Mr Legh of Lime in p^ticular, whose business must be done; for he had a vast estate. Then Lunt asked Mr Banks if he could write a good hand, for he must have a Comission from King James, w^{ch} must be well writt, and if he could write well, he should write it himself. That Mr Banks askeing what they must do for King James's hand, Lunt bid him take no care, for that he the s^d Lunt would provide it. That they then appointed another time to meet, when Mr Banks would bring another freind who would come into the business with them; That against that time Lunt would have p^rvided the Comission for him and what he should swear, and that then Lunt, Mr Banks, and his freind should take an oath of secrecy together. That Mr Banks, upon his parting from Lunt, mett wth Capt Berrisford and Mr Bagshaw, and they went alltogether to the Counsell to acquaint them what was done, who thinkeing they had done a thing of dangerous consequence advised them, that since it was gone so far they should p^rsently draw up the whole matter into affidavits, and go before the Id chief Justice to swear to them, That they accordingly did draw up the acc^t of it to y^e effect related, and went before the Ld chief Justice Holt wth them, but he haveing read them said he must consider 'em, and desired them to leave them with him and to come againe, w^{ch} they accordingly did; and he then told them y^t he could not take such affidavits ag^t the King's evidence, but that this would be much more seasonable and of greater use to the prison^{rs} to be declared on their tryall. That afterwards M^r Bankes went to meet Lunt accordeing to his appointm^t to receive his Comission he was to have had from him, and his lesson what he was to swear. That comeing to the house they had appointed and inquireing for Lunt, they of the house told him, y^t Lunt was there and that there was a Constable wth him. Whereupon M^r Bankes not knowing why the Constable was with him apprehended there might be some designe ag^t him, imediately left the house, and went away, but afterwards it appeared it was a Constable that had Lunt a prison^r upon a warr^t granted pursuant to an Indictm^t found ag^t the sd Lunt at the Old Bailey for having two wives.

M^r JOHN TAAFE, who giveing his evidence to the same effect M^r Bankes had done said further, y^t his first acquaintance wth Lunt was in the year 16²⁶ when Lunt came to him and called himself M^r Widdrington, a near rela^{tion} of Ld Widdrington's, telling him the sd M^r Taafe, y^t he had married his the sd M^r Taafes wive's sister, y^t he had formerly been an officer under King James, but now being out of comand he was in necessity, and therefore designed to go to France, hoping to gett employm^t there, and desired of M^r Taafe that he would gett him a pass and a letter, w^{ch} he understood he could do from one M^r Dicconson who is now one of the prison^{rs}, to M^r Walmesley, brother in law to the sd M^r Dicconson, now allso a prison^r who Lunt understood, he sayd, was in France, but M^r Taafe replying he would not meddle with anybody that was freind to King James, but if he would accept an employm^t here under this Governm^t, the sd M^r Taaffe would use his interest for him, w^{ch} Lunt (passing then all along by the name of Widdrington) then agreed to, and sayd he would take the oaths to the Governm^t, p^ovided his employm^t lay out of London, for otherwise it would be known and displease his family.²⁷ That M^r Taaffe thinkeing well of him entertain'd him for some time, till heareing by the neighbourhood y^t his name was Lunt, and that he kept company wth Poole and Neland, two notorious known house-breakers, who were afterwards hang'd for Burglary, w^{ch} when M^r Taaffe heard he forbid him to come any more to his house, after w^{ch} he saw him not till about a year after, when Lunt comeing againe to him told him, that there was a designe on foot to kill King William, w^{ch} he could discover if he could gett himself introduced to the Secretary. Upon w^{ch} M^r Taaffe acquainted the Ld Bellamont with it, who, for the more secrecy, came to M^r Taaffe's house in the night to take what Lunt could say. That Lunt afterwards was carryed to give his informaⁿ before the Secretary, and accordingly did informe ag^t se^vall Kentish gentⁿ that were Protestants, but that his testimony either being single or not sufficiently credible, the gentⁿ were never imprisoned upon it, that things rested so for some time, when Lunt comeing againe to M^r Taaffe told him, that there was another plot on foot to bring in King James, w^{ch} he could discover, and that it was a protestant plott, and that no papists were concern'd in it, and y^t Lunt continued to say so till when M^r Taaffe had brought him to Capt Baker to draw his informaⁿ into good forme, after w^{ch} time protestants and papists were both accused, that things rested then for some time long^r, the Secretary sending out no warr^{ts} because the testimony was still single, y^t Lunt thereupon came to M^r Taaffe and acquainted him that nothing was like to be done, for that he wanted another evidence, desireing M^r Taaffe to help him to one, to w^{ch}

²⁶ In Major Blundell's MS. the date is not fully expressed: does this look as if that MS. were only a copy, though an old copy, of a still earlier MS., or was the writer of the Narrative waiting for exact information?

²⁷ From this it would appear that Lunt was neither an Irishman nor a Lancashire man, but a Londoner.

M^r Taaffe answered, that was not possible for him to doe, as having been no waies concern'd in it, but y^t he must go amongst his acquaintance who were his partners, and try if they would some of them come in; after w^{ch} Lunt meeting wth Womball, who sayd he had carryed some armes to some gentⁿ in Lancashire, Lunt carryed him before the Secretary to give his evidence, but that Womball all that time giveing evidence of carrying onely some few armes, and that seemeing too inconsiderable and foreigne to have any relaⁿ to what Lunt informed in, the Secretary still refused to send out warr^{ts}, telling him he must gett somebody y^t could confirme the evidence he had given. That some time after Lunt came to M^r Taaffe and told him that he had now found out a pson fitt for his purpose, he was one indeed y^t knew nothing of it, but y^t he would swear any thing for money, that his name was Willson who then lived chamberlaine att the Bear and ragged staff in Smithfield. That when Lunt had fitted him to give his evidence, Lunt went to M^r Aaron Smith and told him y^t he had now found out a gentⁿ, a freind of his, that knew as much as he, and would swear the same things, but y^t he lived within 2 miles of Preston in Lancashire, and that he wanted moneys to bring him up. Upon w^{ch} M^r Aaron Smith gave him 10 guineas, whereupon Lunt, as he told M^r Taaffe, went to Willson at the Bear aforesd, and divided the moneys with him, takeing each of them 5 guineas, and as soon as it could be probable y^t Willson could have come up from Lancashire, Lunt took him before the Secretary to give his informaⁿ. That imediately thereupon warr^{ts} were issued out ag^t diverse gentⁿ, that Lunt, Willson, and Womball, came down into the country at the same time with the warr^{ts}. That M^r Taaffe was likewise with them tho he was then sensible that the whole was a roguery, for y^t he had sevall times seen Lunt teach the sd Willson and Womball what they were to swear. And the sd M^r Taaffe further remembers as to Womball, y^t, some time before the time he now men^tions, he and Womball meeteing upon the road and travelling towards London amongst other discourse M^r Taaffe asked him, what buisness call'd him to London, he answered y^t he had some very good freinds there, p̄ticularly the Ld Macclesfield, whom he intended to request for his interest to assist him in being made govern^r of the House of Correc^ōn at Preston in Lancashire. Mr Taaffe then askeing him if he knew any thing of a plott carryed on by some gentⁿ there, he then answered he did not, but within a fortnight afterwards he meeting with Womball in London and discoursing together, Womball then told him he knew as much of the plott as any body. That Willson and Lunt went by se^vall names wth designe to escape any inquiry that should be made after their characters by psons that were freinds to the prison^{rs}: That there were se^vall other gentⁿ y^t Lunt had designed to informe ag^t, p̄ticularly S^r Willoughby Aston, S^r John Manwaring, M^r Norris of Speake, M^r Holt of Castleton &c. and Mr Taaffe telling him he would never be beleaved if he should informe ag^t those gentⁿ, they being so well known to be well affected to the p̄sent governm^t, Lunt thereupon replied, that they were as much concern^d as the rest, but if Mr Taaffe thought so, he the s^d Lunt would blott them out, w^{ch} he accordingly did: That Lunt informing amongst others ag^t M^r Legh of Lime, y^t he had delivered a Comission to him at Lime, Mr Taaffe, knowing that Lunt had never been at Lime nor ever seen M^r Legh, asked him, how he durst adventure to swear that, as being dangerous to betray him by mistakeing either the house or the man, to w^{ch} Lunt replied he would do well enough in that matter, for he would go along wth them that went to seize M^r Legh, and by that meanes would learne his p̄son and would make his observa^ōn of some roome in the house w^{ch} he should be able to swear to. That Mr Taaffe being sensible of the villany designed by Lunt and the rest, a long time considered how to discover it, as thinking it both a duty he owed to the innocence of the gentⁿ and a service to the governm^t, that with that designe he acquainted M^{rs} Dicconson, as before has been men^{cō}ned, and went along with M^r Bankes and others: That they were fearfull to trust him the s^d Mr Taaffe w^{ch} hindred him much in makeing a discovery, and y^t by offering those affidavits to the Ld chief Justice Holt, Mr Taaffe's designe had taken air, by w^{ch} meanes they were p^{re}vented getting the Comissions signed from Lunt and his instruc^{ti}ons what M^r Bankes should swear, M^r Taaffe being from that time suspected by M^r Aaron Smith and Capt Baker, who thence forward kept Lunt from speakeing to any body least he should againe betray himself by the like indiscretion: Further y^t M^r Taaffe brought another gent^l, one M^r Roger Dicconson, to the s^d Lunt, to whom he recomended him likewise as a p^{er}son that would come in to assist him in his plott: Then M^r Hollis, their Mat^{ies} Counsell, asked M^r Taaffe where he lived, he answered he kept a house in Berry Street in St James's London. M^r Hollis asked him further, what calling he followed, he answered, he had no calling. Mr. Hollis then asked him, if he had any visible estate, to which he replyed he had a pension from the King of £100 a year, w^{ch} was p^{er}cured him by the Lord Bellamont, his father haveing been killed in the King's service, and sayd y^t he lived upon that. M^r Hollis then asked him if he was so great a freind to the governm^t as he would seeme to be, and that since he was so well satisfyed of this roguery, as he now sayes, why he did not discover this sooner; to w^{ch} M^r Taaffe answered, y^t in the beginning of Lunt's discovery, he the s^d M^r Taaffe did beleeeve what Lunt said might be true, and therefore, as a freind to the governm^t he encouraged and assisted him with the meanes he had related to make the discovery, but that afterwards, and more especially when he was in the Country with them, he was convinced it was all villany, y^t he thereupon did endeavour to discover it, and p^{ar}ticularly applyed himself to one M^r Allenson, a clergy man, for that purpose, but y^t M^r Allenson, being fearfull of him or not crediting him, gave no heed to him, that afterwards, when they returned to London, he attempted to discover it se^{ve}all waies, as att one time by his taylor and another p^{er}son, a freind of his, designeing to have introduced them in the like manner he did M^r Bankes and M^r Dicconson, but getting his wife to acquaint M^{rs} Dicconson she reco^mended her brother M^r Roger Dicconson and the others, as has been said: That he durst not attempt to discover it any other waies, feareing y^t if he had gone directly to the Secretary to testify his knowledge therein and being but single ag^t the other three, he should not have gain'd beleefe: That what he designed therefore was to gett gentⁿ of reputaⁿ, and to introduce 'em to Lunt, as he did, whereby he knew Lunt would open himself so freely, as he did, and that, when the Comissions had been gain'd from Lunt and the instrucⁿs w^{ch} he would have given them of what they were to swear, they would alltogether have gone wth Lunt before the Secretary, as Lunt, no doubt, would have introduced them, supposing their evidence for him, at w^{ch} time they would have all made the discovery and made affidavits of the whole matter before the Secretary. M^r Baron Turton then asked him, but why did yⁿ not discover this to the Ld Bellamont, who being so much yo^r freind would, no doubt, have given yⁿ creditt, and being a man of Justice and Hono^r, would have took care to discover it; to w^{ch} M^r Taaffe replied, y^t he look'd upon that method he had menⁿed as the most likely, he feared, if he should discover it to the Ld Bellamont, he would not so far creditt him but y^t he would examine Lunt, in w^{ch} he doubted Lunt would gett such knowledge of his intent, as to make him carefull for the time to come to p^{re}vent M^r Taaffe from any opportunity to discover him in the way he menⁿed.

M^r ALLENSON, a witnes for the prison^{rs}, being asked what he knew of M^r Taaffe's offering to make a discovery sooner, to w^{ch} M^r Allenson answered, y^t he was curate to the hono^{able} Henry Finch, Rector of Winwick, and was Minister at M^r Legh's chappell in Newton, where, in July last, he saw Lunt, Womball, Willson, M^r Taaffe, and others come and call at Betty Boardman's door, an alehouse in the town, and M^r Taaffe seeing the said M^r Allenson standing at his own door called to him by the name of D^r, inviting him to drink with them. Whereupon comeing to their company, he heard the sd Lunt, Willson, and Womball very profanely swearing and cursing, their discourse being as a continued volley of oaths, w^{ch} made Allenson tremble to stay with them, and sayd that, amongst other things, their discourse was upon his good freind M^r Legh, and that some of them said M^r Legh was accused for entertayneing Coff Parker at his house, to w^{ch} M^r Allenson answered, y^t he had heard M^r Legh declare y^t he beleevd Coff Parker was never at his house, y^t he was sure he had never seen him there; upon w^{ch} M^r Taaffe presently (after the company was rid away) said to M^r Allenson he p^{er}ceived he was a freind to M^r Legh, and, as such, he could tell M^r Allenson something that would be much service to M^r Legh and the prison^{rs} if sometime M^r Allenson and he might talk together, but the s^d M^r Allenson, then lookeing on M^r Taaffe as a confederate with the rest, was afraid of being brought into danger, and therefore did not give M^r Taaffe the opportunity of makeing that discovery to him, w^{ch} he hath since supposed was M^r Taaffes inten^{cion} to doe, and so M^r Taaffe, without any time appointed for their further converse ab^t the thing, p^{ro}posed to be serviceable to M^r Legh, parted wth M^r Allenson, and rid after the rest of the company.

M^r ROGER DICCONSON,²⁸ brother to W^m Dicconson Esq^{re} one of the prison^{rs}, being next produced a witnes for the prison^{rs}, sayd, y^t being in London the first day of October last and going to see his sister Dicconson, she amongst other things related to him M^r Taaffe's undertakeing to make Lunt a discover^r of his own

²⁸ An account of these trials, written by Mr. Thomas Green, born in 1753, from the traditions of his family, alleges that an ancestor, Mr. John Green, was professionally engaged as attorney for the defendants, and aided Mr. Roger Dicconson to expose the false testimony of the government witnesses by the following scheme. Dressed as a carter in a frock, wig, and slouched hat, Mr. R. Dicconson made his way to the government solicitor at Preston, who was known to be entertaining Lunt and his associates at free quarters, and offered himself under a feigned name as witness. Over their cups he learned that they were not acquainted with the persons of the accused. He therefore gave false descriptions of them, by which they were completely misled, as appeared at the trial, and he induced them to fix on certain well known days, as Martinmas and Lammas, as the times at which they had met at particular houses for treasonable purposes. This enabled the prisoners to prove by numerous witnesses that they were not at the places mentioned on those days; for many who could not have remembered a particular day of the month had no difficulty in recording the occurrences of Martinmas and Lammas. The housekeeper's books

plott, if she had some freinds such gentⁿ as would follow M^r Taaffe's direc^{ns}, he, as he sayd, could so bring the matter about, y^t such gentⁿ might from Lunt's own mouth have a full discovery of the whole of all his the sd Lunt's contrivances. M^r Dicconson agreed to be one, and M^r Taaffe and he afterwards mett upon it and went together to a Coffee house in Fetterlane, where M^r Lunt did meet 'em, and upon his appearance M^r Taaffe told him that that gentⁿ was the p^{son} of whom he had spoke to him. Whereupon Lunt desired they might go up stairs, and being come to a private roome, after some saluta^{on}, Lunt asked M^r Dicconson his name and what his religion was, who call'd himself Howard, and said he was brought up a Church of England man; to w^{ch} Lunt replied, Howard was a noble name and would give a credit to the designe, and M^r Lunt said if he was a protestant he must be under M^r Legh, for he was a p^{testant}; had he been a papist, he must have been under the Ld Mollineux or some other papist. Then Lunt said to him he must come under an oath of secrecy, w^{ch} something surpriz'd M^r Dicconson; but M^r Dicconson turn'd off that discourse by proposing to know the termes on w^{ch} he must come to joyne wth M^r Lunt, saying y^t he was not a p^{son} that was in p^{sent} want of a crown or ten shillings; but if it were probable that he could make a fortune by it he would joyne with them; to w^{ch} Lunt answered, y^t they had Gould in for £100,000 a year, and that the inform^{ts} were to have a 3^d p^t of all the estates w^{ch} should were also produced to show that, on the days named by Lunt as occasions when they had dined together, no company had been entertained; for whenever a stranger was present, though only a Roman Catholic priest, an extra dish was provided, whereas on those days there had been only the usual number of dishes. Mr. R. Dicconson then entered the witness box under his feigned name, threw off his disguise, and related how the witnesses for the prosecution had acknowledged to him that they had neither carted arms nor had they ever seen the accused. Mr. Green represents the Attorney-General as saying in his fury that Mr. R. Dicconson must have been branded on the back as a rogue; but he disproved the assertion by baring it to his discomfiture. He adds that when the gentlemen were preparing to prosecute the witnesses for perjury they were served with notice by the government that, if they persisted, the penal laws should be enforced.

be recovered to the crown by their prosecution or to that effect. Then M^r Dicconson said he heard there were other psons as witnesses ingaged with him the s^d Lunt, p^ticularly one Womball whom he look'd upon as a very silly fellow that would spoile their buisness, and that for his part he would not see him, and unless Womball was turn'd off, M^r Dicconson said he would not be concern'd. Then Lunt said, he now having gott gentⁿ to assist him, he would turne off both Womball and Willson, for they were a couple of blockheads, could say nothing but as he had taught them. M^r Dicconson saying he had little acquaintance with y^e prison^{rs}, Lunt said t'[']was so much the better, for the gentⁿ not knowing him could not invalidate his evidence, as they had endeavoured to do his the s^d Lunts, and then asked M^r Dicconson, whether he had a Comission or no, who answered in the negative. Then Lunt said he would pcure him one. M^r Dicconson asked if he had any Comissions, he answered no, but pduced a peece of parchment w^{ch} he said was a Comission made in King James's time, and asked M^r Dicconson if he could write a good hand, designeing, if he could, y^t he should copy out the forme of the s^d Comission and putt other names therein. Then M^r Dicconson asked Lunt if he knew M^r Dicconson, the prison^{rs} brother, Lunt said yes very well, for he had delivered Comissions ab^t Christmas last to two of them v^{izt} M^r Roger Dicconson and M^r Hugh Dicconson. That M^r Dicconson at the latter end of their discourse applauding M^r Lunt's contrivance, as haveing made a pretty plott for the advancem^t of himself and freinds, the s^d Lunt own'd it with a great deal of satisfac^ōn, and thereupon offered to imbrace M^r Dicconson, but that M^r Dicconson avoided, but, at parting, said he hop'd he should do M^r Lunt's buisness effectually.

M^r PARKINSON,²⁹ another witnes produced by the prison^{rs}, declared y^t in July last he had his horses seized, and hearing that Lunt whom he had formerly known was one concern'd in the takeing of them, he went to him to try to gett his horses againe, and there falling into discourse wth him ab^t the buisness Lunt was then upon in seizeing of Papist's horses and swearing ag^t s^vall psons, as he heard he had done, the s^d Parkinson asked him, why he would be so ungratefull to requite those gentⁿ so ill who had releev'd him, when he was in poverty, to wh^{ch} Lunt answered, y^t what he now did was for King James's service, and y^t he was now more capable to serve him than ever he was in his life, for that he could comand the Dutch troop then at Wygan, and if King James appear'd they should all stand for him. That Lunt then solicited the s^d Parkinson to joyne with him to be an Informer ag^t those gentⁿ, w^{ch} if he would do Lunt said he could make him a man for ever, to w^{ch} Parkinson answering that he knew nothing ag^t any of them, Lunt replied y^t he knew as much as he the s^d Lunt did, Parkinson said that was nothing at all, for he was sure y^t he the s^d Parkinson knew nothing; to wh^{ch} Lunt replied as before. Well, I say againe, y^u know as much as I do. That Lunt would not take a denyall, but would give him time to consider, and appointed to meet him 4 days after. That M^r Parkinson had heard y^t Lunt came to the place and att the time appointed, but y^t M^r Parkinson never intending from the beginning to have any thing to do wth him therefore went not.

²⁹ This meeting took place at an alchouse called Peel.

SIMON APPLEBY, the next witnes for the prison^{rs}, said he knew George Wilson the before men^coned witnes for the King, who, in May 1693, was chamberlain at the Bear and ragged staff in Smithfeild, and continued so till June last, that there was one who call'd himself Johnson, but is the same pson who he has now seen give his evidence for the King by the name of Lunt, w^{ch} Johnson came often to Wilson at the Bear afores^d, and they would be in private together with pen, ink, and paper, that p^ticularly in June last the s^d Johnson came thither to Wilson and fetch't him out of the house, y^t after some time Willson came back and shakeing 5 guineas in his hand w^{ch} he shewed to the s^d Simon and said, see y^a, is not this a good morning's work? I have gott these this morning, and, if y^a will do as I do, y^a may have so too.

RICHARD EDGE was called by the prison^{rs} to prove a copy of the record ag^t George Wilson who was indicted and tryed at Lanc^r assizes 18^o Martii A^o 4^{to} Willi and Marie for stealeing of 4 cowes of W^m Walmesley, was convicted thereof, and burnt in the hand, w^{ch} copy the s^d Richard Edge pduced and delivered into Court to be read, averring y^t he had examined it with the record at Preston, and y^t it was a true copy thereof, w^{ch} was openly read by the clerk of the crown. The Court then demanded, who proves that this Wilson is the same pson men^coned in that record? whereupon the prison^{rs} called SIMON ARROWSMITH who lookeing upon Wilson did attest, y^t he the s^d Simon was undergaoler at Lanc^r at the s^d Assizes, and held fast the iron wherein Wilson's hand was put, whilst he the s^d Wilson was burnt in the hand for the fact before men^coned.

W^m TOMLINSON being called for another witnes affirmed, y^t he saw the same Wilson, the late witnes ag^t the prison^{rs}, burnt in the hand at the s^d Assizes for stealeing 4 cowes of W^m Walmesley.

M^r JOHN HARVEY likewise declared in Court, y^t he saw the s^d Wilson burnt in the hand at the s^d Assizes and for the fact afores^d.

The evidence before men^coned being given ag^t the validity of Wilson's testimony, M^r Justice Eyres did declare y^t Wilson haveing suffered the punishm^t of the law for it, that it did not take away his testimony, tho it might be a lessening of his creditt.

Mr WALTER THELWALL³⁰ being asked what he knew of any money that was stollen at Mr Blundell's house at the time the messenger came to search there, he declared to the effect following, vizt. that he was steward to the sd Mr Blundell, and in the house at the time the messenger came there, and whilst they were searching the house, they would not suffer him the sd Walter nor any pson of the house to stirr, y^t, when they had done searching, the sd Walter went to his own chamber w^{ch} he had left lock't, and found the door broken open, and considering he had left three pounds upon the table went to see if it were all there, and counting it he found it one and thirty shillings and sixpence short of what he left, and complaining thereof to the messeng^r, one Mr Ellis, an assistant to the messenger, said that onely Womball and he went in that roome, and prayed for his justification y^t Womball and he might be search't, offering himself first to be so. That Womball p^tended to have about him no more than 12s., that they were both search't, and the sd Walter pulling off Womball's boots found some moneys therein and some in his breeches knees, w^{ch} with that in his pocketts made up the moneys that was stollen. That the messeng^{rs} were so satisfyed in the matter that they paid the moneys back.

Mr BRIDGETT BLUNDELL spoke to the same purpose Walter Thelwall had done, and confirm'd his testimony throughout.

W^m ASHTON, another witnes for the prison^{rs}, said he knew Womball, and that they were both broken Carryers; and meeteing together in London, Womball asked Ashton how he lived since his misfortune, the sd Ashton answered, y^t he would gladly gett some imploy^{mt}. Whereupon Womball invited and took him to lye wth him att the red lyon in Fetter lane. That Womball there told him he could help him to a messenger's place, if he could do any thing to deserve it, asking him what he could do; to w^{ch} Ashton answered he could both read and write. Womball replyed writeing and readeing would signify nothing, but if he would swear hard he could help him to a place, and then told him y^t he would have him swear ag^t some gent^l y^t were then prison^{rs}, p^ticularly y^t he should swear y^t he had carryed armes for the Lord of Lime to Lime and Haydock. That he would not be suspected because the sd Womball knew the sd Ashton had carryed goods for M^r Legh, when he the sd Ashton was serv^t to Bamford. Womball would likewise have Ashton swear, y^t, when he lived at Worcester, M^r Legh mett the Ld. Conventry to consult there. Ashton said he never carryed armes in his life for M^r Legh, nor y^t he ever knew y^t M^r Legh was at Worcester, therefore he could not swear any such thing. Womball told him he could not then help him to any place. That Womball frequently press'd him againe to swear, telling him he would give him in writing what he should swear, and, if Ashton would swear so, he should have 20^s a week, till he gott a messenger's place, and y^t he must lash out if he hoped for any thing.

³⁰ Mr. Blundell, father of the prisoner, put the life of Mr. Thelwall into a tenement in Little Crosby for nothing; and the prisoner's son, Mr. Nicholas Blundell, afterwards added the life of Walter Thelwall's son, also for nothing; but he seems to have subsequently proved ungrateful for the favour conferred. "Walter Thelwall the Father," writes Nicholas Blundell Esq., "did not whilst he was my servant, carry himself as if he had received any favour or kindness from this family, and after he left my service I had no reason to look upon him as a Friend to me, nor a well wisher to the Township of Little Crosby, but much otherways."—The Tenants Booke (Blundell MSS.).

THOMAS GREENHALGH, being ask't what he had heard Womball say at any time, declared, y^t, about 11 weekes since, the sd Womball came to him and said, Thomas, I have not yet lost my eares, before I loose my eares, I'll have some of their lives; God damm Standish, I'll have his blood.

JOHN BROWN, another witnes for the prison^{rs}, being likewise ask't what he had heard Womball at any time say, declared, y^t ab^t 13 weekes agoe, Womball came to the new house on round moor in Wygan lane, being the sd Browne's father's house, and upon his discourse ab^t Papists said, it was no more sin to hang a Papist than a dog, and y^t, another time, he heard the s^d Womball say to the s^d Brownes father ; see thee, I am come home with my cares, and all the Papists of Lancashire shall know it ; I will have their lives and estates, and God Damm Standish, I'l have his blood.

M^r RICHARD SHONE, a witnes called by S^r Rowland Stanley, was ask't by him what he had heard M^r Bruerton, one of the witnesses, at any time say ag^t the s^d S^r Rowland, t^o w^{ch} he answered, y^t, about Lady day 1692, the s^d Bruerton took lodgings at the s^d M^r Shone's house and staid with him some time, durence w^{ch} he had se^vall times heard him say ; God damm S^r Rowland Stanley and his cozen Legh of Lime, they were two pittifull fellowes and would give him nothing, and he would be reveng'd of 'em when time served.

M^r SHONE'S WIFE, called a witnes for S^r Rowland Stanley testified the same.

M^r FARRER, another witnes called for the same purpose, testified the same M^r Shone and his wife had done.

D^r WILLIAMSON, another witnes called, testified as the 3 last witnesses had done, and added, y^t he had heard the s^d Bruerton say, y^t he would have S^r Rowland Stanley's blood, and further y^t at another time he heard Bruerton confess, y^t he had murder'd a man in France, and was forced to fly thence for that reason.

M^r ROBERT ROTHWELL, another witnes whom S^r Rowland Stanley p^{duced} to testify y^t S^r Rowland was not at Croxteth or elsewhere in Lancashire in any part of the months of June or July 1689 as Lunt had sworne, being ask't to that purpose did declare, y^t he could take upon him to swear y^t, from the beginning of June to the latter end of October 1689, he the sd Rothwell did morning and evening constantly dress and undress Sir Rowland his master at Hooton in Cheshire, S^r Rowland Stanley's house, and y^t he was not any morning or evening in all that time absent from his own house, and Rothwell further said, y^t he was serv^t to S^r Rowland in the year 1690 till the latter end of September y^t year, and y^t S^r Rowland Stanley in all that time went no where abroad, but when the sd Rothwell waited of him, and therefore can positively say, y^t S^r Rowland was never in Standish hall in Lancashire in all that time.

M^{rs} ELIZth MOLINEUX, another witnes p^duced to testify where S^r Rowland Stanley was in February and March 1691, declared, y^t she waited on S^r Rowland Stanley's lady as her maid in the year 1691 and for se^vall years before, and y^t every morning and evening in February and March that year she can positively say she saw S^r Rowland Stanley either in his bed or chamber at Hooton in Cheshire, S^r Rowland Stanley's house.

M^r WILLIAM BLUNDELL, who waited on S^r Rowland Stanley in his chamber from December 1690 psently after the time M^r Rothwell had left him, being examined to the purpose M^{rs} Molineux had been testified the same.

DOROTHY TAYLOR, chambermaid to S^r Rowland Stanley at Hooton for 7 or 8 years past, and being examined to the same purpose, testified as the two last witnesses had done.

M^r FRANCIS JACKSON, an Ensigne in the Militia of Cheshire, being asked how often he had searched Hooton in Cheshire, S^r Rowland Stanley's house, for armes since the revolu^con answered he had by orders search't it 3 times, that one time he found a case of Pistolls and a Carrobine belonging to the light horse, and, at another time, 2 birding pieces w^{ch} were all the armes he ever found there, and being ask'd further by S^r Rowland whether the sd Mr Jackson had ever heard yt S^r Rowland Stanley had accepted any employm^t in the Militia in King James's time, and what character S^r Rowland bore in his country wth respect to his behaviour to the Govern^t, Mr Jackson answered, y^t he never heard y^t S^r Rowland had accepted of any Comission in King James's time, and beleaved he never did, and for his character he was alwaies look't upon as a person of quiett and peacefull behaviour.

Mr GILBERT HEYES, S^r Tho: Cliftons steward, p^duced to testify y^t S^r Thomas was not at Croxteth in the months of June or July 1689, as Lunt had sworne, declared y^t he came to S^r Thomas as his steward in the year 1689, some time before June, and that being come a stranger into S^r Tho^s business he was oblig'd to reside very constantly at Lithom y^t year, and he positively said y^t S^r Tho: Clifton was not any one night from his own house, when the sd Heyes was there, till the time S^r Thomas was carried to Preston as a prison^r.

ROGER , S^r Tho: Cliftons groome, declared y^t he had served S^r Tho Clifton this 30 yeares, and testified the same thing as the last witness had done.

THO: PATTEN ESQ^{re},³¹ being produced a witnes on behalf of S^r Tho: Clifton, declared y^t he being one of the Deputy Lieuten^{ts} of Lancashire in the year 1689, re^{cd} orders from the Ld Lieuten^t to secure se^vall of the Popish gent^{ns}, that amongst them S^r Tho: Clifton was one who was taken and brought prison^r to Preston, upon the 16th ³² day of June 1689; y^t S^r Thomas being a very infirme man, and being unfitt to be carryed so far as Manchester, w^{ch} was the place where the rest of the popeish gent^{ns} then made prison^{rs} were secured, M^r Patten undertook for S^r Thomas, and ³¹ He resided at Preston, was lord of the manor of Thornley, and a barrister at law. He was M.P. for Preston in 1688, and died at that place about 1697.

³² The day is omitted in the MS., though a blank space has been left for it; I have therefore inserted it from the Jesse MS.

pvailed to have him kept at M^r Patten's own house in Preston, where he continued prison^r, and was not discharged till January att w^{ch} time all the gentⁿ were sett at liberty; that dureing that time S^r Thomas se^vall times express't to the said M^r Patten much zeal and affection to the p^sent governm^t, saying how much the p^sons of his religion ought to be satisfyed with their usage under it, as putting no difference betwixt them and other subjects, save in the public exercise of their religion, so long as they themselves would live quiett; y^t he often p^tested for himself y^t he could never endure to think of practising any change, and M^r Patten further said y^t he very well knew S^r Tho's disposition to have allwaies been peaceable and quiett.

Then M^r Dicconson prayed leave of the Court y^t he might call witnesses to prove y^t M^r Walmesley was not in England in February 1691, as M^r Lunt had swore he was at Dunkenhalth, nor any part of that year, for y^t M^r Walmesley went out of England in the month of January 1688 beyond the seas, and there staid till ab^t May last, at w^{ch} time he returned into England, and consequently could not at Dunkenhalth, in February 1691, deliver a Comission to him the s^d M^r Dicconson to be his Lieuten^t Col^l, and the first witness called to prove it was

S^r HENRY WINGFEILD, who declared y^t he became p^ticularly acquainted wth M^r Walmesley, one of the prison^{rs}, at Pontois in France, about the month of August 1691, and from thence till the month of June 1692. S^r Henry affirmed y^t M^r Walmesley continued in France, for y^t he the s^d S^r Henry dined, or visited him in France twice or thrice a week dureing all that time.

M^r JOHN PERKINS, govern^r to S^r Henry Wingfeild, declared he was very well assured y^t S^r Henry was acquainted wth M^r Walmesley in August 1691, and continued to dine wth or visit him in France twice or thrice a weeke till ab^t June 1692, as the sd S^r Henry had related, for y^t he the sd M^r Perkins was wth S^r Henry all the time beforemen^cōned.

M^r WIDDRINGTON, bro: to the Ld Widdrington, the next witnes who said y^t he became acquainted wth M^r Walmesley, one of the prison^{rs}, at Paris in March 1690, that from that time till Aprill 1692, he constantly visited M^r Walmesley in France once or twice a week.

M^r ROBERT WINGATE, who waited on M^r Walmesley in his chamber, declared y^t he went out of England with his master into France in January 1688^s, and liv'd with him there, in w^{ch} kingdome M^r Walmesley his master continued till ab^t May last, that constantly morning and evening he dressed and undressed his sd master, y^t he was not above a weeke absent from his master in all that time, and y^t M^r Walmesley was never 14 leagues³³ from Paris excepting once at the waters of Forge in Normandy.

THO: BRADDYLL ESQ^{re}, Justice of peace, the next witnes called, who said he lived within 2 or 3 miles from Dunkenhalth, M^r Walmesley's house, and never heard M^r Walmesley was there since he went out of England in the year 1689, and verily beleaved y^t M^r Walmesley and so many gentⁿ wth him, as M^r Lunt men^cōned, could not have mett there but y^t he the sd M^r Braddyll, being so near a neighbour, should have heard something of it, w^{ch} he affirmed he never did.

Then M^r Dicconson offered to call more witnesses to prove the same thing, but the Court was so well satisfyed in that matter, they would not suffer any more to be called.

After M^r Dicconson had thus concluded his evidence, M^r Langton, another of the prison^{rs}, moved the Court saying: I hope yo^r Lo^{pps} do observe for me y^t the same evidence that has been given on behalf of M^r Dicconson proves as direct for me, y^t I could receive no Comision from M^r Walmesley at that time, he being as you have heard in France.

³³ The text of the Jesse MS. has "20" leagues.

After which M^r Blundell, another of the prison^{rs}, moved the Court as followes: My Lords, I have not the same advantage as the rest of the gentⁿ have had ag^t Lunt's testimony to disprove him in that part of the evidence he has given, y^t I was at Croxteth in June or July 1689; for, my Lords, I liv'd a neighbour to Croxteth, and I must own I have visited the Ld Molineux sometimes as a neighbour: what I can say is, how unfitt a p^{son} I am for any such comand as M^r Lunt has given me lett any of you judge, who am lame both of my hands and feet, and cannot gett upon a horse without help — to w^{ch} M^r Justice Eyres replyed, but when you are on horseback y^u can ride.

The prison^{rs} having thus concluded their evidence, the King's Counsell and the prison^{rs} both declined to summ it up to the Jury, but referr'd it wholly to the Court, and M^r Justice Eyres repeateing the evidence fully on both sides, concluded to the Jury:

Gentⁿ, There is a mystery of iniquity on one side, if y^u beleeeve the evidence y^t has been given for the King then it is plaine there hath been a great contrivance to bring in the French amongst us and raise a rebellion here, and that these gentⁿ were actors in it; but if y^u do beleeeve y^t this is a contrivance of Lunt and the rest to ruin these gentⁿ at the Barr, to take away their lives and estates hoping to enrich themselves thereby, as the witnesses for the prison^{rs} have declared, then the fault will lye more upon the accusers: if y^u beleeeve it to be so, the gentⁿ then are innocent, and y^u must acquitt 'em.

Then M^r Justice Eyres said to the Jury: Gentⁿ, this is a matter deserves great considera^{on}: we have sate here a long time, we will adjourne for 2 hours and then come into Court againe. In the mean time y^u are to consider how credible the testimony is that has been given ag^t the witnesses for the King.

Then a Bayliffe was sworn to keep the Jury, but they saying they needed no time, turn'd themselves together, and after a short stay agreed upon their verdict without going out of Court, and being call'd over, and the prison^{rs} sett severally to the Barr, and the Court demanded³⁴ of the Jury to each of the prison^{rs} whether guilty or not guilty, they gave their verdict to each apart: not guilty. Then Mr Justice Eyres said to the gentⁿ acquitted:

Gentⁿ, y^u see under what a mercifull and easy governm^t y^u live; y^u are sensible now that it is tender of the lives of Papists as well of Protestants; y^u are wash't from this guilt, lett me desire y^u to reflect on y^r happiness, and beware of ever entring into plotts and conspiracies ag^t it.

The Ld Molineux, S^r W^m Gerard Barr^t, and Bartholomew Walmesley Esq^{re}, were brought to the Barr, and the impannell w^{ch} were the first returned, being all gentⁿ of quality, and called, S^r Edward Chisenhall their foreman excused himself to the Court from that service, haveing, as he said, been challenged by the King's Counsell on Saturday, and if he was not then thought fitt to serve he supposed he was not fitt now, but the Court disallowing the excuse, he was called to the book and sworne, and so were the rest, without any challenge on either side; and the Indictm^{ts} ag^t the prison^{rs} were severally opened, and the Jury charged wth the prison^{rs}. The witnesses for the King and Queen were called, but none appeareing, Mr Justice Eyres told the Jury they must acquitt 'em unless they of their own knowledge knew something ag^t them; so the Jury turneing themselves together immediately after gave in their verdict to each of the prison^{rs} apart: not guilty.

Then Mr Justice Eyres said:

Gentⁿ, you that are acquitted, y^u have here a very pregnant instance shewn to y^u that the Court refuses to give creditt, or so much as an ear to what the witnesses on Saturday have sworn to, and since there are none y^t accuse y^u, I don't condemn y^u.

³⁴ The Jesse MS. has, more correctly, demanding.

Gentⁿ, most of yⁿ if not all have been brought up in France, where the complexion of governm^t is much differing to this of ours, here the King rules by law, there his will and pleasure is a law; and therefore lett me advise yⁿ to study to be quiet ev^y one to mind his own buisness, and not to follow them who are given to change. Gentⁿ, no question but the Jesuits will be ready enough to suggest altera^{ti}on, but y^ul never be better'd by altering. Remember, Gentⁿ, y^t they are p^{er}sons who have no estates to loose, and they will not care for ruining yⁿ if they have but hopes of getting any thing thereby. Lett me therefore say to yⁿ, Go and sin no more lest a worse thing befall yⁿ.

INDEX.

(I.) refers to Abbott's Journal.

(II) " The Tryalls at Manchester.

- ABBADIE, Dr., (II.) xvi.
- ABBOTT, RICHARD, notices of, (I.) ii; arrival at Liverpool, 1; arrest and liberation on bail, 2; second arrest on a charge of high treason, 2, 3; sent prisoner to London, 3; committal to Newgate, 5; his sufferings there, 6, 7, 14; petition to the king, 8; its result, 9, 10; brought up under the Habeas Corpus act, 10; refusal of bail and re-committal to Newgate, 11, 12; certificate on his behalf, 12, 13; petitions the Privy Council, 15, 17, 18, and lord chief justice Holt, 18; obtains counsel's opinion in his favour, 22, 23; bailed and bound to appear at Lancaster assizes, 24; trial and acquittal, 31; his expenses, 2, 3, 4, 5, 8, 9, 10, 12, 16, 19, 23, 24, 25, 26.
- Ague, treatment of, (I.) 14.
- Allenson, Rev. Mr., (II.) 26; his evidence, 27-8.
- Allin, Mr., (I.) 3.
- Anderton, —, (II.) xiv.
- Appleby, Simon, his evidence, (II.) 31.
- Arrowsmith, Rev. William, his evidence, (II.) 16, 32.
- Ashton, Mr., (I.) 26.
- , William, his evidence, (II.) 33-4.
- Ashurst, Joshua, his evidence, (II.) 13.
- Aston, sir Willoughby, (II.) 25.
- Atherton, Rev. William, rector of Liverpool, (I.) 13.
- BAGSHAW, Mr., (II.) 20, 21.
- Bail bond, copy of, (I.) 26.
- Baile, Mr., solicitor, (II.) 1.
- Baker, captain, (II.) v, viii, xii, xvii, 1, 18, 21, 23, 26; his evidence, 14-5.
- Bamford, —, (II.) 34.
- Banister, Mr., (II.) 19.
- Bankes, Legh, (II.) 25, 26; his evidence, 18-22.
- Beamont, William, (II.) ix, xvi, xvii.
- Bellamont, lord, (II.) 23, 26, 27.
- Benn, James, bailiff of Liverpool, (I.) 2.
- Berrisford, captain, (II.) 18, 19, 20, 21.
- Beswick, Charles, his evidence, (II.) 17.
- Black rock, near Liverpool, (I.) 1.
- Blackburne, Jonathan, (II.) 5.
- Blackett, —, (II.) 16.
- Blackrod, near Bolton, (II.) 18.
- Blundell MS.* (II.) xvi, xvii, 22.
- family, of Crosby, (II.) xiii, xvii, xviii.
- , Nicholas, (II.) xii, xviii, 33.
- , William, of Little Crosby, (II.) 33; notice of, x-xii.
- , William, jun., of Little Crosby, (II.) xii, 3, 4, 7, 10, 11; his defence, 40.
- , William, his evidence, (II.) 36.
- Boardman, Betty, (II.) 27.
- Bootle, Tho., (I.) 28.
- Boscowen, J., privy councillor, (I.) xiv.
- Braddyll, Thomas, (II.) 4; his evidence, 39.
- Bradshaw, Tho., of Lumm, (II.) 2.
- Breers, John, his evidence, (II.) 16.
- Bromfield, Dr. William, (I.) 30, 31, (II.) vii, 9, 10.
- Brown, John, his evidence, (II.) 34.
- Brown, Risley, (II.) 5.
- Bruerton, colonel Urian, (II.) 2, 35; his evidence, 14.

CAPEL, sir Henry, (I.) xiv, xv.
 Carrington, lord, (II.) 1.
 Carmarthen, marquess of; see Osborne.
 Carter, Thomas, (I.) xi, xii.
 Case, Jonathan, (II.) 95.
 Catholics, patriotism of the, (I.) vii, viii.
 Cawson, Charles, (I.) iii; (II.) 9.
 Chairs and chairmen, (I.) 4.
 Chisenhale, sir Edward, knt. (II.) 4, 41.
 Chorley, John, alderman of Liverpool, (I.) 13.
 Chrichloe, Wm., (II.) 5.
 Clayton, Jn., of Shorrock green, (II.) 5.
 —, Jn., of Little Harwood, (II.) 5.
 —, Mr., (I.) 11.
 Clerkenwell, notice of, (I.) 16.
 Clifton, sir Thomas, bart., (II.) ix, 3, 4, 7, 8, 10, 11, 12, 13, 37, 38.
 Cockerham, (II.) vii, 9.
 Coventry, lord, (II.) 34.
 Conway a harbourage for papists, (I.) xi.
 Cooper, B., (I.) 17, 19.
 Covent Garden, notice of, (I.) 25.
 Cowley's (Abraham) prayer, (I.) iii.
 Croston hall, notice of, (I.) i.
 Croxteth, near Liverpool, (I.) v, 2.

DALTON, Mr., (II.) 10.
 Dandy, Andrew, of Lostock, (II.) 2.
 Danvers, Dan., (I.) 13.
 Davenport, Francis, (II.) 5.
 Derby, Elizabeth countess of, (I.) 4, 14.
 Dicconson, William, of Wroughtington, (II.) ix, 3, 4, 7, 10, 11, 12, 13, 22, 28, 38; his defence, 15-16, 38-9.
 —, Mrs., his wife, (II.) 19, 25, 26, 28.
 —, Hen., (II.) 5.
 —, Hugh, (II.) 30.
 —, Roger, (II.) 26; his evidence, 28-30.
 Diggle, Joh., (II.) 6.
 Dockwray, —, (II.) v.
 Dodsworth plot, (II.) 21.
 Dolben, sir William, (I.) 32.
 Dolbin, J., (I.) 12.
 Drinkwater, Samuel, (II.) 5.
 Drogheda, notice of, (I.) 1.
 Dublin, (I.) vii.
 Duerden, George, (II.) 6.

EARLE, John, (II.) 6.
 Edge, Richard, his evidence, (II.) 32.
 Egerton, Ralph, (II.) 5.
 Ellis, —, (II.) 18, 33.

Entwisle, Bertie, (I.) 26; notice of, 31.
 Eyre, sir Giles, (II.) xiv, 1, 2, 4, 10, 11, 14, 15, 32, 40, 41; his charge to the jury, 40; address to prisoners, 41-2.
 —, Rowland, (II.) xii.
 —, sir Samuel, (II.) xiv, 1.

FARRER, Mr., his evidence, (II.) 35.
 Farrington, Geo., (II.) 5.
 —, Wm., (II.) 4.
 Finch, Daniel, earl of Nottingham, secretary of state, (I.) v, 3, 4, 9, 14, 20, 21, 24; notice of, xiv; (II.) 23, 24, 27.
 Fletewood, Rich. of Leyland, (II.) 2.
 Flockborough in Cartmel, notice of, (I.) 27.
 Forge, waters of, 39.
 Foxcoft, George, (I.) 26, 27.
 Freeman, councillor, (I.) 24.
 Frost, Walter, of Cockerham, (II.) 2.
 Fuller, a plotter, (II.) 15.

GAOLS, charges in, (I.) 14.
 Gartside, Robt., (II.) 6.
 Gerard, Charles lord, of Brandon, (I.) viii.
 —, Myles, (I.) 26.
 —, sir William, (II.) ix, 2, 3, 10, 41.
 —, Mr., (II.) 10.
 Goddard, Peter, (II.) v.
 Goodman's fields, London, notice of, (I.) 24.
 Goreing, Mr., (I.) 11, 25.
 Goring, George, (I.) 11.
 Gormanston, viscountess, notice of, (I.) 1.
 Gould, serjeant, (II.) xiv, 1; his address to the jury, 7-8.
 Gourdon, —, (II.) 9.
 Greaves, Edwd., (II.) 6.
 Green, John, (II.) 6.
 —, Jonathan, (II.) 5.
 —, Thomas, his account of the trials, (II.) 28-9.
 Greenefield, Mr., (I.) 26.
 Greenfield, sir Chrsfe, (II.) 3.
 Greenhalgh, Thomas, his evidence, (II.) 34.
 Greg, Joseph, of Chamberhall, (II.) 2.
 Gregory, J., (I.) 12.
 Grimbaldeston, Jn., (II.) 5.
 Guyse, sir John, (II.) 5.

HAGGERSTON, Thomas, of Haggerston castle, (II.) x.
 Halifax, marquess of; see Savile.

Hall, Nich., (II.) v.
 Hamond, Jn., (II.) 6.
 Hampden, Richard, (I.) xiv; notice of, xvi.
 Hampton court, notice of, (I.) 4.
 Harrington, Mr., (II.) 10.
 Hartley, Rich., (I.) 11.
 Harver, John, his evidence, (II.) 32.
 Heap, Rich., (II.) 5.
 Hesketh, Alexander, (II.) 5.
 —, Barnaby, (II.) 2.
 Heyes, Gilbert, his evidence, (II.) 37.
 Hicks hall, London, notice of, (I.) 16.
 Hide, Robert, (II.) 2.
 Higginson, Henry, (I.) 13.
 Hilton, James, (II.) 6.
 —, carrier, (II.) 11.
 Holland, Cuthb't., (II.) 5.
 Hollis, Mr., (II.) xiv. 1, 26.
 Holt, lord chief justice, (I.) 12, 18, 24; (II.) 16, 22, 25; notice of, 20.
 —, Mr., of Castleton, (II.) 25.
 Hooper, Joseph, (II.) 2.
 Hopwood, John, of Hopwood, (II.) 2.
 Horton, Joshua, of Chaderton, (II.) 2.
 Howard, sir Robert, (I.) xiv; notice of, xv.
 —, lord Thomas, (II.) 9.
 Howe, sir Scroop, (II.) v.
 Hulme, Hugh, (II.) 5.
 Hulton, Henry, of Hulton, (II.) 2.

INDICTMENT, copy of the, (I.) 28.
 Ingleby, sir Charles, (I.) 18, 20; notice of, 10.

JACKSON, Francis, his evidence, (II.) 36-7.
 —, (II.) 11.
 James II., (I.) vii; (II.) iii, vii, viii, xi, 9, 12.
Jesse MS., (II.) xvi, xvii, 1. 2, 5, 6, 7, 9, 12, 13, 39.
 Johnson, James, (II.) 6.
 —, John, (II.) 2.
 —, Thomas, alderman of Liverpool, (I.) 13.
 Jump, frigate master, (I.) 1.

KIDDERMINSTER, notice of, (I.) 6.
 Kingston, Dr. Richard, (I.) iii, iv; (II.) xvi.
 Kirby, Mr., (I.) ix.

Kirk, major-general, (I.) v, xviii, 2.
 Knowles, John, carrier, (II.) 11, 12; his evidence, 13.

LA Hogue, army of invasion at, (II.) 8.
 Langdale, lord, (II.) xvii.
 Langton, Philip, (II.) ix, 3, 4, 7, 11, 12; his defence, 38-9.
 Leech, John, (II.) 6.
 Legh, Mr., of Lyme, (II.) xvii, 12, 21, 25, 27, 28, 29, 34, 35.
 Leigh, Wm., (II.) 5.
 Levinz, sir Creswell, notice of, (I.) 22.
 Lightbourne, Jn., (II.) 5.
 Lindsey house, London, notice of, (I.) 17.
 Liverpool in 1689, (I.) vi, 1, 2.
 Livesay, Ralph, of Livesay, (II.) ii.
 Longworth, Rich., (II.) 5.
 Lowd, Wm., (II.) 2.
 Loxam, Thomas, (II.) 5.
 Luis, Mr., (I.) 2.
 Lunt, John, political informer, (I.) iii; (II.) iii, xix, 1, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 29, 30, 31, 35, 37, 38, 40; notice of, vi-viii; his evidence, 8-12.
 Lyme, Oliver, alderman of Liverpool, (I.) 13.

MACCLESFIELD, lord, (II.) 25.
 Manchester, excitement at, (II.) xv, xviii.
 Manwaring, sir John, (II.) 25.
 Mare, Mr., Preston, (II.) 11.
 Marshall, John, (I.) 26, 27.
 Mary, queen, wife of William III. (I.) 4.
 Mawdsley, Robert, (II.) 5.
 Meadowcroft, Francis, (II.) 5.
 Meath, earl of, (I.) x; letters from, xi, xii.
 Melfort, earl of, (II.) 9, 12.
 Molineux, Elizth., her evidence, (II.) 36.
 Mollineux, William, (II.) 5.
 Molyneux, Caryll viscount, (I.) ii, v, 1, 12, 13; (II.) ix, 3, 10, 14, 29, 40, 41.
 —, Mr., his son, (II.) 10, 13.
 Monmouth, lord, (II.) v.
 Moore, Roger, (II.) xiv, 1.
 Morgan, John, governor of Chester castle, (I.) x; letter from, xii.
 Moseley, sir Edward, (II.) xiv, 1.

Mosley, Hen., (I.) 24.
 Moss, James, (II.) 6.
 Mountgarett, lady, (II.) xviii.

NAPS, Mr., (II.) xiv, 1.
 Neland, a housebreaker, (II.) 23.
 Newgate, treatment of prisoners in, (I.)
 6, 7, 14, 16; its press yard, 5, 6.
 Newton, scene at an alehouse in, (II.) 27.
 Norris, Alexander, (I.) 13.
 —, Thomas, of Speke, (II.) xii, 2, 25.
 Nottingham, earl of; see Finch.

OLD Bailey, antiquity of the judicial sittings at, (I.) 15.
 Osborne, Thomas, marquess of Carmarthen, (I.) 19; notice of, xvi.

PARKER, colonel, (II.) 28.
 —, Hen., (II.) 5.
 Parkinson, Mr., his evidence, (II.) 30.
 Parliament, opinion of, (II.) xix.
 Parsons, Lawrence, his evidence, (II.) 17-18.
 Patten, Wm., (II.) 5.
 —, Tho., his evidence, (II.) 37-8.
 Pearson, Oliver, his evidence, (II.) 13.
 Peel alehouse, (II.) 30.
 Penn, William, (II.) iii.
 Percival, Rich., (II.) 5.
 Perkins, John, his evidence, (II.) 38.
 Pluckington, Matt., (I.) ii.
 Poole, a housebreaker, (II.) 23.
 Powell, sir John, (II.) xiv, 1.
 Prescott, James, alderman of Liverpool,
 (I.) 13.
 Prescott, Oliver, (I.) 28.
 Prince, Jane, (I.) ii.
 Prisoners, treatment of, (II.) 20.

RADCLIFFE, Alexander, of Leigh,
 (I.) 2.
 Rawstorne, Lawrence, (II.) 4.
 Reddish, captain, (II.) 13.
 Richinson, maior or keeper of Newgate prison, (I.) 5, 9, 16, 20, 21, 25.
 Richmond, rev. Richard, (I.) 13.
 Rider, —, (I.) 16.
 Rigby, Alexander, notice of, (I.) 31.
 —, Nich., (II.) 13.
 —, Thomas, (II.) 5.
 Roby, Christofer, (II.) 5.
 Roscow, Robert, of Bolton, (II.) 2.
 Rothwell, Robert, his evidence, (II.) 35-6.

Rowe, Edwd., (II.) 6.
 Russell, Edward, earl of Orford, notice of, (I.) xvii.

SANDIFORD, Ralph, (II.) 6.
 Savile, George, marquess of Halifax, notice of, (I.) xvi.
 Sedan, Richard, (I.) 2, 13.
 Sharples, Cuthbert, (I.) 11.
 —, John, (I.) 11.
 Shiersen, Tho. (II.) 5.
 Shone, Richard, evidence of himself and wife, (II.) 35.
 Shower, sir Bartholomew, (II.) 20; notice of, (I.) 15.
 Shrewsbury, earl of, notice of, (I.) xiv, xv.
 Shuttleworth, Richard, (I.) ix, x, xi, 9.
 Simson, William, (I.) 26, 27.
 Smith, Aaron, (I.) 11, 19, 24; (II.) iv, vii, viii, 2, 4, 24, 26.
 —, Geo., (II.) 6.
 Speke, Hugh, (II.) iv.
 Stand park, near Sefton, (I.) 2.
 Standish hall, arms at, (II.) 14.
 —, Mr., (II.) 13, 34, 35.
 Stanley, sir Rowland, (II.) ix, 3, 4, 7, 8, 10, 11, 13, 14, 35, 36, 37; his defence, 15.
 —, sir Thomas, (II.) xiv, 1.
 Statesmen, venality of, (I.) xiii.
 Stepkins, Peter, (II.) v.
 Stocks market, London, (I.) 25.
 Stopford, Wm., (II.) 17.
 Stones, Andrew, (II.) 6.
 Stuarts, ingratitude of the, (II.) xi.
 Sydney house, London, notice of, (I.) 17.

TAAFE, Mr., (II.) 19, 20, 21, 22, 27, 28, 29.
 Talor, Mr., (I.) 8.
 Taylor, Dorothy, her evidence, (II.) 36.
 —, Edmd., (II.) 6.
 —, of Standish, (II.) 11.
 Thelwall, Walter, his evidence, (II.) 33.
 Thomson, —, (I.) 26.
 Threlfall, Edmund, (I.) iii; (II.) vii, 9, 10.
 Tildesley, Ralph, (II.) 10.
 Tipper, Mawrisce, (I.) 25.
 Tomlinson, Wm., his evidence, (II.) 32.
 —, Mr., (I.) 26.
 Townley, (II.) 13.
 —, Abraham, (II.) 5.
 Travers, Joseph, bailiff of Liverpool, (I.) 2.
 Trenchard, sir John, (II.) iii, iv, vii, xvi.

- Turner, Mr., (I.) 11.
 Turton, sir John, (II.) xiv, 1, 2, 27.
 Tyrer, Thomas, mayor of Liverpool, (I.)
 v, 2, 13.
UPTON, Mr., (II.) 3.
VEALE, John, (II.) 5.
WW., a kinsman of the earl of Nottingham, (I.) 7, 8, 9, 12, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21.
 Wagstaff, Thomas, his Letter out of Lan- cashire, (II.) xvii.
 Walgrave, —, (II.) 11.
 Walker, Nathan, (II.) 6.
 Walmesley, Bartholomew, (II.) ix, 3, 4, 12, 22, 32, 38, 39, 40, 41.
 Warmingham, Jn., (II.) 6.
 Warrington, commission held at, (II.) v, xvi.
 Watkins, Mr., (I.) 4.
 Westminster, courts held at, (I.) 11.
 Whalley, Wm., (II.) 5.
 Whitehall, notice of, (I.) 3.
 Whitfeild, Mr., king's cardmaker, (II.)
 11.
 Whitney, execution of, (II.) 15-6.
 Wicherley, Mr., (I.) 25.
 Widdrington, lord, (II.) 22.
 —, Mr., his evidence, (II.) 39.
 Wigan, Dutch troop at, (II.) 31.
 William III., (I.) 21; (II.) iii, viii, 12, 23.
 Williams, sir William, (II.) xiv, xv, 1, 8, 15.
 —, Mr., his son, (II.) xiv, 1, 6.
 Williamson, Dr., his evidence, (II.) 35.
 Willoughby, Hugh lord, (II.) xiv, 1, 18.
 Wilson, Cuthbert, his evidence, (II.) 17.
 —, George, (II.) xvi, xix, 1, 19, 24,
 25, 27, 30, 31, 32; his evidence, 13-4.
 Wimbledon, notice of, (I.) 9.
 Windle, Richard, alderman of Liverpool,
 (I.) 13.
 Wingate, Robert, his evidence, (II.) 39.
 Wingfeild, sir Henry, his evidence, (II.) 38.
 Winter, Mr., (II.) 1, 2, 3.
 Wodroffe, Robert, (II.) xiii.
 Womball, John, (II.) xvi, xix, 1, 18, 19,
 24, 25, 27, 30, 33, 34, 35; his evidence,
 12-3.
 Wybrants, William, (II.) v.
YORK, treatment of prisoners at, (I.) 16.
 Young, —, (II.) 16.

The Twentieth Report

OF THE

COUNCIL OF THE CHETHAM SOCIETY,

Held on the 24th day of March, 1863, (the first of the month, the day appointed by the Rules of the Society, falling on a Sunday).

THE Council feel that they may congratulate the Members on the Society having now accomplished a period of twenty years, during which it has not failed in issuing, according to its original pledge, three publications for each year, and which at present form a series of sixty volumes. On the character and importance of the series it is unnecessary for them to enlarge, as it is generally admitted to be entitled to rank, in point of interest and sterling value, with that of any other similar Society in the kingdom.

As regards the works for the year 1862-3, the Council have to report that they have all been issued, and are now in the hands of Members.

The first of them is the third and concluding volume of Mamecestre, edited by Mr. HARLAND. With it appears the Introduction, which reviews the previous writers on the same subject, and gives an useful Summary of the work itself. A Glossarial Gazetteer, which brings together an extensive body of etymological Collectanea on the various names of places within or near the manor of Manchester, concludes the volume. As a secular and feudal history of Manchester, from the Norman Conquest to the latter part of the fifteenth century, built on the solid basis of charters and contemporary documents, this elaborate and very careful publication by Mr. HARLAND, the fruit of great labour, ability and antiquarian knowledge, leaves nothing to be desired, and has supplied a desideratum, which has been long felt and complained of, in the most satisfactory manner. The only subject of regret is that, though a Summary is given of the later history of the manor, the series of charters and original documents terminates with the rent-roll of Thomas West, lord La Warre, in May 1473; and that the extent of the work compelled the Editor to withdraw a collection of about three hundred and forty abstracts of grants and charters &c. relating to the manor, and which had been prepared as an Appendix to it. These however, it is to be hoped, may form the materials of a future publication.

The other two volumes for the year 1862-3 comprise the History of the Chantries within the County Palatine of Lancaster, being the Reports of the Royal Commissioners of Henry the Eighth, Edward the Sixth and Queen Mary, edited by the Rev. CANON RAINES. Transcripts of these reports, a mine of ecclesiastical history previously unexplored, were obtained from the Dutchy Office by the late Rev. JOSEPH CLARKE, Rector of Stretford, and at his death, through the kindness of the LORD BISHOP OF MANCHESTER, at whose suggestion they had been obtained, were placed in the hands of the learned and reverend Canon, to edit for the CHETHAM SOCIETY. It is sufficient to say of the work, as now published, and a higher character can scarcely be given of it, that it forms a worthy and appropriate Supplement to Gastrell's Notitia. The particulars it contains and preserves are of the most curious and interesting nature; and the light which it throws on the history of our church edifices and their founders clears up innumerable difficulties; and, while it serves to correct the mistakes into which various writers have fallen, supplies their frequent deficiencies and lacunæ by information of the most authentic kind. The reports are accompanied by that rich and copious, it would scarcely be too much to say, exhaustless, store of illustration which the reverend Editor has always at command; and he has added to the obligations of his readers by affording a clear and condensed view of the history and statistics of Chantries in his judicious, learned and entertaining Introduction.

The publications contemplated, or in progress, are:

1. Collectanea Anglo-Poetica. Part 3. By the Rev. THOMAS CORSEB, M.A., F.S.A.
 2. Documents relating to Edward third Earl of Derby and the Pilgrimage of Grace. By R. C. CHRISTIE, Esq., M.A.
-

3. Catalogue of Tracts for and against Popery in the Chetham Library. Second part. Edited by T. JONES, Esq., B.A., Librarian of the Chetham Library.

4. "A True and Impartial Relation of the Warre that was between King Charles and the Parliament, so much as happened of it within the County Palatine of Lancaster." From the original MS. at Knowsley.

5. Stanley Papers, Vol. 3; containing the Diary, Prayers and Meditations of James 7th Earl of Derby. Edited by the Rev. CANON RAINES, from the original MS. in the possession of the present Earl of Derby.

6. Narrative of the Apprehension, Imprisonment and Release of Richard Abbott, a servant in the employ of Caryl lord Molyneux in 1689. With a further Account, containing many particulars not given in the Report (contained in the "Jacobite Trials" Vol. XXVII. of the CHETHAM SERIES) of the Trials at Manchester, October 1694.

7. A Selection from Dr. John Byron's unprinted Remains in Prose and Verse.

8. A new Edition of the Poems Collected and Published after his Death, corrected and revised, with Notes, and a Prefatory Sketch of his Life.

9. Worthington's Diary and Correspondence. The concluding part. Edited by JAMES CROSSLEY, Esq., F.S.A., President of the Chetham Society.

10. Heraldic Visitations of Lancashire.

11. Hollingworth's Mancuniensis. A new Edition. Edited by CANON RAINES.

12. A Volume of Extracts, Depositions, Letters, &c., from the Consistory Court of Chester, beginning with the Foundation of the See.

13. Extracts from Roger Dodsworth's Collections in the Bodleian Library at Oxford relating to Lancashire.

14. Annales Cestrienses.

15. A General Index to volumes XXXI. to LX. of the Publications of the Chetham Society.

CR.

A. H. HEYWOOD, Treasurer.

The Twenty-first Report

OF THE

COUNCIL OF THE CHETHAM SOCIETY,

Read at the Annual Meeting, held on the 1st day of March, 1864.

THE first of the publications for the year 1863-4 to which the Council have to refer is the General Index from Vol. I. to XXX. inclusive, which was issued in the early part of the year. To this are appended separate Indexes to those works which originally appeared without that addition; so that every volume up to the thirtieth now having an Index, and the General Index affording every facility of reference to each, the contents of the first half of the CHETHAM SERIES can be at once gone through and ascertained without difficulty. The plan upon which this General Index has been prepared by Mr. CHARLES SIMMS appears to be an excellent one, and that it has been executed with great care and accuracy no one who examines the book minutely can entertain a doubt. The labour has been considerable, but the result will be to add in no slight degree to the value of the portion indexed; and the Council are happy to state that Mr. SIMMS is now proceeding with the continuation from Vol. XXXI. to LX. inclusive, and which will complete this supplementary addition to the series up to the end of the last year.

The second volume for 1853-4 consists of The Narrative of Richard Abbott, a servant of Caryl Lord Molyneux, containing an account of his apprehension, imprisonment and release, in the years 1689-91; and of a further Account of the Jacobite Trials at Manchester, October 1694, supplying many additions of a very interesting description to the Report published under the able editorship of Mr. BEAMONT in vol. xxviii. of the CHETHAM SERIES. From the very curious narrative of Richard Abbott, which is now first printed from a MS. volume of the time, and from the two Reports of the Trials furnished in the previous and present volume, and taken respectively from the Jesse and Blundell MSS., a very fair judgment may be formed of the character of the early part of the reign of King William III. in several important aspects, and of the position of Lancashire and Cheshire and the country gentlemen of those counties under the system which was then pursued. The picture is certainly a graphic and vivid one, and quite as deserving of attention as any which has been dwelt upon by the Historians of that reign. For the materials which compose this volume and the valuable information conveyed in the Prefaces and Notes, and which tend so materially to illustrate the documents printed, the members are indebted to Dr. Goss, the Roman Catholic Bishop, of St. Edward's College, Liverpool, who, through Mr. BEAMONT, most obligingly placed them at the disposal of the Council.

The third volume for 1863-4 is "A Discourse of the Warr in Lancashire. A Trew and Impartial Relation of some of that unhappie Intestine Warre that was betweene King Charles and the Parliament soe much as Happened of it within the countie Palatine of Lancaster," edited by Mr. BEAMONT, and printed from a transcript made by Canon RAINES from the original manuscript at Knowsley, by permission of the Earl of DERBY, to whose liberality the Society is under great obligation. This narrative was unknown to Dr. ORMEROD when he published his most interesting and excellently edited volume of Civil War Tracts in the CHETHAM SERIES, and as it embraces the entire period of the war, from 1642 to the death of James earl of Derby in October 1651, in a consecutive history, and contains several particulars not to be met with in any of the tracts previously printed, it will form a very useful and important supplement to Dr. ORMEROD's volume. The author was evidently a very zealous Parliamentarian, and though his name is not given in the manuscript, the persevering research of Mr. BEAMONT, whose Preface and Notes add greatly to the interest and value of the work, appears to have traced him out beyond the possibility of mistake.

To Dr. FLEMING the Members are indebted for the portrait of James earl of Derby which accompanies the volume, and which is engraved from the fine painting by Robert Walker in the Doctor's possession, who has thus added to the debt of gratitude which is due to him on many accounts from the CHETHAM SOCIETY.

The two last publications are very nearly completed, and may be expected in a short time to be issued to the Members.

The publications contemplated, or in progress, are :

1. Collectanea Anglo-Poetica, Part 3. By the Rev. THOMAS CORSER, M.A., F.S.A.
2. Documents relating to Edward third Earl of Derby and the Pilgrimage of Grace. By R. C. CHRISTIE, Esq., M.A.
3. Catalogue of Tracts for and against Popery in the Chetham Library. Second part. Edited by T. JONES, Esq., B.A., Librarian of the Chetham Library.
4. The Visitation of Lancashire in 1532. Edited by WM. LANGTON, Esq.
5. Stanley Papers, Vol. 3; containing the Diary, Prayers, and Meditations of James 7th Earl of Derby. Edited by the Rev. CANON RAINES, from the original MSS. in the possession of the present Earl of Derby.
6. The Register of the Manchester Free Grammar School, with Notices and Biographies of distinguished Scholars. Edited by the Rev. J. FINCH SMITH, M.A., Rector of Aldridge.
7. A Selection from Dr. John Byrom's unprinted Remains in Prose and Verse.
8. A new Edition of the Poems Collected and Published after his Death, corrected and revised, with Notes, and a Prefatory Sketch of his Life.
9. Worthington's Diary and Correspondence. The concluding part. Edited by JAMES CROSSLRY, Esq., F.S.A., President of the Chetham Society.
10. The later Heraldic Visitations of Lancashire.
11. Hollinworth's Mancuniensis. A new Edition. Edited by CANON RAINES.
12. A Volume of Extracts, Depositions, Letters, &c., from the Consistory Court of Chester, beginning with the Foundation of the See.
13. Extracts from Roger Dodsworth's Collections in the Bodleian Library at Oxford relating to Lancashire.
14. Annales Cestrienses.
15. A General Index to volumes XXXI. to LX. of the Publications of the Chetham Society.

The Treasurer in Account with the Chetham Society, for the year ending 29th February, 1864.

DR.

CR.

	L.	S.	D.
2 Subscriptions of 1858-59 (16th year), reported in arrear at last meeting.
1 Collected	1	0	0
1 Outstanding.
3 Subscriptions of 1859-60 (17th year), reported in arrear at last meeting.
1 Collected	1	0	0
2 Outstanding.
5 Subscriptions of 1860-61 (18th year), reported in arrear at last meeting
3 Collected	3	0	0
2 Outstanding.
15 Subscriptions of 1861-62 (19th year), reported in arrear at last meeting.
6 Collected	6	0	0
9 Outstanding.
49 Subscriptions of 1862-63 (20th year), reported in arrear at last meeting.
36 Collected	36	0	0
13 Outstanding.
44 Subscriptions of 1863-64 (21st year), accounted for at last meeting.
237 Collected since.....	237	0	0
45 Life Members.
24 Still outstanding.
350
Composition of a Life Member	10	0	0
Arrear of vacancy in succession to a Life Member	1	0	0
9 Subscriptions for 1864-65 (22nd year), paid in advance	9	0	0
Books supplied to Members	36	10	0
Book Postage	0	17	0
3 per cent. Dividends.....	7	5	8
Interest allowed by Bank	9	9	3
	£368	1	11
Balance 1st March, 1863.....	364	8	0
	£732	9	11

	L.	S.	D.
1863.
Mar. 12. Postage	1	2	3
„ 12. Charles Simms and Co., printing "General Index, Vols. I. to XXX."	78	9	10
„ 25. Advertising	0	8	3
„ 25. Hire of Room for Meeting	0	7	6
„ 25. Charles Simms and Co., binding Vols. 57 to 60 and General Index	116	1	0
„ 26. Charles Simms and Co., on account of making the Index	75	0	0
July 18. Books bought to complete sets	1	12	0
Dec. 10. Ditto ditto ditto	6	18	0
1864.
Feb. 5. Engraving	0	14	0
„ 28. Advertising	0	10	0

	£273	3	10
Balance 29th February, 1864.....	449	7	1
	£723	9	11

Audited by us and found correct,
JOSEPH PEEL,
GEORGE PEEL,
B. DENNISON NAYLOR.

2nd March, 1864.

A. H. HEYWOOD, Treasurer.

[REDACTED]

DA 670 .L19 C5 v.61 C.1
I. Abbott's journal. II. The t
Stanford University Libraries

3 6105 038 235 813

NON-CIRCULATING

MAN 22 68

NON-CIRCULATING

Stanford University Library
Stanford, California

In order that others may use this book please return it as soon as possible, but not later than the date due.

